NINTH EDITION

FOREWORD.

The demand for a new edition has made possible some additions and corrections. Many of these are the outcome of experience in teaching, and others are the suggestions of students of the book.

The terminology consequent on the establishment of a Republic has been added, though at this writing it seems possible that terms suitable to a monarchy may supersede them ere long. No one can tell what will come out of the Witches' Cauldron of New China politics.

The book has been partly interleaved, and the Chinese text of the Miscellaneous Examples added. The Chinese teacher will thus be able to correct both the reading and pronunciation of his pupil.

In the supplement will be found additional examples of the use of such words and idioms as are given in the Lessons, together with translations of passages in the Reading Lessons which contain idiomatic phrases and uses of words that may present difficulties to the beginner.

An analysis of the use of 就 is also given from the conviction that the meaning and force of this and similar words can be better learned from connected discourse than from the definition given in a dictionary.

A Monograph on Phonetics has been kindly contributed by Mr. W. B. Pettus of the Y. M. C. A. and is hereby gratefully acknowledged. It should be of great value to those who desire to study the sounds of the language from a scientific standpoint.

No Analysis of Characters has been attempted in the Primer itself, but for the convenience of those who wish to pursue this branch of study, a small book has been prepared for publication with the Primer containing not only the analysis of such characters as occur in Lessons 1—30, but a large number of forms which will enable the student to analyse most of the characters he will meet with during the first few years of his studies.

Those who intend to learn to write Chinese are referred to the Author's A. B. C. of Chinese Writing published by the American Presbyterian Press.

As to "how to begin", opinions differ. Some recommend making a start with the Vocabulary and Examples as on page 1, and others, with the Reading Lessons as on page 4. A good deal may be said for either method, but whichever is adopted, the main thing is to learn to speak Chinese idiomatically. To this end it is of the utmost importance to imitate the teacher closely as regards Tones, Aspirates, Emphasis, and Idiom. It will be found useful after Mastering a Lesson, to let the teacher read aloud the Miscellaneous Examples, the Reading Lesson and the Key to the Lesson at the end of the book. Try and translate mentally, or by the aid of the English Exercise as he reads; by this means the ear will be trained to catch and differentiate sounds, and also become accustomed to the use of various idioms. Reading, listening, talking perhaps sum up the steps by which the language may best be mastered.

It is not necessary to memorize all the examples at first. Those which are most commonly used and the Miscellaneous Examples may be committed to memory with advantage. The child's methods of repeating all it hears may be adopted, but it needs to be supplemented. A child usually takes seven or eight years to acquire and make much use of its Vocabulary, and when it does prattle, its range is naturally very limited. An adult should not only memorize but also exercise his power to reason and to compare. In this way the advantages of the child's method are conserved, and reinforced by the added knowledge and experience of riper years: the prattle of the child gives place to the talk of the man.

The Sketch Maps, though originally prepared for the China Inland Mission, may be useful for reference, and may help in an outline study of the geography of China.

INTRODUCTION.

PLAN AND SCOPE.

The book is divided into four Parts, viz., Elementary, Advanced, Supplementary and Miscellaneous. In Part I. simple idioms are explained and illustrated, in Part II. more difficult idioms are dealt with, in Part III. these are supplemented by the addition of words and phrases, and in Part IV. vocabularies relating to various subjects are given.

In Part I., at the end of each Lesson, the words "See Lesson—" are added. The Lesson thus referred to contains further illustrations of many words and phrases already given. By this arrangement the beginner is not bewildered in the early stages of his studies with matter of which he can make no use, but is put in possession of much useful material at a time when he is in a position to profit by it.

Reading Lessons follow every Exercise and Vocabulary. These are intended to help to a good style in speaking and to make the study of the language more interesting. Idiom needs to be absorbed by reading. The subjects treated of in these Reading Lessons cover a wide range, and in many cases have been treated in a light vein in order to create and sustain interest. Some expressions used in them are not in the nature of the case everywhere current; the book could not be written that would meet local requirements in whole Mandarin-speaking area. But it should not be difficult for any teacher of average intelligence to give the local equivalent of any given expression. Foot notes have been added to elucidate difficult idioms, and words that occur later in the book have been inserted to make the sense complete, or to secure a better sentence. Such words are followed by 'L.' or 'V.,' which refer to the Lesson or Vocabulary in which they occur. As it is impossible to tell a story without words new ones have been introduced and defined where necessary. A large vocabulary of useful words has thus been secured, and a wider range of subjects made possible. By the aid of these Lessons—which form a Reader—students should not only acquire a good idiom, but be also helped to judge the force of words and to see how sentences are connected. They should be read and re-read, and in part committed to memory, till a faulty sentence grates on the ear like a discord in the midst of harmony. The Chinese titles have been added for the benefit of the teacher, and the student should leave them severely alone till he has finished Part III.

A Review Exercise is added at the end of every five Lessons. No translation of the Examples is given, as it should not be difficult for the student, with the aid of his teacher, to judge of the accuracy of his work.

A Writing Exercise is appended to each Lesson from the conviction that it will be a great benefit to many to be able to write Chinese as well as to read it. Such should read "Writing with order of Strokes" on page xxv. 'R.' following a character indicates that it is a Radical.

The Tones in this edition are marked as in the Author's Analytical Chinese-English Dictionary (Shanghai: American Presbyterian Press.) Where a word is in the fifth tone or 入聲, it is indicated by a final 'h' in the spelling, and the Peking tone is placed by the side of the character also. The figures 1, 2, 3, 4, stand for 上平, 下平, 上聲, and 去聲, respectively.

Following the usage of the New Literature, names of persons have been marked with a single line at the side, names of places with a double one.

Parts I, II. and III. are also printed as a separate volume on Chinese paper and published as a companion volume. This is done to furnish the student with a needful but inexpensive copy for the use of his teacher.

The Lessons have been divided into paragraphs under sub-headings for convenience of reference and a full Index added at the end of the book. By this means any idiom or construction may be referred to with ease.

The Exercises for Translation, and Key to them, are intended to furnish material for translation from English into Chinese and vice versa. Translate the English to the teacher in Chinese and let him correct it by the Key; then reverse the process, and by means of the Key, test the accuracy of the translation into English. This will give facility in translation and develop the power to use words and idioms aright.

INTRODUCTION.

An imaginary Dialogue with a visitor on Christianity is also introduced, from which it is hoped the student may cull a few useful colloquial phrases. In this and in all other parts of the book the Editor is alone responsible for all doctrinal statements.

The small figures following the words in the Vocabularies refer to the numbers of the corresponding Numerary Adjuncts, of which those more commonly in use are printed on pages 281, 282, and also for greater convenience separately on a card. This arrangement enables the student to see the meaning of any given Numerary Adjunct at a glance, and precludes the possibility of mistaking it for the word to which it belongs. Where two sets of figures occur opposite the same word, either of the Numerary Adjuncts referred to may be used with it.

On page 346, under the Head of 'The Study,' will be found a selection of words and sentences which are intended to enable the student to communicate with his teacher at once. Such sentences as are most commonly needed, should be committed to memory—this will enable teacher and pupil to begin to understand each other. It will be as well also to call the attention of the teacher to "Instructions for Chinese Teachers" on p. xxvii.

The whole work, in its enlarged form, is afresh commended to blessing of Almighty God, that He may graciously use it as a means of helping His servants to preach the Gospel of our Lord and only Saviour Jesus Christ.

CHEFOO, May, 1911.

ASPIRATES.

Two peculiarities at once impress the student as he begins to study Chinese, viz., Aspirates and Tones. They differ entirely from the same things in Western languages, where they may be local peculiarities, or may merely express surprise, horror, or any other emotion, but have no special meaning and do not form an essential part of the language. In Chinese, an Aspirate is a sort of explosive sound, such as may be heard in the case of a person who stutters when he tries to say "pudding, please." Or it may be such a sound as should be given to 'ch' in the word 'loch.' But it must be heard to be understood and acquired.

The presence or absence of an Aspirate makes as much difference to the meaning of a word, as a difference of spelling in words of similar sound in English, as for instance, 'team' and 'teem'; or the omission of an 'h' in say 'hair,' 'air.' The Chinese, strange to say, have no name for it; the words used by foreign students to express it (To send forth breath 出氣) being coined to supply the deficiency. There is nothing in the formation of a Chinese character to denote whether it is aspirated or not, but in expressing its sound in Roman letters an inverted comma usually indicates it. This rule is followed throughout, thus:—t'ao, p'ing, t'i, ch'i, etc.

Since Chinese teachers have not had to teach pupils who were ignorant of aspirates, they are naturally a little at sea when they come to teach foreigners. Hence the student should keep his ears open, reproduce all the aspirates he hears, faithfully imitating his teacher. When a teacher shakes his head and repeats a word, it is clear that his pupil has failed to reproduce the sound of the word with perfect accuracy, and it will be found in most cases that the aspirate has been omitted. In order to educate the ear, the following table has been drawn up. It should be gone over again and again, till the ear can readily distinguish between a word that is aspirated and one that is not.

TONES.

The second peculiarity of the Chinese language is the Tones. These form a sort of rythmical chime which is not unpleasing to the ear, and which may be acquired by closely following the pronunciation of the teacher.

They are an integral part of the language and should be learnt as such; no sentence should be committed to memory without them. To know them and use them aright is of great value. They give character to speech and sharply differentiate a speaker who uses them from one who neglects them. A foreigner who ignores them does not speak like a Chinese who naturally employs them all the time. A preacher who has no Tones is apt to be an offence or an infliction to his audience, who at once relegate him to the rank of a poor speaker. Thoroughly to know them is also of great value in the event of having to change one's dialect. For example, the first tone as heard in Nanking, is quite different from the same tone as heard in Hankow. But if the student has learnt the tones as part of the words, he will have little difficulty, for he will rightly conclude that if one word is sounded in a certain way, all the other words in that tone will be sounded in the same way. Any time therefore given to acquiring a thorough knowledge of them will be amply repaid later on.

The following Tables should be read over till the ear can distinguish one tone from another and recognize it when heard alone.

The Tables are of two kinds, one of which may be called meaningless, since it is simply a repetition of the same sound in different tones; the other, which may be called significant, is made up of intelligible sentences. These latter should be committed to memory, as it will then be easy to recall them and the tones at the same time. And the fact that they are not without significance will make their study less monotonous than droning over a Table of Sounds devoid of meaning. When the tones can be reproduced accurately, the Sound Table should be left and the study of the Lessons begun; the various Reading Lessons are intended to furnish exercises on the tones as well as on the study of Idiom.

There are five tones in Southern, four in Northern, and theoretically the same number in Western Mandarin. These are as follows:—

- | | | |
|------------------------|-----|---------------------------|
| 1. Upper even tone, or | 上平聲 | shang-p'ing sheng. |
| 2. Lower even tone, or | 下平聲 | hsia-p'ing sheng. |
| 3. Ascending tone, or | 上聲 | shang sheng. |
| 4. Departing tone, or | 去聲 | ch'ü sheng. |
| 5. Entering tone, or | 入聲 | ruh sheng. |

Chinese teachers mark them by small circles at the corner of the characters, but they are marked in this book by figures placed at the top right hand corner of the character, e.g., 書¹, 紙³, etc.

In reading with the teacher raise the voice slightly above conversational pitch and avoid excessive emphasis. Too much emphasis makes jerky Chinese, and if misplaced is apt to alter the meaning of a sentence. Try and catch the cadence produced by the succession of tones and by clear enunciation reproduce it distinctly. Discard all muttering and follow the intonation, imitating the teacher in all respects. As progress is made, and fluency acquired, it will be easy to reproduce phrases and sentences with a greater degree of naturalness.

THE ROMANIZED SYSTEM.

It is of great value to be able to express Chinese sounds uniformly in Roman letters, but it is by no means an easy task to form a system which shall be at once accurate and consistent. Up till now no one system has satisfied all requirements, partly owing to the fact that the same character is pronounced with varying shades of difference in different parts of the Mandarin-speaking area, and partly because vowel sounds are pronounced differently, not only by people of different nationality, but by people who reside in different parts of the same country. And there are certain sounds that perhaps cannot be expressed perfectly by any combination of English letters. As Mateer well says: "No combinations of English letters can completely represent all the minor distinctions of even one dialect, much less those of a number of dialects. A certain margin or suppleness must be given to the spelling of each syllable, especially for the many minor modifications made by change of tone. In every dialect also there are occasional stray sounds which may be regarded as accidental variations, and need not be provided for in a syllabary of the dialect."

A few years ago the Chinese government appointed a commission to evolve order out of chaos in the spelling of the names of Chinese cities. This it did with a measure of success, but if it had gone a step further, and constructed a scientific system for expressing Chinese sounds, it would have earned the gratitude of students of Chinese, and have brought to an end the Babel of existing systems.

Beginners using this book are recommended to acquire the system of romanized used in it, as it stands. Later on they may improve on it, but meanwhile it will be of great advantage to them if they can write down the Chinese sounds they learn according to a uniform system. Failing this, they will write the same sound in several different ways, owing to the fact that their ears are not trained to distinguish between sounds that are nearly, but not quite, alike: they should also bear in mind the fact that letters are not sounds, but only symbols representing sounds.

The system adopted in this and other China Inland Mission handbooks is that of the late Rev. J. H. Taylor, founder of the INITIALS AND FINALS.

Mission. It is an adaptation of a Chinese method of expressing sounds, called fan ch'ieh 反切, and is analogous to the system adopted in teaching young children by many eminent teachers in the West. It consists in dividing words into Initials and Finals and combining them to produce the full sound of the word. For example, a child may be taught to spell 'cat' by separate letters—'c,' 'a,' 't,' or by making 'c' the initial and 'at' the final sound—'c,' 'at'=cat. The latter method it is believed is the one best adapted to Chinese sounds, and is accordingly adopted in books published by the China Inland Mission.

In the following Tables the Initials and Finals are first given alone, then combined, the combination giving the sounds of the characters following them. These should be read over with the teacher and the value of the letters acquired. This will be of great value in obtaining a fuller knowledge both of aspirates and tones, as well as of sounds.

The best way to acquire the power to express accurately any given sound is mentally to divide it into initial and final, thus:—

ch-a=cha

h-ao=hao

hs-iao=hsiao

l-eng=leng

p-ien=pien

k-uen=kuen

ts-uan=tsuan, and so on with other sounds.

Notes on the Table of Initials and Finals.

INITIALS.

Ch is pronounced as ch in church, not as j in jerk; k as in kirk, not as g in game; p as in park, not as b in bark; t as in tongue, not as d in done; ts as in tsar.

H has two sounds: one like the ordinary sound given to it in English, as in 'how;' the other a rougher sound which occurs before e and a and should be acquired from a teacher. When h occurs before a final beginning with u, it is sounded something like wh in 'which,' or 'whirl.' H is used in this system at the end of a word as a mark of the fifth tone or Ruh sheng.

Sh is pronounced with the teeth closed, and does not occur before the finals i or ü; hs on the contrary is pronounced with the teeth apart and only occurs before i or ü.

The value that should be attached to r is a debatable point; some holding that it has a j sound, others a combination of both j and r.

FINALS.

A is pronounced as in 'far,' 'tar;' æ something like æ in 'vertebræ' with a slightly broader sound; e as in 'her,' 'perch;' ai as in 'aisle;' ao as ou in 'loud;' o as in 'go,' 'so;' ei as in 'weight;' u as in 'rule' or oo in 'goose;' ü as the French ü; i as in 'machine'—when followed by n or ng it is shortened as i in 'chin' or 'pin.' Uei, which stands alone, is similar in sound to ui, which is used in combination only.

The sound represented by the letter i cannot be pronounced alone. It follows ch, ch', s, sh, ts, ts', and is intended to represent the partly hissing, partly grinding sound that is heard in the first syllable of 'scissors,' 'ship' or the ss in 'hiss.' When joined to r it is intended to represent a sound that is produced by turning the tongue back upon itself and pronouncing er: it must however be acquired from the living voice.

One sound not provided for in this system is that usually represented by ng initial. It occurs before vowels.

The letters y and w are not employed, since their values are given in the coalescence of the vowels i and a, u and a; thus i, a=ya; u, a=wa, etc. Moreover the omission of these two letters avoids the inconsistency of writing yao alone and chiao in combination, or yen, pien, and so on.

A few characters are printed in hollow type. This is done to indicate that the combination of letters before them does not represent their full sound. No characters in the language do represent the sound needed to form the final syllable of certain words; a part of the sound of some characters is therefore taken; but it will be found that if this be joined to an initial, the combination will give the full sound of suitable characters. For example, æ joined to ch equals chæ, the sound of the character 遮; ui joined to t equals tui, the sound of the character 兌; and so on with any of the others.

TABLE OF RADICALS.

A 'radical' is the key by means of which characters are found in Chinese dictionaries. It forms a part of every character, hence a knowledge of radicals means a knowledge of the principal part of all the characters we may learn. The number of them is 214. They are numbered consecutively, and are divided into groups according to the number of the strokes they contain. Some are used much more frequently than others; these are indicated in this table by the definition of their meaning being printed in a larger type. Those that are rarely used are indicated by brackets. Their sound, tone, meaning and number should be learnt, beginning with those most frequently used. For the convenience of students who may find it easier to learn them from larger characters, they have been printed in larger type and published in pamphlet form.*

CHINESE CHARACTERS.

THEIR STRUCTURE, HOW TO FIND THEIR RADICALS, AND HOW TO FIND THEM IN A DICTIONARY.

1. A Chinese character, which is not itself a Radical, consists of two parts: the Radical and the Phonetic, or when it does not give the sound of the character, the Primitive. The Radical is one from the list of 214 Radicals, the Phonetic is the other half of the character, and, strange to say, the Chinese language contains no name for it. It is sometimes itself another Radical, as in 近 記 理 罵, but more frequently a compound character formed of another Radical and Phonetic, as in 語 造 羅.

Speaking very generally, for the rule is frequently broken, it would seem as if Chinese characters were constructed on the following principle:—The Radical should give a clue to the meaning of a character, the Phonetic a clue to its sound. Thus 油 iu, oil, comes from 由 iu as phonetic, and the water radical indicating a liquid; 神 shen, god or spirit, from 申 shen, as phonetic, and the omen radical; 駕 chia, to ride, from 加 chia, as phonetic, and the horse radical; 議 i, to discuss, from 義 i, as phonetic, and the words radical.

The beginner will often find a new character to be an old radical with a new phonetic, or sometimes merely a new combination of a familiar radical with a familiar phonetic.

2. A good deal of difficulty will be found at first, in knowing under what radical to look for any particular character, and unfortunately some of the commonest characters are the hardest to find. However, no one need be discouraged, for a few months' steady practice will work wonders in removing the difficulties.

The radical may occupy any part of the character. It may be at the top, as 竹 in 管; or at the bottom, as 皿 in 監; on the left, as 糸 in 給; on the right, as 阝 in 都; surrounding it, as 口 in 固; or in the middle of it, as 口 in 周; partially surrounding it, as 疒 in 痕, or 辵 in 退, or 門 in 間; or the radical may be split in two, enclosing the phonetic, as 行 in 衙, or 衣 in 裏, or 二 in 五. Sometimes it is mixed up in a general sort of way with the phonetic, as 門 in 再, or 大 in 奉, or 禾 in 穀, or 口 in 嘗.

3. a. Consider whether the character is a radical itself. Thus 音 香 高 辛 至 面 行 黑 麻 走 玉 色 are themselves radicals. ,

b. If the character is not a radical, the first step is to break it into two parts. In two cases out of three there will be one part on the right hand and another on the left; in which case it is easy to break the character up. Thus: 一初就物創的沒樣暗卻認叫他作. Or the division may be horizontal, one half being above, the other beneath, and in this case the division is not quite so simple; as, 界意告督覆答萬負罪要靈擎. Or one half may enclose the other on two or more sides, as 有道同在造反底間因. There are in addition other forms which are harder to divide.

c. If one of the two parts is a radical and the other is not, obviously we must look for it under that part which is a radical; as for instance, 的釘福雖忽花, which come from 白金示隹心 卅 respectively, the other halves not being radicals.

d. But where both halves of a character are radicals, the following rules must be applied:—

1. Where the character consists of a right hand and a left hand half, THE LEFT HAND HALF is the radical; as, for instance, 信加料塊如律性拉明根. Each of these examples consists of two radicals; but the one on the LEFT HAND is that under which one must look for it.

Exceptions:—The radicals 刀力攴斤攴攴攴 (163) [卩 170 is regular] 隹鳥, are generally found on the right side of the character, but in these cases the left side is seldom a radical.

The rule that the LEFT HAND portion of the character is the radical also holds in cases where the radical extends to two or more sides of the character. For instance: 一庫尼建房虎赴連間因.

2. Where the character consists of an upper and lower half, both being radicals, the LOWER HALF is the radical. As, for instance: 思昏晝果泉上兄冬分古告妾.

Exceptions:—The following radicals are placed at the top of the character: 一卅 𠂇 [two very large groups] 宀 穴 雨 卩.

These rules will dispose of nineteen-twentieths of the characters in Chinese; though, alas! many exceptions will be found to them, such as 相 from 目 instead of 木; 妝 from 女 instead of 月; 取 from 又 instead of 耳; 和 from 口 instead of 禾; but it will often be found that the meaning gives a reason why the rule was broken.

A balance remains of eccentric characters for which no rules can be made. For example 賸 from 貝; 歸 from 止; 與 from 臼; 聚 from 耳; 望 from 月; 直 from 目; and many others, for which see Lists of Difficult Characters in dictionaries.

WRITING, WITH ORDER OF THE STROKES.

There are six forms of Chinese handwriting, four of which roughly correspond to Old English, German text, and other styles of fancy letters. The remaining two forms are somewhat akin to round hand and running hand; the latter, known as the 'grass character' 草字, varying in legibility, as in English, according to the penmanship of the writer. A beginner who looks upon this for the first time is apt to be discouraged, but he may draw consolation from the fact that the same characters printed, or written in ordinary script by his teacher, are much more easily recognised. The best cure for such discouragement is to learn to write. Naturally the printed form of the character is learnt first, but this done, it is a good thing to learn to write the characters so learnt. Chinese school boys trace a copy set them by the teacher. This doubtless is the best way, but as to whether every student of Chinese who comes to this country over twenty or thirty years of age should do likewise, is a moot point. A good deal depends on the student himself—his capacity, his power to use a pen or pencil, his future work, and so on. A shorter cut is to write with a soft pencil and give more attention to accuracy than to style in penmanship.

With a view to aid the beginner, a writing Exercise has been appended to each Lesson in the first three Parts of this book. These exercises are composed generally of such characters as have already occurred, and which are most commonly met with during the first few years of study. They should be written out from copies set by the teacher rather than from the printed forms, since they are freer in form and are more easily recognised in other connections. In writing, it is a good thing to notice the points of similarity and difference of form, and to differentiate between the Phonetic or Primitive and the Radical.* When a sufficient number of characters has been learnt to make it possible to write sentences, write them and get the teacher to correct them. By this means the power to write idiomatically will be acquired, and not merely the power to form letters and words. Later on, wider flights will be possible, when it will be a helpful exercise to compose descriptions of places, things, etc., and from these gradually pass on to subjects of a more abstract character.

The best way to learn where to begin in writing a character is to watch a teacher. It will be noticed that he begins and goes on in a regular order, usually starting from the top or left hand side. A few characters are appended, from which the general order may be

PHONETICS.

DEFINITIONS.

Phonetics is the science of speech sounds. We may study how the sounds are produced by the actions of the vocal organs, how they differ in the effect they produce on the ear, and how they should be recorded. In most of the study that has been devoted to the languages of the Far East attention has been concentrated on the second and third of these three divisions. In this article the chief stress will be laid on the first division in order to supplement and correct what has been done on the others.

USES OF PHONETICS.

The principal uses of phonetics may be briefly summarized. A knowledge of the science serves to correct one's own pronunciation. It also aids in the correct acquisition of a new language by enabling the student to differentiate between sounds somewhat similar to each other or to those used in the mother tongue. It further enables us to form and use entirely new sounds; and is of great value in teaching elocution, singing and shorthand. In teaching the deaf and dumb it is indispensable.

THE VOCAL ORGANS.

These include not merely the vocal cords and tongue, but the lips, teeth, hard and soft palate, nose, lungs, and diaphragm. It is well to read carefully the descriptions of the vocal organs in the text books on the subject and to examine the pictures showing the various parts. A mirror is indispensable in the study of phonetics. A hand mirror is sufficient for the study of one's own vocal apparatus, but a mirror large enough to reflect the faces of student and teacher is better when one is attempting to learn a new language.

THE CHARTS.

In the charts accompanying this article I have made use of the International Phonetic Script. The value of the symbols used is given in the following paragraphs. The letters to the right where they occur in pairs, are those which represent sounds in which the vocal cords are vibrated and are called voiced, sonant, or vocalized sounds, in contrast with the voiceless, surd, or non-vocalized sounds which are to the left. The perpendicular columns divide the sounds according to the place where they are formed, whether on the lips, on the tongue, etc. The horizontal columns divide them according to the kind of formation, whether a stop, a narrow or broad opening, and whether there is or is not an accompanying opening of the nasal passages.

PHONETICS.

VOICED AND VOICELESS.

It is most important that the student get clearly in mind the distinction between the voiced and voiceless sounds. Most of the sounds are found in pairs which are alike in the place and shape of their formation, but which differ in the fact that one is accompanied by the vibration of the vocal cords and the other lacks this. The latter is usually accompanied by a stronger expulsion of the breath; this is called aspiration. The difference between the voiced and the voiceless sounds is brought out clearly with s and z. Care must be taken to give the sounds only and not the names of these letters. Pronounce the words sink and zink, then drop the sounds ink from each word leaving only the initial sound. If the fingers are placed on the "adam's apple" it will be found that there is a strong vibration with the z sound and none with the s sound. This vibration can also be felt on the top of the head and on the ribs when the vocal cords are vibrated. The amount of aspiration or breath can be measured by holding a strip of paper in front of the mouth while giving the sound and seeing how much force is exerted on the paper by the breath. Or it can be gauged by simply holding the hand before the mouth.

ENGLISH CONSONANTS.

p and b are lip stop consonants. "Lip stop" means they are formed with the lips, which entirely stop the breath stream. p is aspirated and not voiced and b is voiced and not aspirated.

t and d are formed by stopping the flow of breath with the tip of tongue on the gums. t is aspirated and not voiced and d is voiced and not aspirated.

k and g are formed with the back of the tongue against the back of the palate where it is soft. k is aspirated and not voiced and g is voiced and not aspirated.

m is formed in the same place as p and b, but is accompanied by nasalization. Nasalization is produced by slightly lowering the velum or soft palate so as to allow the flow of breath through the nose. This can be proven by sounding the m for a few seconds and then grasping the nose, when the sound will cease. m is a voiced sound and may be defined as a nasalized b.

n is formed in the same position as the t and d and like the m is nasalized.

ŋ is the sound usually written ng. It is formed in the same place as k and g, and like m and n is nasalized. By the use of the mirror one can see that in n and ŋ the tongue occupies very different positions. In n the tip of the tongue is up, while in ŋ it is down and the back is raised. ŋ is just as simple a sound as n and is therefore represented by one and not two letters. In ɒ there is no n and no g. In English this sound does not occur as an initial but is found only at the end of syllables. In some of the Chinese dialects it occurs frequently at the beginning of a word, and foreign students who have used it all their lives as a final, find it difficult to use it as an initial, because they try to pronounce an n and then a g.

m is the sound that is written wh as in which. It is the voiceless sound formed in the same way as w. These two sounds are formed by making a very small opening with the lips, which are slightly pursed, and this 'rounding' is accompanied by the raising of the back of the tongue to the u position. Some speakers, including many who live in southern England, make no distinction between these two sounds, and pronounce white and wite in exactly the same way. Whale and wail are given by many as identical.

f and v are formed by placing the lower lip on the upper front teeth but leaving a small opening extending across the mouth. v is voiced and f is not. Try saying fan and van.

θ and ɸ are the two sounds of the English th. The former is voiceless and the latter is voiced. In 'thistle' one finds the voiceless sound and in 'this' the voiced. These sounds are formed by making a long thin opening between the front of the tongue and the upper front teeth. They are simple and not double sounds. They contain no t and no h, and therefore it is confusing to represent them by these symbols.

s and z are formed by making a small opening between the tip of the tongue and the front palate or gums. The first is voiceless and the second is voiced.

f and ʒ are called the 'hushing' sounds in contrast with s and z which are called the 'hissing' sounds. They are the sh sounds; the first is voiceless and the second is voiced. The first is very common, the second occurs less often in English but is found in the initial sound in 'jardiniere'. It is the sound represented by si in the word 'vision'. In such words as jam or jar the j represents two sounds, the first being d and the second the sound ʒ.

j is the sound which is usually written y. In the International Script j is used because that is the symbol used in some of the continental languages to represent this sound. It is formed by the front part of the tongue and the hard palate in a position a little back of f and ʒ. The sound is voiced and the voiceless form of this which is common in some other languages is seldom found in English, though it does occur as the first sound in the word 'hue'.

r is formed by turning the tip of the tongue up and making a narrowing between it and the back edges of the gums. The sound is voiced. This is the position for an initial r, but r as a final is made by turning the tip of the tongue farther back. In southern England and in the southern states of America the final r is not sounded. The text books recommended below should be studied very carefully in connection with this sound. In observing how this sound is formed the use of the mirror is to be recommended. It can also be studied by pronouncing the sound and then without moving the organs inhaling through the mouth. The places which feel the cooling effect of the inhaled breath will show what parts of the tongue and palate are not in contact. This latter test is also to be recommended in connection with l.

l is formed by closing the air passage in the middle of the mouth by placing the tip of the tongue against the gums and the edges of the tongue against the side teeth in front and allowing the vocalized breath to escape at the side of the tongue in the back. Some speakers allow the breath to escape on both sides and some form an opening on only one side. The acoustical effect is the same in both cases. The final l in English resembles many of the English vowels in being a 'glide'. During its utterance the back of the tongue is raised or glided and not left in one position. It is very difficult for foreign students of English to learn to make this glide.

ENGLISH VOWELS.

The triangular position in which the vowels are arranged on the chart is to indicate the highest position of the tongue in forming each vowel, the points of the triangle are i, a and u. With i the tongue is up in front, with a the highest point is in the middle, but the whole tongue is low, and with u the back of the tongue is up. These letters are used with their Italian values. All the vowels are voiced. Their voiceless form occurs in h, and h consists merely of shaping the vocal organs for the vowel which is to follow, and breathing without vibrating the vocal cords. There are as many forms of h as there are vowels. This can be observed by saying ha, he, hi, hu, ho, etc. The sounds of the vowels are modified however not only by the tongue position, but also by the shape of the lips, and it can be varied also by opening or closing the passage from the back of the mouth into the nose. This passage should never be opened in giving any of the English vowels but this is done by some Americans who are then said to "talk through the nose." The nasalized vowels are used in French and by many Chinese when a vowel is preceded or followed by a nasal consonant.

i is a front vowel made between the front of the tongue and the hard palate, and the lips are broad. It is the sound heard in 'eat'.

I is made with the tongue slightly more removed from the palate, and if the finger is placed under the chin an inch from the tip it will be found that the muscles are much less tense than in i. This sound is heard in the word it. It is called the short sound of i, but differs in quality as well as in quantity.

e is formed with the tongue still more removed from the palate, and the lips are less broad. Most English speakers do not give this sound in its pure or simple form, but glide from e to i. It is the vowel sound of 'bate,' or 'ate'.

E is the looser or more open sound resembling e. It is heard in 'net'.

æ is still more open and loose than e and is heard in "bat."

α is the most open sound we have in English, both as to the tongue and the lip position. It is the first vowel in 'bottle'.

ο is made with the tongue further back in the mouth than with α, and the lips form a large round opening. It is the vowel in 'bought'.

ο is formed by raising the back of the tongue and rounding the lips in a smaller opening than in ο. This sound is seldom given in its simple or pure form, but glides into the u sound.

U is the sound heard in the American pronunciation of 'book' or 'put'. It is not common in England. The back of the tongue is higher than in ο but not so high as in u, but the lip rounding is relaxed.

u is formed by placing the back of the tongue very near the soft palate and rounding the lips.

υ is the most common vowel sound in English. It is formed by raising the middle of the tongue slightly above the α position and is given with the vocal organs in a very relaxed state. A large percentage of the ^{UN}accented vowels are pronounced in this way, no matter what the spelling may be. It is the second vowel in finger, rigor, stirrup.

THE NORMAL POSE OR ORGANIC BASIS IN ENGLISH.

In addition to knowing the exact formation of each sound,—and the above description is of course all too brief, and should be supplemented by a careful study of the books on English phonetics,—it is also important that one should know the generalizations regarding the formation of English sounds, and the use of the vocal organs. I state them in terms which show their contrast with the similar generalizations in Pekingese which broadly speaking, may be allowed to represent "Mandarin".

1. In English the lower jaw is frequently thrust forward as well as opened downward.

PHONETICS.

2. The tongue is held further back than in Chinese. The one exception to this is in the θ and ʃ sounds.

3. Aspirated consonants are less strongly aspirated and voiced consonants are more strongly voiced in English than in Chinese.

4. The vocal organs are less tense in English than in Chinese. When a speaker of English hesitates for a word, he frequently gives the sound ə. This is called the colorless, or natural, vowel in English.

MANDARIN PRIMER.

PEKINGESE CONSONANTS.

Having given a resumé of the phonetic value of English sounds, we now give the value of sounds found in Pekingese. It will be noticed that what applies to Pekingese applies to Mandarin sounds generally. Pekingese is chosen because it is the language of the metropolis, and the dialect in which a large number of books is written.

排 白 p' and p are made with closed lips and on opening them there is considerably more breath in p' than the English p . The Chinese p is followed by no explosion of breath, it may be regarded as a breathness p or a voiceless b . It is accompanied by no vibration of the vocal cords and during this formation the glottis is closed. The unaspirated Chinese p , t , k , are like the French p , t , k , which are also unaspirated.

挖 多 t' and t are not formed in the same place as the English t and d . The tip of the tongue is more forward being placed on the teeth sometimes as far down as in the case of the English th . As with the Peking p' and p the t' is strongly aspirated and the t is unaspirated and unvoiced.

枯 姑 k' and k are formed by raising the back of the tongue until it touches the soft palate at a place slightly nearer the front than that of the English k or g . k' is accompanied by a strong flow of breath and k has no flow of breath and no vibration of the vocal chords.

媽 m is formed like the English m by closing the lips. It is voiced and the sound comes out through the nose. The vibration of the vocal chords during this sound does not last as long as in English.

那 安 n is formed like the t' and t on the teeth, otherwise it is like the English n except that the vibration does not last as long as in English.

飢 $ŋ$ is formed in the same place as k' and k and differs from the English $ŋ$ in being voiced during less time.

窰 w the position of the lips in this sound is almost the same in Pekingese as in English. In many of the Chinese dialects the w is entirely lacking, a u being given instead. The rounded opening between the lips is larger in the case of u than in that of w .

伐 f is formed like the English f but it is more strongly aspirated.

撒 司 咨 s and z are formed a little further forward in Chinese than in English. s is more strongly aspirated than in English. z does not occur except in combination with t , and following s in such words as the Pekingese for 'four'. ts without the aspirate consists really of t and z, but the z has very slight voicing. It is also used in ts'u 粗 and tzu 訓. In the former case the word contains three sounds:—t, s, and z. There is no vowel. In changing from s to z the tongue is not moved. The only difference is that the vocal cords are vibrated in z. In tzu there are two sounds:—t and z. The z is prolonged. These syllables are cases of words in which no vowel is found. There are three other examples of this in Pekingese which are noted below. In the Shanghai and related dialects, m and p are also used as complete words without any vowel. In English contrary to the so-called law that every syllable must contain a vowel there are syllables consisting of the sounds m, n or l in which no vowel sound is given.

是 喫 知 f and ㄗ. ㄗ occurs only in combination and not as a simple consonant. In Wade the combination is written ch' or ch as in English, ch is a double sound consisting of t and f both being strongly aspirated. Ch'ih consists of t', f, and ㄗ. There is no vowel in the word. Chih consists of t and ㄗ the latter sound is voiced, but the tongue is not moved from the ㄗ position to any vowel position. In Wade's romanization the combination hs is used before i and u, but I cannot discover that it differs from the sound sh. It is really an f so far as the position of the tongue is concerned. In central and eastern Shantung a real difference exists between sh and hs. The latter is made in the middle of the mouth in the same place where y (phonetic script j) is formed. It is a voiceless y and is the same as the consonant in the German ich. The German sound is used as a final while in Shantung it is an initial. f and ㄗ are formed somewhat nearer the front than the corresponding sounds in English. f is more strongly aspirated than in English.

河 灰 X is the sound which is commonly represented by h but unlike the English h is formed not in the glottis but by bringing the back of the tongue nearer the soft palate and fluttering the uvula against the tongue making a sound similar to the consonant in the German ach. In German this sound is used as a final but in Chinese it is used only as an initial.

人 日 r is formed in about the same place as the initial r in English but accompanied by a z like buzz which is formed by pressing the rolled up tip of the tongue nearer to the hard palate than in English. In final r which occurs in er 而 兒 the tip of the tongue is turned very far back, even further than in the final American r. The word written jih in Wade is really an r sound prolonged. It contains no vowel.

拉 l is formed by pressing the tip of the tongue on the teeth rather than on the gums as in English and allowing the voiced stream of breath to flow out between both sides of the tongue and the back teeth.

MANDARIN PRIMER.

PEKINGESE VOWELS.

The following vowels are found in Pekingese and differ very little from the corresponding vowels in English except that the highest point of the tongue in forming each of them is slightly nearer the front than in the corresponding vowels in English.

迷	i	as in beat.
民	I	„ „ bit.
灰	e	„ „ bate, but without the English glide.
僧 眞	E	„ „ bet.
券	æ	„ „ bat.
拿	a	„ „ bottle.
玻	o	„ „ boat, but without the glide in the end of the vowel.
土 東	u	„ „ boot.

門 蒙 ə occurs before final n and ng. Before final n it is more forward in the mouth than the corresponding sound in English. Before a final ŋ it is further back than the corresponding sound in English.

The three following vowels which occur frequently in Pekingese are not found in English.

於 y which is in the Wade system of romanization written ü is formed by placing the front of the tongue in the position for saying i and the lips in the position for saying u.

河 ɤ is used to represent the sound of the vowel in the word for river commonly written ho or he. In forming this vowel the back of the tongue is raised half way, that is to the regular o position but the lips are broad.

由 u this sound is written in phonetic script to represent the vowel produced when the back of the tongue is raised to the u position but the lips are broad and not rounded. Some, but not all, Pekingese use this sound in giving words of the first and second tones which are romanized iu.

挖 駱 陵 Sounds which are romanized o as in to, lo, so, really should be written as diphthongs, as the o is pronounced as oə or sometimes oa, or oɤ.

In what most authorities recognize as pure Pekingese such words as an, ai, ao, are given without any consonant preceding the vowel. This occurs in the words for peace and love but one does not have to go very far from Peking to discover the use of a variety of consonants put on before the vowel in these words. In Tientsin an n is used, in other regions a j, in other regions there is a consonant given which corresponds very closely to the German guttural r. This is formed by raising the back of the tongue near the soft palate and forcing the voiced stream of breath through the narrowing in such a way as to produce a fluttering of the uvula. In other words this is the voiced sound which corresponds to the non-voiced x described above.

The sound of i occurs without a consonant before it in many words in Pekingese but people from other places often give the y (phonetic script j) sound like the two first sounds in the English word yield.

THE NORMAL POSE OR ORGANIC BASIS IN PEKINGESE.

1. The lower jaw is held back.
2. The tongue position is more to the front than in English.
3. Aspirated consonants are more strongly aspirated than in English.
4. The unaspirated consonants have absolutely no breath and also no voice. They consist of a double stop; the vocal cords are held together while the stop is being made by the lips in p or by the tongue in t and k. Both stops are opened at the same time and the vibration of the vocal cords for the vowel begins immediately.
5. The vocal organs are very tense.
6. To stress any word in a sentence the word is not given with more force but all the elements of its "tone" are brought out most fully.
7. When a Pekingese hesitates for a word he cannot recall he does not say ə as English-speaking people do but draws out the last syllable, says a, or repeats some common phrase such as che ko 這個 or na ko 那個. The common use of ə in English is due to the general laxness of the vocal organs in speaking that language. In Chinese the vocal organs are not lax, so this sound seldom occurs.

SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES EXPERIENCED BY AN ENGLISH-SPEAKING PERSON IN LEARNING TO PRONOUNCE CHINESE CORRECTLY.

The rhythm is of course very difficult to acquire, and cannot be acquired without constant careful repetition after a Chinese teacher. The same is true of the pronunciation of the individual sounds and the acquiring of the Chinese normal pose but a knowledge of the differences between English and Pekingese will make this imitation of the teacher more intelligent. It enables one to call in the assistance of the sense of sight in watching the teacher, and the sense of touch in the mouth in doing the imitating to supplement the hearing with the ears.

1. Learn to aspirate the aspirated consonants more than the unaspirated consonants in English.
2. Learn to give the unaspirated p, t and k without allowing any breath to flow out of the mouth.
3. Learn to form n, tʰ, t and l with the tip of the tongue on the teeth and not on the gums.

MANDARIN PRIMER.

4. Practise giving the vowels y, ɤ, u, as directed above.

5. Learn to form all the consonants and the vowels a little nearer the front of the mouth than in English.

6. Learn to speak with the organs tense and the lower jaw held back. The lower front teeth should never get as far forward as the upper front teeth.

7. Do not conclude that because you have not heard some of the differences which may have been mentioned that they are not real. The ear is often deaf to distinctions in sound which the tongue has not learned to make. Do not conclude that your vocal organs are so shaped that they cannot make some of the Chinese sounds. The differences in the sounds of the two languages are due not to differences in the formation of the organs of the two peoples, but to difference in habit. You can form new habits.

8. The sounds usually written ch'ih 喫, jih 日, tsu 資, often cause difficulty because the student follows the romanization, which in this case is apt to be misleading. There is no vowel in these words.

9. Do not test the accuracy of the statements in this paper by your memory of sounds you have heard but by careful and repeated observation of Chinese and foreigners. Time spent in listening to addresses you do not understand or do not enjoy can profitably be devoted to this.

HOW TO STUDY PEKINGESE AND ENGLISH PHONETICS.

1. Master what has been written on the subject. Noel-Armfield "General Phonetics," and Daniel Jones "The Pronunciation of English," are two of the most helpful books on this subject. The former was written especially for those who have to study oriental languages. Unfortunately for Americans, the books on phonetics describe the sounds heard in southern England, and since the sounds differ in America, this sometimes leads to confusion.

2. Study the formation of individual sounds and normal pose of Chinese and of British and American when each is speaking his native language.

3. Watch foreigners who are speaking Chinese. Those things which sound peculiar and foreign are usually English sounds which can be observed more easily in the midst of familiar sounds. The same is true of watching a Chinese speak English. What is known as a foreign accent is not merely due to accenting or stressing the syllables incorrectly. It consists in substituting the various sounds of one's mother tongue for the similar, yet slightly different, sounds in the language one is attempting to speak.

NOTE.

The numbers which follow the romanized words in the Vocabularies denote those of suitable N. A. which belong to the Noun. See p. 7.

To avoid needless repetition, aspirated words bracketed together in the Vocabularies, have the sign of the aspirate printed over the first spelling only ; e.g.,

Personal Pronouns.

1. One of the principal distinctions between European and Chinese words, is the absence in the latter of such changes as take place in English to indicate the differences between the singular and plural numbers; or the differences in moods and tenses. Chinese characters undergo no change to express these differences. All that inflexion or conjugation helps to make clear in Western languages, is indicated in Chinese either by auxiliary words, or by the position of the word in the sentence. This is illustrated in the following Table of Pronouns:—

百事頭難 In all things the beginning is difficult.

SINGULAR.			PLURAL.

Tih 的 as a Possessive and Descriptive Particle.

2. The order of words is often the same in English and in Chinese, and it will help the student to note carefully the points of agreement and difference: this is often a great aid to memory.

The adjective, as in English, precedes the noun: the word tih, having a descriptive or defining force, is in constant use in adjectival constructions, e.g.,

My things, o-tih tong-hsi 我的東西; Their money, t'a-men-tih ch'ien 他們的錢 and so on with other nouns and pronouns.

Hsie 些 as Sign of Plural.

3. The context in which words are found often decides the question of singular or plural: this is specially so in the case of 是 shì; e.g., the following sentences could be either singular or plural:

These are my pencils; chæ shì o-tih pih 這是我的筆.

Those are his books; na shì t'a-tih shu 那是他的書.

Both 這 chæ and 那 na are made plural by the addition of 些 hsie; as,

These, 這些 chæ-hsie; Those, na-hsie 那些 in which case they immediately precede the noun and not 是 shì as above; e.g.,

These books are his; chæ-hsie shu shì t'a-tih 這些書是他的.

Those things are ours; na-hsie tong-hsi shì o-men-tih 那些東西是我們的.

Shen-mo 甚麼, mo 麼, and puh 不, as Interrogatives.

4. There are many ways of asking questions in Chinese, the simplest of which is by the insertion of 不 puh between verbs or adjectives, or by the use of 甚麼 shen-mo; e.g.,

Yes or no? right or wrong? shì puh shì 是不是.

Will he do it or not? Yes, he will; t'a tso puh tso; t'a tso 他做不做, 他做.

What does he want? t'a iao shen-mo 他要甚麼.

What is that? chæ shì shen-mo 這是甚麼.

Who is that? na shì shen-mo ren 那是甚麼人 or, na shì shui; or, na ih ko 那是誰 or 那一個.

Questions like the above are answered in the affirmative by the repetition of the verb: and in the negative by the negative and the verb: 不 puh negatives the meaning of the word to which it is prefixed. After some affirmative statements 不是 puh shi is added to form a negative interrogative; e.g.,

NOTES.

This is his; chae shi t'a-tih 這是他的.

Is not this his? chae shi t'a-tih puh shi 這是他的不是 or, chae puh shi t'a-tih mo 這不是他的麼.

Note that in these sentences a statement, either positive or negative, is first made; puh shi 不是 or mo 麼 is added to make them interrogative: this is a very common construction. Puh iao 不要 before a verb=do not.

Shui 誰 is Northern, and 那一個 na-ih-ko Southern and Western; similarly 誰的 shui-tih is used in the North, and 那一個的 na-ih-ko-tih in the South for 'Whose?'

Men 們 as Sign of Plural.

5. In English 'them,' and 'they,' are applied indiscriminately to both persons and things. In Chinese there is no 3rd personal pronoun, neuter; 'them' as applied to things is either included in the verb, or the name of the articles in question must be given. The sign of the plural, men 們 given above, is used in speaking of persons, and may be added to either pronouns or proper nouns; e.g., Teachers, hsien-seng men 先生們.

Titles follow the names of persons, and do not, as in English, precede them; e.g., Mr. Ch'ien; Ch'ien hsien-seng 錢先生.

In an enumeration of things or people, 'and' is used sparingly; in conversation a slight pause does duty for it.

NOTES.—a. Hsien-seng 先生 from 先 hsien 'First,' and 生 seng, 'To beget,' is the equivalent of 'gentleman,' and is used as a title of respect.

b. Puh shi 不是 also means 'fault,' 'error,' as in Reading Lesson p. 4, last column.

c. In many places sha or sha-tsi is used as the equivalent of shen-mo 甚麼: there appears to be no character to express it.

[See Lesson XXI.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

What does he want? Nothing; t'a iao shen-mo? t'a puh iao shen-mo.

Translate.—The books, paper and pencils belong to Mr. Ch'ien; the money belongs to those gentlemen. These things are his, are they not? No, those things belong to Mr. Ch'ien. Do you understand Mr. Ch'ien? I understand. That is not his paper, it is mine. Does he want money? No, he wants Mr. Ch'ien's pencil and your paper. Does he want those things? Yes. They do not understand; I do. I do not want to read these books; what books do you want to read? What things do they want? They want money do they not? Are these yours? No. He is right (不錯⁴ puh-ts'o), I am wrong (錯¹ ts'o p. 51). Does he want to read? Does he not understand?

< N.B.—This, and all other translation work should be done first unassisted, and then with the teacher. Do not consult the Key at the end of the book till you have done your best independently of it.

Numerary Adjuncts.

1. Before some nouns in English, idiom demands the use of a special word, as, a piece of music; a plot of ground, &c. But the exception in this matter in English, is the rule in Chinese, inasmuch as every noun takes some word corresponding to piece and plot in the above examples. And such words are always joined to numbers in both English and Chinese. If, for instance, we say, A piece of music; we mean one piece; if, This plot of ground; or, That plot of ground; we leave the word one to be understood—this (one) plot of ground. This is made clear if we try to speak of any number greater than one, for we cannot say 'Two music;' we must say, 'Two pieces of music.' So in questions we say, How many pieces.

讀好書說好話 Read good books, speak good words.

of music? not, How many music? or, Which pieces of music? and not, Which music? We see therefore that such words are used with numbers; and with this, and that; with how many? and which? They are called in this book Numerary Adjuncts (referred to hereafter as N. A.) because they are joined to numbers and added to nouns. They are of two kinds, one of which we might call meaningless, because they do not need to be translated; and the other significant, because they do. There are about fifty in common use; all of which are printed at the end of these Lessons and numbered. The numbers opposite the sounds of the characters in the Vocabularies correspond to these numbers; e.g.; Less. I, *shu*³. The commonest N. A. is 個 ko, which is often made to do duty for others, and is also frequently used with numerals as, Three, 三個 san-ko. It is better and more accurate to use the N. A. which belongs to any given noun, as a correct N. A. is a great help to a poor speaker and also to a bad listener. Ko 個 is constantly used with chae 這 and na 那 for the general 'this one'; 'that one'; when some other N. A. would be more correct.

Following the order given above, let us notice that Numerary Adjuncts are used

a. With definite numbers; e.g.,

Ten cash; shih-ko ch'ien 十個錢.

b. With this, and that; e.g.,

This money is mine; chae-ko ch'ien shì o-tih 這個錢是我的.

That garment is his; na-chien i-shang shì t'a-tu 那件衣裳是他的.

c. With which? and how many? when the latter is represented by chi 幾; e.g.,

How many words? chi-ko tsi 幾個字.

Which three sheets of paper? na san-chang chi 那三張紙.

They are not used

a. Before indefinite numbers; e.g.,

These are my things; chae shì o-tih tong-hsi 這是我的東西 (see Lesson I, 3.)

b. In speaking of weight, dimension and distance; as 'pounds'; 'ounces'; 'feet'; 'inches'; 'miles'; etc., e.g.,

Buy three ounces; mai san liang 買三兩.

c. When something fills, or partly fills, or covers, or partly covers something else; in such a case the first noun becomes the N. A., e.g.,

A table covered with books; ih choh-tsi shu 一桌子書.

A cup of tea; ih uan ch'a 一碗茶.

The noun which accompanies a N. A. is often understood. This is specially the case in answer to questions where it has been already expressed. In replying in English to the question, How many chairs have you? we should say 'Eight,' but in Chinese we should not say 'eight' only, but add the N. A. pa 把 and say 八把 pah pa; e.g.,

How many tables has he? five; t'a iu chi-chang choh-tsi; u-chang. 他有幾張桌子, 五張.

How many pencils does he want? he wants three, t'a iao chi-chi pih; t'a iao san-chi. 他要幾枝筆, 他要三枝.

In asking, Which person? Which thing? we leave the word 'one,' to be understood—Which (one) person? Which (one) thing? but we insert all numbers above 'one'; as, Which four books? The corresponding Chinese idiom requires 'one,' as well as all other numbers to be stated in full, and to be followed by the N. A. belonging to the person or thing asked about; e.g.,

Which two copies do you want? ni iao na liang-pen 你要那兩本.

Numeration.

2. Chinese and European numeration agree in some respects and differ in others. They agree in the numbers 'one' to 'ten,' and in having a separate word for 'hundred,' and for 'thousand.' But Chinese differs in the way in which it combines units. In English we arrange all numbers between eleven and twenty, (with the exception of 'eleven') by putting the lower number first and then adding 'ten;' as 'twelve' which=two and ten; 'thirteen' which=three and ten; etc. Chinese reverses this order, putting the 'ten' first and adding the unit; e.g.,

Eleven; shih-ih 十一.

Twelve; shih-ri 十二; etc., up to nineteen.

In forming multiples of ten, both systems of numeration agree. Thus 'twenty,' in English=two times ten; 'thirty'=three times ten; etc. So in Chinese, twenty, is ri-shih 二十; thirty, san-shih; 三十; etc. All numbers between these multiples of ten are added in the same way; e.g., Twenty-one,=twenty+one; and so in Chinese; ri-shih-ih 二十一. But frequently in Chinese ih 一 is prefixed before 'ten,' shih 十, 'eleven,' being 'one ten one' ih-shih-ih 一十一. This may be omitted in all numbers up to nineteen; but it is well for the beginner to use it throughout, as it minimises the risk of being misunderstood.

Eighteen; ih-shih-pah 一十八.

Alternative numbers do not need 'or' as in English; e.g.,

Three or four; san si 三四.

Thirteen or fourteen; shih san si 十三四.

Forty or fifty; si u shih 四五十.

Note that while the 'ten' is stated first in, say, 'thirteen or fourteen' shih san si 十三四, it is necessarily stated last in, say, 'sixty or seventy;' luh ch'ih shih 六七十; as luh shih ch'ih 六十七 means 'sixty-seven.'

NOTES.

Indefinite numbers may be spoken of as, A few, Ten odd, or, Between ten and twenty, etc. This is done in Chinese by either repeating the whole numbers, or by adding 幾 chi to a whole number as, e.g., between ten and twenty; 十幾 shih chi or 一二十 ih ri shih.

Something under a hundred; 幾十個 chi shih ko.

Between sixty and seventy cash; 六十幾個錢 luh shih chi ko ch'ien.

In mere numeration 二 ri, is commonly used; but 兩 liang refers to things, almost always stands alone, and takes a N. A., e.g.,

Forty-two; 四十二 si shih ri.

Two tables; 兩張桌子 liang-chang choh-tsi.

Prepositional Verbs.

Verbs in Chinese often contain the preposition; this is indicated in the Vocabularies by a dash between the verb and the preposition: 買 mai includes the preposition 'for,' e.g.,

What did you give for that pencil 買那枝筆幾個錢 mai na chi pih chi-ko ch'ien.

NOTE.—When 'this'; or 'that' follows a possessive pronoun, it usually omits ti 的; as,

These things of mine; 我這個東西 o chae-ko-tong-hsi.

That child of his; 他那個孩子 t'a na-ko hai-tsi.

[See Lesson XXII.]

張、把、碗、三個字我不認識、你認識麼。出氣兩個字的意思、你懂不懂。那八九件衣裳是你們的麼、不是、六件是我們的。他買那些書幾個錢一本、九十五個錢一本。你要我寫甚麼字、我要你寫誰字、念字、把字。他買幾張棹子、他買三四張。這把椅子不是你的麼。你有錢麼、我有七八十個錢。這個碗不是你買的麼、不是、我不認識要字、我認識做字。他有幾張紙、他有十幾張。這個思字有幾個意思、有三四個意思。他懂你的意思麼、他不懂。他寫字、我念書。錢先生做甚麼。他要一兩二錢、我要四兩一錢。那個人不是做衣裳麼、是他做九件十件。這一棹子東西是誰的、是你的麼。張先生有兩三碗茶。不要出氣、這個字不出氣、茶字

天花亂墜

1. Note difference between this and English idiom—'張、把、碗, the three characters,' not, the three characters 張、把、碗. The same order obtains in enumeration of names; not, the three gentlemen, Brown, Jones and Robinson, but Brown, Jones and Robinson the three gentlemen.

出氣、懂字不出氣。我的意思你懂不懂。那些先生你不認識麼。買兩個茶碗、三枝筆、八張紙。這些字、你認識那一個、我認識書字。這些衣裳你要那一件、我要這一件、那六件我不要。他要買甚麼、他不要買甚麼。那一個要買這個碗、是你要買麼、不是。張先生有兩個朋友、一個是我認識的、一個是不認識的。我知道這一個有錢、不知道那一個有錢沒有錢。這一個說、我要買兩本書、一把椅子、十幾個碗。那一個說、買這些東西做甚麼。那個人寫字、他寫甚麼字、我不知道、我不識幾個字。我的朋友一個字不認識。你看他寫甚麼字、我看他先寫氣、裳、椅、本、懂、五個字、他寫這五個字做甚麼、我不知道、我不懂他的意思。他是錢先生的朋友、錢先生認識他。買這個碗要幾個錢、他說要二十六七個錢、我就說、買一個碗要二三十個錢、買三碗茶、要幾個錢、他說、這不要幾個錢。八十幾個、八九十個、是一個意思。說一個碗、是說一樣東西、說一碗茶、是說兩樣東西。念不字、不要出氣、出氣、人就不懂你說甚麼。外、誰、東、朋、幾、裳、六個字、你認識不認識。外裳、兩個字、我認識、那四個字我不認識。

Numeration. (Continued.)

1. Numbers ending with a cipher over 100, 1,000 and 10,000 stated absolutely, i.e., with no noun or N. A. following, leave the next lowest denomination to be understood; e.g.,

120; ih-peh ri 一百二.

1,600; ih-ch'ien luk 一千六.

13,000; ih-uan san 一萬三.

Over 100; ih-peh chi 一百幾.

More than 1,000; ih-ch'ien chi 一千幾.

Between 10,000 and 20,000; ih-uan chi 一萬幾.

The last three examples could also be expressed by 一二百 ih ri peh; and so on. See Lesson II, 2.

由淺入深 From things shallow to things profound.

All numbers that do not end with a cipher, or that are followed by a noun need to be stated in full; e.g.,

125; ih-peh ri-shih u 一百二十五.

1,637; ih-ch'ien luh-peh san-shih ch'ih 一千六百三十七.

15,474; ih-uan u ch'ien si-peh ch'ih-shih 一萬五千四百七十四.

125 men; ih-peh ri-shih-u-ko ren 一百二十五個人.

Numbers between 110 and 120 take 'one' — ih; e.g.,

118; ih-peh ih-shih pah 一百一十八.

The units of multiplication for all numbers over 1,000 and 10,000 are 千 ch'ien and 萬 uan respectively. It is incorrect to say, as in English, eleven hundred; or twenty-one thousand; e.g.

1,100; ih-ch'ien ih 一千一.

21,000; ri-uan ih 二萬一.

90,000; chiu-uan 九萬.

1,000,000; ih-peh-uan 一百萬.

Such sums as, One million and a quarter; or, A half, or Three quarters of a million, are not stated as a vulgar fraction, as $1\frac{1}{4}$ million; etc., but as a decimal, 1.25 million; etc., as below. Large whole numbers often dispense with the N. A.; e.g.,

Two million and a quarter; ri-peh ri-shih-u uan 二百二十五萬.

Three million and a half; san-peh u-shih uan 三百五十萬.

Four million and three quarters; si-peh ch'ih-shih-u uan 四百七十五萬.

Six thousand people; luh-ch'ien ren 六千人.

Indefinite numbers under 1,000 and 10,000 follow the same rule as similar numbers under 100; see Lesson II, 2; e.g.,

Something under 1,000; chi peh 幾百.

A few thousands; chi ch'ien 幾千.

Less than 100,000; chi uan 幾萬.

The omission of one or more ciphers in the midst of numbers is indicated in Chinese by 零 ling; e.g.,

105; ih-peh ling u 一百零五.

1,006; ih-ch'ien ling luh 一千零六.

10,009; ih-uan ling chiu 一萬零九.

10,503; ih-uan ling u-peh ling san 一萬零五百零三.

In cases where tens and hundreds follow the omission of the digit, they must be expressed in full; e.g.,

86,040; pah-uan luh ch'ien ling si-shih 八萬六千零四十.

60,500; luh-uan ling u peh 六萬零五百.

Infinitive Mood formed by Verb and Noun.

2. The word To speak, 說話 shoh-hua, is composed of 說⁵ shoh, 'To speak', and 話⁴ hua, 'Words,' a verb and a noun; the latter being the Object of 說 shoh. But it is not uncommon to find such combinations used as the equivalent of the Infinitive Mood; e.g., 寫字 hsie-tsi 'To write'; 念書 nien-shu 'To read'; 吃飯 'To eat' (吃¹ ch'ih, 'To eat; to drink'; 飯⁴ fan, 'Food'; cooked rice'). In such cases the noun is a defining word, and all qualifying words precede it; e.g.,

He writes Chinese; t'a hsie Chong-kueh tsi 他寫中國字.

He eats foreign food; t'a ch'ih uai-kueh fan 他吃外國飯.

Such combinations are indicated in the Vocabularies by an asterisk.

Potential Mood indicated by 得.

3. The word 'To know,' 曉得 hsiao-teh—which is used more in the South than in the North—is composed of 曉 hsiao, 'Clear; to understand;' and 得 teh, 'To obtain.' This latter is also an auxiliary verb, and is largely used in forming the Potential Mood. When permission or prohibition ('may'; 'may not') is indicated, it stands alone after the verb or the negative: when ability or inability ('can'; 'cannot') is spoken of, it is followed by some word suitable to the connection and sanctioned by usage; e.g.,

May it be done? Yes; tso teh tso puh teh? 做得做不得, 做得.

May he go? No; t'a ch'ü teh ch'ü puh teh? 他去得去不得, 去不得.

Can you do it? Yes; ni tso teh lai tso puh lai? 你做得來做不來, 做得來.

Can he write this word? No; ch'æ-ko tsü t'a hsie teh-lai hsie puh-lai? 這個字他寫得來寫不來, 寫不來.

Can they drink Chinese tea? Yes; Chong-kueh ch'a t'a-men ch'ih teh lai ch'ih puh-lai? 中國茶他們吃得來吃不來, 吃得來.

Where the Object is stated as in the last two sentences it comes first in the sentence.

Note that the interrogative is formed by adding the negative form to the positive statement as in Lesson I, 4; and in the following Section.

Iu 有 in Interrogative Statements.

4. Many questions relating to possession are asked by 有 iu, followed by 沒有 muh-iu or 麼 mo; e.g.,

Has he any money? No; t'a iu ch'ien muh iu? 他有錢沒有, 沒有.

Is there anybody there? No; iu ren tsai-na-ti muh iu? 有人在那裏沒有, 沒有.

Have you any pencils? Yes; ni iu pih mo? 你有筆麼, 有.

Shī 是: where omitted.

5. The verb 是 shī is used much more sparingly in Chinese than in English. It is not used often between a noun or a pronoun and a verb; nor before prepositions and adverbs of place; e.g.,

He is writing, t'a hsie tsī 他寫字.

Where are my things? o-tih tong-hsi tsai-na-li 我的東西在那裏.

They are here, tsai-chæ-li 在這裏.

Note in the last example that no word is used for 'they.' In such sentences 'they' is either understood, or is included in the verb, or the names of the things in question must be repeated; e.g.,

Whose are these things? they are mine; chæ shī shui-tih tong-hsi; shī o-tih 這是誰的東西, 是我的.

Tsī 子 and 兒 rī added to Nouns.

6. In Lesson II 子 tsī was added to both 棹 chōh and 椅 i. It is very commonly added to nouns, especially in the South: in the North 兒 rī is largely used as its equivalent. When 兒 rī is preceded by a word ending in 'n' the 'n' is almost merged in the 兒 rī as in 錢兒 ch'ien-rī, which is colloquially pronounced ch'ien. 'Here' and 'there' are often altered to 在這兒 tsai-chæ-rī, 在那兒 tsai-na-rī.

Adverbs, position of.

7. Adverbs denoting point of time, or time when, as, I will go to-morrow, come before the verb: those denoting duration of time or time how long, as, I stayed there two days, come after the verb. See Lesson VI, Section 6, for further illustrations.

Why does he not come? T'a uei-shen-mo puh lai? 他爲甚麼不來.

Why did he use that expression? T'a uei-shen-mo shōh na-chū hua 他爲甚麼說那句話.

Liao 了 as sign of Past Tense.

8. The past tense is much more loosely defined in Chinese than in English. If, in the nature of the case, the act must have been in the past, the tense sign is often omitted; the context making the meaning obvious. On the other hand there are certain forms and connections which demand 了 liao; these must be learned by practice. In colloquial, 了 liao is frequently abbreviated to la or loh at the end of a sentence; e.g.,

Have you finished writing? Yes; hsie-liao muh iu? hsie-liao 寫了沒有, 寫了.

Have you bought the basin? Yes; mai-liao uan mo? mai la 買了碗麼, 買了.

MANDARIN PRIMER.

NOTES.—a. In the North 沒 muh is constantly used alone before verbs, instead of 沒有 muh-iu.

b. In some connections 在 tsai is omitted from 在那裏 tsai-na-li; e.g., 他是那裏人 ta shì na-li ren? Where is he a native of?

c. In colloquial, 來 lai is pronounced la in the North when it is used as a substitute for 幾 chì. Unlike 幾 chì, it must be joined to some other number or denomination, it cannot be used alone; e.g.,

More than twenty men; rì-shìh la ko ren 二十來個人.

d. 刀 Tao alone is often used for 'a sword'; 刀子 tao-tsī for 'a knife.'

e. In the North, 得了 teh loh and 中了 chong-loh are used as the equivalent of "That will do"; "All right," etc.

f. 吃 Ch'ih is also written 喫: 回 is also written 回.

[See Lesson XXIII.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

Do you understand this sentence? ch'ae-ch'ü hua ni tong puh tong?

He is drinking tea; t'a ch'ih ch'a.

Adjectives: Position and Use.

1. Adjectives may either precede or follow the noun. When they precede, they may be said to be used distinctively, pointing out something that distinguishes the noun; when they follow the noun, they are used predicatively; this, it may be noticed, is as it is in English; e.g.,

A small basin; ih-ko hsiao uan 一個小碗.

That small basin is good; na-ko hsiao uan hao 那個小碗好.

He is a good man; t'a shi ko hao ren 他是個好人.

This thing is red; chæ-ko tong-hsi shi hong-tih 這個東西是紅的.

一回生兩回熟 Unacquainted with the first time, familiar with the second.

From these examples it will be seen that 是 shì may or may not be used. No definite rule can be laid down about this, save that when the adjective follows 是 shì it almost invariably takes 的 tih, and rarely, if ever, when it follows the N. A. as in the third example.

Adjectives may have 的 tih joined to them, tih 的 in this connection having the force of 'one', or 'ones', according to the context; e.g.,

He has two good ones; t'a iu liang-ko hao tih 他有兩個好的.

I don't want small ones, I want large ones; o puh iao hsiao tih, o iao ta tih 我不要小的, 我要大的.

I want to buy good ones; o iao mai hao tih 我要買好的.

The large one is his, the small one is mine; ta tih shì t'a-tih, hsiao tih shì o-tih 大的是他的, 小的是我的.

He has two red boxes: one large, one small; t'a iu liang-k'eo hong hsiang-ts'i, ih-k'eo ta tih, ih-k'eo hsiao tih 他有兩口紅箱子, 一口大的一口小的.

Numeral Adjectives.

Numeral adjectives are changed from cardinal to ordinal by prefixing 第 tì; as, 'one'; 'first'; e.g.,

One chapter; ih chang 一章.

First chapter; ti-ih chang 第一章.

Which chapter? na-ih chang 那一章.

Which chapter?—in order; ti chi chang 第幾章.

First, either in order or superiority; ti-ih 第一.

Note that chang 章 takes no N. A.

Pa 把: Position and Use.

2. The word 把 pa, in one of its most common uses, does not need to be translated, but simply introduces the Direct Object of the verb; e.g.,

Bring that thing here; pa na-ko tong-hsi na-lai 把那個東西拿來.

Take away this cup; pa chae-ko uan na-ch'ü 把這個碗拿去.

In these examples the Object is in its simplest form—'thing', 'cup.' All enlargements may be added while keeping the same construction; e.g.,

Take away that large thing; pa na-ko ta tong-hsi na-ch'ü 把那個大東西拿去.

Bring my large foreign box here; pa o-tih ta uai-kueh hsiang-ts'i na-lai 把我的大外國箱子拿來.

Bring two cups of Chinese tea; pa liang uan Chong-kueh ch'a na-lai 把兩碗中國茶拿來.

In translating, begin with the verb that follows 把 pa: all that lies between it and the verb is its simple or enlarged Object.

Adverbs and Prepositions.

3. The same word may, in English or Chinese, be either an adverb or a preposition; e.g.,

He is outside; t'a tsai-uai-t'eo 他在外頭.

He is outside the door; t'a tsai men uai-t'eo 他在門外頭.

In the first sentence no change is made in 在外頭 tsai-uai-t'eo; in the second it is split into two parts and the noun it governs is inserted between them. The same construction is followed when the noun or pronoun has qualifying words preceding it; e.g.,

He is outside the front door; t'a tsai ta men wai 他在大門外.

They are outside Mr. Chang's front door; t'a-men tsai Chang hsien-seng-tih ta men uai-t'eo 他們在章先生的大門外頭.

In the first sentence 頭 t'eo is omitted; this makes a better style in many connections, where it would be quite accurate to use the full form.

In speaking of places, 在 tsai alone is used; otherwise both 在 tsai and 上 shang are used; e.g.,

He has a son in China; t'a iu ko ri-tsi tsai Chong-kueh 他有個兒子在中國.

The cup is on the table; uan tsai choh-tsi shang 碗在桌子上.

The word 'six' is not in the book; luh tsi puh tsai shu shang 六字不在書上.

For the sake of euphony, ih is omitted before 個 ko in the first sentence; this is very common; e.g.,

That is a good thing; na shi ko hao tong-hsi 那是個好東西.

Lai 來 and Ch'ü 去 as Principal and Auxiliary Verbs.

4. Both 來 lai and 去 ch'ü are used as principal and auxiliary verbs. As auxiliaries they may be used with a large number of verbs, conveying the idea of motion, and may either be joined to them, as 拿來 na-lai, where 拿 na, meaning 'To take; to take hold of,' is the principal verb; or may be separated by the Object, with or without enlargements; e.g.,

Take this—to somebody; pa chae-ko song-ch'ü 把這個送去.

Take this foreign garment to Mr. Ch'ien; pa chae-chien uai-kueh i-shang song tao Ch'ien hsien-seng na-li ch'ü 把這件外國衣裳, 送到錢先生那裏去.

In such a construction as that of the last sentence, 到 tao, indicating 'motion to'; 'direction,' takes the place of 在 tsai; the idiom being, 'take to Mr. Ch'ien there go.' The following will illustrate this use of 到 tao;

Has he arrived? Yes; t'a tao-liao muh iu? tao-liao 他到了沒有, 到了.

Where are you going? Over there; ni tao (or 上 shang) na-li ch'ü? tao na pien ch'ü 你到那裏去, 到那邊去.

Potential Mood indicated by teh 得.

5. In Lesson III, Section 3, one use of 得 teh was explained; what was said there applies to both 看見 k'an-chien and 聽見 t'ing-chien, which are composed of 看 k'an 'To see,' and 聽 t'ing 'To hear,' joined to 見 chien; e.g.,

Can you see? No; k'an teh chien, k'an puh chien? k'an puh chien 看得見 看不見, 看不見.

Can you hear? Yes; t'ing teh chien, t'ing puh chien? t'ing teh chien 聽得見 聽不見, 聽得見.

May I look at this? No; chae-ko tong-hsi o k'an teh k'an puh teh? k'an puh teh 這個東西我看得看不得, 看不得.

You mustn't listen to that expression; na-chü-hua ni t'ing puh teh 那句話你聽不得.

Hao-liao 好了 and Uan-liao 完了 indicating Completion.

6. The completion of an action is indicated by 好了 hao-liao, or 完了 uan-liao, which come after the verb; e.g.,

He has finished writing; t'a hsie uan-liao 他寫完了.

Has he finished the chair? na-pa i-tsi t'a tso hao-liao muh in 那把椅子他做好了沒有.

When an action is completed and is followed by another, 就 chiu indicates the sequence. It thus denotes the order of time, and may often be translated by 'when'; 'thereupon'; etc.; e.g.,

He left when he had finished his food; t'a ch'ih uan-liao fan chiu ch'ü 他吃完了飯就去.

When he had finished speaking he went outside the door; t'a shoh uan-liao hua, chiu tao men uai ch'ü 他說完了話就到門外去.

He read Chinese books as soon as he arrived; t'a ih lai chiu nien Chong-kueh shu 他一來就念中國書.

Shang 上 and Tao 到 as Auxiliaries.

7. In the North, 上 shang is used as an Auxiliary after many verbs: in the West 到 tao is frequently used instead; e.g.,

Shut the door; pa men kuan-shang 把門關上 (or 到 tao).

He has put on that garment; na-chien i-shang t'a ch'uan-shang-liao 那件衣裳他穿上了.

NOTE.—In such words as 在外頭 tsai-uai-t'eo Southern and Central dialects prefer t'eo 頭; while in the North 邊 pien commonly replaces it.

[See Lesson XXIII.]

我 到 了 中 國 就 請 先 生
 你 的 東 西 在 我 這 裏
 他 就 來 不 在 這 裏 在 外 頭
 你 的 書 話 不 好 聽

READING LESSON IV. 四第要輯

Speech in the Making.

章先生大兒子上關
上去看朋友他到了那
裏沒有看見朋友他就
問錢先生的小兒子看
見來沒有他說沒有看
見有一個人坐在那裏
說有兩個人在外頭不
知道是不是一個穿中
國衣裳一個穿外國衣
裳大的送了一口小箱
子來放在大門裏頭就
回到外頭去對那小的

言詞初編

1. Fang 放; To place, to put. V. 1.

說了幾句外國話，不知道說的甚麼話，說完了兩個人就去，把三個小紅茶碗拿來，送我一個，把那兩個放在棹子上，大的對小的說，你要那一個，小的說，我要這個好的，大的就說，好，你要就拿去，我可以把我這個碗拿到我朋友那裏去送他，看他要不要。章先生的兒子聽見這話，就到外頭去，看看他們在不在那裏，一到關上的大門外，就看見他們兩個人坐在對門口說話，但聽不見他們說甚麼，他們一看見他就說，在裏頭有張牀，你可以來坐坐，把你的東西送到這裏來，這幾句話說好了，他就到他們那裏去，手裏拿着一本書，是他的一個朋友送他的，他們看見書就說，這個書好，買幾個錢，他說不是買的，是人送我的，你們沒有念過麼？他們說沒有，也沒有看見過，他就說，在我的大箱子裏還有兩本大的，我可以回去拿來，送你們一個人一本，他們說好，你可以去，他就去，到了就關上門，開了箱子，

1. Hao 好 is constantly used as an expression of approval, and may be translated by 'very good'; 'all right,' etc.

2. Ni iao 你要 'If you want it': supposition is often contained in the construction of the sentence and needs no special word.

2a. K'o-i 可以³; May as well; will. L. 5.

3. Ih tao 一到 As soon as he arrived at.

4. Tan 但 But. L. 8.

明 ² 天 ¹ ming-t'ien	To-morrow.	前 ² 年 ² ch'ien-nien	Year before last.

Time.

1. Time generally, without reference to any definite period, is spoken of as 時候 shì-heo; e.g.,

What time? When? shen-mo shì-heo 甚麼時候.

At that time; na shì-heo 那時候.

At this time; chæ shì-heo 這時候.

The indefinite past is indicated by 從前 ts'ong-ts'ien, or 早 tsao; e.g.,

He formerly had a box; t'a ts'ong-ch'ien in hsiang-tsï 他從前有箱子.

He came some time ago; t'a tsao lai-liao 他早來了.

The present time is denoted by 現在 hsien-tsai, which answers to, 'At this time; at present,' etc.; e.g.,

He is eating just now; t'a hsien-tsai ch'ih fan 他現在吃飯.

He will not go at present; t'a hsien-tsai puh ch'ü 他現在不去.

The future, without reference to any specified time, is usually denoted by 要 iao, or 快 k'uai, or at times by the two together: they more generally indicate a proximate future rather than a distant one. Often the mention of some definite future time dispenses with the need of any special word; e.g.,

He will be here soon; t'a k'uai iao lai 他快要來.

He says he will go; t'a shoh iao ch'ü 他說要去.

He will go to-morrow; t'a ming-t'ien ch'ü 他明天去.

Order of Time.

2. English idiom, in speaking of the order of time, usually begins with the lowest denomination; as hours, days, weeks, etc. Chinese idiom on the contrary begins with the highest; as years, months, days.

Years take no N. A. unless they are preceded by an adjective.

When a lower denomination follows a higher 零 ling is used.

He had no money during those years; na-hsie nien t'a muh in ch'ien 那些年他沒有錢.

幼不學老何爲 If one does not learn in youth, what will one do when old?

Five or six years; u luk nien 五六年.

Two years and six months; rī nien, ling luk-ko üeh 二年零六個月.

Four years ago; tsao sī nien 早四年.

Months take the N. A. 個 ko when spoken of by number, as 'One month'; 'Two months'; etc.; but omit both it and 第 tī when spoken of in order; e.g.,

He has been here two months; t'a lai-liao liang-ko üeh; 他來了兩個月.

He says he will come in the third month; t'a shoh san üeh lai 他說三月來.

Three months and a half; san-ko pan üeh 三個半月.

Days, like years, take no N. A. In speaking of them from the 1st to the 10th of the month inclusive 初 ts'u must be prefixed both in positive and interrogative forms; e.g.,

Three or four days; san u tien 三五天.

Ten odd days; shih chi tien 十幾天.

He went on the 8th of this month; t'a chae üeh ts'u pah ch'ü 他這月初八去.

The 9th of the 3rd month last year; ch'ü-nien san üeh ts'u chiu 去年三月初九.

What is the day of the month?—from 1st to 10th; chin-t'ien ts'u chi 今天初幾.

What is the day of the month?—from 10th to 20th; chin-t'ien shih chi 今天十幾.

What is the day of the month?—from 20th to 30th; chin-t'ien rī-shih chi 今天二十幾.

To-day is the 6th; chin-t'ien ts'u luk 今天初六.

Time—Past and Future.

3. A definite period of time regarded as having passed, is denoted by 早 tsao, 'early'; as yet to come, by 過 ko, 'to pass'; e.g.,

Two months ago; tsao liang-ko üeh 早兩個月.

He was here a few days ago; t'a tsao chi tien tsai-chae-li 他早幾天在這裏.

Go in a month from now; ko ih-ko üeh ch'ü 過一個月去.

How many years ago? tsao chi nien 早幾年.

Periods of time are divided into 'last' or 'next' by the words 'upper' 上 shang; and 'lower' 下 hsia; they form part of the stream of time, the earlier being the upper reach, the later the lower; e.g.,

Forenoon; shang (or t'eo) pan tien 上 (or 頭) 半天.

Afternoon; hsia pan t'ien 下半天.

First half of year; shang (or t'eo) pan nien 上 (or 頭) 半年.

Last half of year; hsia pan nien 下半年.

Last month; shang üeh 上月.

Next month; hsia üeh 下月.

The years of a monarch's reign do not take 第 ti; e.g.,

The 2nd year of Hsüen-t'ong; Hsüen-t'ong ri nien 宣統二年.

The 4th day of the 8th month of the 2nd year of Hsüen-t'ong;
Hsüen-t'ong ri nien pah üeh ts'u si 宣統二年八月初四

‘Each’, ‘every’ as applied to Time.

4. ‘Each,’ ‘every’, as applied to time is expressed by repeating the noun twice. ‘Morning’, ‘evening’ follow the name of the day to which they belong; e.g.,

He comes every day; t'a t'ien t'ien lai 他天天來.

He goes every month; t'a üeh üeh ch'ü 他月月去.

He goes there every year; t'a nien nien tao na-li ch'ü 他年年到那裏去.

This evening; chin-t'ien uan-shang 今天晚上.

To-morrow morning; ming-t'ien tsao-ch'en 明天早晨.

He reads every morning; t'a t'ien t'ien tsao-ch'en nien-shu 他天天早晨念書.

The Imperative as modified by the Use of K'o-i 可以.

5. The abrupt use of an Imperative is often modified by the use of 可以 k'o-i. It is often the equivalent of, ‘That will do’; ‘Thank you’; etc.

You may go; ni k'o-i ch'ü 你可以去.

You had better call him; k'o-i ch'ü chiao t'a 可以去叫他.

Will it do? Yes; k'o-i puh k'o-i? k'o-i 可以不可以, 可以.

6. The idiomatic way of expressing ‘Less than’ is, ‘not to arrive at’, 不到 puh tao; e.g.,

In less than a year; puh tao ih nien 不到一年

NOTES.—a. Tsao-shang 早上 is also used for ‘morning’.

b. It is advisable to avoid the excessive use of 你 ni, as it has a tendency to indicate disrespect.

c. Ch'ing 請 answers to ‘Please’; ‘Will you kindly;’ etc. A discriminating use of it is of great value, especially in speaking to educated people.

d. T'iao 挑 is used only of the action of carrying a load on a pole by one man in Chinese fashion.

e. Chiao 叫 is used of the cries of most animals, and the singing of birds.

[See Lesson XXIV.]

I gave him the larger half; o chih t'a ih ta pan.

Call her; chiaio t'a lai.

Tell him to come now; chiaio t'a hsien-tsai lai.

I heard him say he would go next year; o t'ing t'a shoh iao ming-nien ch'u.

Translate:—Three years ago I was abroad; now I am in China; in a year's time I do not know where I shall go. He said yesterday that he would carry (挑 t'iao) that large red box here to-day; he has not brought it; why is this? he is now outside the door; tell him to bring it along. At that time I gave him 506 cash; now I give him 20,000; will this do? Yes. It does not matter whether he goes or not; (if) he goes to-morrow morning it will do. He comes and sits with me here every evening; he is now below; you had better invite him to come up. Five years, four months and three days ago he gave me this excellent garment. You had better go and ask him for that large tea cup; he is not there now; how will it do to go to-morrow morning? In three years and a half I will go and see his eldest son; is he abroad now? No, he is in China.

1. Na ch'uh...lai 拿出來 Ch'uh-lai is here an auxiliary verb joined to na. It is a common idiom to place the Object of the principal verb between the parts of the auxiliary, as here 兩件外國東西 being the Object of 拿.

2. Hao-i 好意 A kind thought.

3. Tai 帶 To bring with.

3a. Chiu-shi 就是 Even; and also. Lesson 9.

WORDS FOR EXERCISE IN COMPOSITION.

The Vocabulary given below is intended to furnish the student with material for composing sentences of his own. Taking any of the words, or any of the thoughts suggested by them, let him compose sentences by the aid of the facts and principles laid down in the foregoing lessons and go over them with his teacher. The sentences already given will furnish models, according to which he may construct others. In this way he will acquire a power of speaking that can be obtained in no other way; and will at the same time have material with which to interest his teacher and make him talk. His own thoughts will thus shape themselves according to the forms and idioms peculiar to the language—the true secret of speaking it well.

The Four Seasons.

1. The Four Seasons are spoken of as 四季 sī chi; when they are simply enumerated, as Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter, they stand alone, 春 ch'uen 夏 hsia 秋 ch'iu 冬 tong. When spoken of as distinct periods they are usually followed by 天 t'ien, which roughly corresponds to 'time' in 'Summer-time'; e.g.,

In the winter of last year; ch'ü-nien tong-t'ien 去年冬天.

In the summer of this year; chin-nien hsia-t'ien 今年夏天.

Next spring; ming-nien ch'uen-t'ien 明年春天.

Chien 間 as applied to Time.

2. References to the length which time continues, as expressed in English by 'during', is spoken of as 'a space'; 'an interval'; 間 chien, affixed to the noun in question. This is principally confined to months and years; e.g.,

During the reign of Kuang-hsü; Kuang-hsü nien chien 光緒年間.

During the 8th month; pah üeh chien 八月間.

He came during the night; t'a ie chien (or li) lai 他夜間 (or 裏) 來.

不怕慢 只怕站 Do not be afraid of going slowly, but of standing still.

Names of Months.

3. As mentioned in Lesson V, Section 2, the months of the year are known as 'second,' 二月 ri üeh; 'third' 三月 san üeh; etc. The 1st and 12th months form an exception, both having special names; the 11th month also sometimes takes a special name, though it more commonly follows the above rule; e.g.,

First month; cheng üeh 正月.

Eleventh month; tong (or shih-ih) üeh 冬 (or 十一月) 月

Twelfth month; lah üeh 臘月.

Days of the Week.

4. Intercourse with foreigners has given rise to a term for 'weeks,' based on the fact that the first day of the period is devoted to worship. This is 禮拜 li-pai, and so many weeks are spoken of as so many 禮拜 li-pai. 'How many weeks?' is, How many 禮拜 li-pai. The days of the week are reckoned from this as follows:—

Sunday; li-pai 禮拜 or li-pai ri or tien 禮拜日 (or 天.)

Monday; li-pai-ih 禮拜一.

Tuesday; li-pai-ri 禮拜二; and so on.

A week; ih-ko li-pai 一個禮拜.

Two weeks; liang-ko li-pai 兩個禮拜; and so on.

This week; chæ-ko li-pai 這個禮拜.

Last week; shang li-pai 上禮拜.

Next week; hsia li-pai 下禮拜.

This Monday; i.e., the Monday of this week; and so on with other days; chæ-ko li-pai-ih 這個禮拜一.

Last Monday; i.e., the Monday of last week, and so on; shang li-pai-ih 上禮拜一.

Next Monday; hsia li-pai-ih 下禮拜一; and so on.

A few weeks ago; tsao chi-ko li-pai 早幾個禮拜.

What is the day of the week? chin-tien li-pai chi? 今天禮拜幾.

In less than a week; puh-tao ih-ko li-pai 不到一個禮拜.

In a few weeks' time; ko chi-ko li-pai 過幾個禮拜.

'Forenoon,' and 'afternoon' follow the same rule as 'morning' and 'evening,' Lesson V, 4.; e.g.,

Tuesday afternoon; li-pai-ri hsia-pan-t'ien 禮拜二下半天.

Last Wednesday morning; shang li-pai-san tsao-shang 上禮拜三早上.

Time, as indicated by Watches and Clocks.

5. Tien 點, 'A point,' stands for an hour by the clock; so many hours being so many points of the clock. Half hours are 'half the points,' quarter hours are the eighth of a Chinese hour, which equals two English hours, and minutes are so many 'parts.' Time past or before the hour is so much time less than, or past; e.g.,

What's o'clock? chi tien chong 幾點鐘.

One o'clock; or, One hour; ih-tien chong 一點鐘; and so on with the other hours.

Half past one; ih-tien-pan chong 一點半鐘; and so on.

Five minutes past one; ih-tien chong ko u fen 一點鐘過五分; and so on.

Quarter past one; ih-tien chong ko ih-k'eh 一點鐘過一刻; and so on.

Twenty minutes to one; ih-tien chong shao ri-shih fen 一點鐘少二十分; and so on.

Tih 的 forming Defining Clauses.

6. In Lesson I, Section 2, 的 tih was said to have 'a descriptive or defining force.' This applies to its use at the end of clauses, whether they are adjectival or adverbial; e.g.,

The things that he bought; t'a mai-tih tong-hsi 他買的東西, i.e., the-he-bought things, 的 tih making all that goes before the noun descriptive of it; compare in English, 'the never-to-be-forgotten day.'

This is what he said; chce shī t'a shoh tih hua 這是他說的

These are the men from abroad; chce shī uai-kueh lai tih ren 這是外國來的

They came one at a time; t'a-men ih-ko ih-ko tih lai 他們一個一個的來

He will come to-morrow; t'a ming-t'ien lai 他明天來

I stayed there two years; o tsai-na-li ko-liao liang nien 我在那裏過了兩年

When he came; t'a lai tih shī-heo 他來的時候

When he was in China, t'a tsai Chong-kueh tih shī-heo 他在中國的時候

The money that is in the box; hsiang-tsū li tih ch'ien 箱子裏的錢

The two men that are outside the door, men uai tih liang-ko ren 門外的兩個人

NOTES.—a. In speaking of things that are difficult to move, 不動 puh-tong, and 得動 teh-tong are more suitable than 不來 puh lai, or 得來 teh-lai.

b. Tih 的 is often omitted when a pronoun is used in the possessive, and more especially in the case of a double possessive; e.g., My elder brother's child; o ko-ko-tih hai-tsi 我哥哥的孩子; instead of o-tih ko-ko-tih hai-tsi 我的哥哥的孩子

c. Chi 季 and k'eh 刻 take no N. A.

d. Tsi 子 is sometimes added to 日 rìh, especially when preceded by an adjective.

e. Chinese houses are divided into so many divisions, or 間 chien; this is taken as the unit of measurement in speaking of their size.

f. In speaking of time, hsia 下 and chü 句 often take the place of tien 點; e.g., Six o'clock; luh hsia chong 六下鐘.

g. There is considerable variety in the expressions used for 'When'?. The long form shen-mo shì-heo 甚麼時候 is probably in use everywhere, but local forms take its place in many parts. In Szechwan for example sha (or sha-tsü) shì-heo is in constant use; while on the lower Yangtze and in the North to-huei-rì 多會兒 and mo huei-rì 麼會兒 are current.

[See Lesson XXV.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

When did he arrive? Two hours ago; t'a to-tsan tao? tsao liang tien chong.
He went some time ago; t'a tsao-i ch'ü.

It is cold in the winter; hot in the summer; tong-t'ien leng, hsia-t'ien reh.
All in good time; man-man-tih lai.

Bring a pot of hot water at 9 o'clock; chiu tien chong na ih-hu reh shui lai.
He will be here by and by; t'a heo-lai iao lai.

Where is the clock that he bought yesterday? t'a tsok-tien mai tih chong tsai-na-li?

Tell him to open the door; chiao t'a k'ai men.

He brought his son with him; t'a pa t'a-tih rì-tsü tai lai.

I cannot get this shoe on; chæ-chi hsiai o ch'uan puh shang.

I will come and see you next Wednesday afternoon; o hsia li-pai-san hsia-pan-t'ien iao lai k'an ni.

He went during the 12th month; t'a lah üeh chien ch'ü.

Translate:—Do you remember the Chinese sentence that I spoke to you yesterday? No. There is a long street outside the city; take this foreign letter there, and afterwards call two men to come and carry (抬 t'ai) away this large box. Two men cannot carry it; how will it do (if) I call four men? Very well. This is the money that he gave me; the pair of shoes that his youngest son brought I put on the table. That place is wet, you must not sit there; this place is dry, you had better sit here. Bring a jug of hot water this evening at a quarter to nine; I want to wash my feet. Who is the man that struck him? is it not the man that came last Monday? The ancients had neither watches nor clocks; now we have both. This water is deep, you mustn't cross; that is shallow, you may cross. Is this the character that he engraved last week? What is the time now? Five and twenty minutes to four. He does not travel during the night. It is past noon; it will soon be 2 o'clock.

他多偕到, 早兩點鐘
 他早已去
 冬天冷, 夏天熱
 慢慢的鐘來拿一壺熱水來
 九點後昨天開門的兒子帶來
 他叫他把他鞋我穿不上
 這隻鞋我下禮拜三, 下半天, 要來看你
 他臘月間去

Small Talk.

談古論今³

二人對坐閒談，說古時候的人沒有鐘表，外國人沒有，中國人也沒有，城裏城外沒有鐘表舖，問人幾點鐘，他就不曉得你說甚麼。道光年間纔有人把鐘表帶到中國來，但買的人少，有錢的人買得起，沒有錢的人買不起。那時候人也不知道一個禮拜是甚麼意思，光知道從正月到臘月一年有十二個月，一年有四季，就是春、夏、秋、冬，夏天熱，冬天冷。若對人說，今天是禮拜幾，他就不懂你的意思。現在人會作鐘表，知道幾點鐘，也知道那一天是禮拜四，上禮拜四是初幾，下禮拜三是十幾，出來走走也帶着表。早晨七點鐘少一刻起來，晌午一點鐘過二十分，喫中飯，八點半少五分，喫早飯，晚上六七點鐘，喫晚飯。我上禮拜六

Chih 給 as Sign of Indirect Object.

1. In Lesson IV, Section 2 把 pa was defined as the sign of the Direct Object. Chih 給 in like manner may be regarded as a sign of the Indirect Object, thus partly corresponding to the words 'to,' and 'for' in such sentences as, 'Write two characters for me;' or, 'Take the book to him.' Preceding the verb it may be translated by 'for,' following it by 'to': it stands immediately before the Object; e.g.,

Buy two towels for me; chih o mai liang-t'iao sheo-chin 給我買兩條手巾.

事業要好只在志氣 If your affairs are to prosper, it is simply a matter of purpose.

Give him the black one; pa heh tih chih t'a 把黑的給他.

Take this book to him; pa chæ-pen-shu tai chun t'a 把這本書帶給他.

Write two characters for me; chih o hsie liang-ko tsi 給我寫兩個字.

I will first tell you, and then you may tell me; o hsien chiang chih ni t'ing, ni heo-lai k'o-i chiang chih o t'ing 我先講給你聽, 你後來可以講給我聽.

Hai 還 ie 也 and tsai 再 marking something Additional.

2. Sentences which speak of something extra, usually take hai 還 or ie 也 or tsai 再. Both hai 還 and tsai 再 have idiomatic uses, generally intensifying the meaning; in many cases they cannot be translated. As a rule in this construction, they, with 多 to and shao 少 precede the verb; e.g.,

Is there any more? Yes; hai iu muh iu? hai iu 還有沒有.

Have they any more paper? No; t'a-men hai iu ch'i muh iu? muh iu 他們還有紙沒有, 沒有.

How many pencils has he besides? t'a hai iu to-shao pih? 他還有多少筆.

I still want to ask him a question; o hai iao uen t'a ih-chü-hua 我還要問他一句話.

Do you want any more? hai iao puh iao 還要不要.

More than a hundred; ih-peh to 一百多.

More than a thousand persons; ih-ch'ien to ren 一千多人.

His things are many; t'a-tih tong-hsi to 他的東西多.

Read a chapter less; shao nien ih-chang 少念一章.

I do not want anything more; o tsai puh iao shen-mo 我再不要甚麼.

He also wants two; t'a ie iao liang-ko 他也要兩個.

To-shao 多少 contrasted with Chi 幾.

3. When small numbers are spoken of 幾 chi with N. A. is commonly used, Lesson II, Section 1. When larger numbers are in question, 多少 to-shao takes the place of 幾 chi, but takes no N. A. when followed by a noun in interrogative sentences, save when the noun is understood or is already expressed. In such cases the N. A. stands for the noun. In Central and Western China 幾多 chi-to is commonly used for 多少 to-shao; e.g.,

How many men are there? tsai na-li iu to-shao ren? 在那裏有多少人.

How many shoes has he? t'a iu to-shao hsiat-tsi? 他有多少鞋子.

How many foreign garments are there? uai-kueh i-shang iu to-shao chien su? 外國衣裳有多少件數.

Not many; muh iu to-shao (or chi-to) 沒有多少 (or 幾多).

Passive Forms indicated by 是 shì.

4. The idiomatic use of words in Chinese often takes the place of many definite grammatical forms in Western languages. The Passive Voice for instance, is indicated by position as well as by the use of certain Tense auxiliaries. For example, 是 shì used with 的 tih as a correlative may be translated in an active or passive form according to the connection; e.g.,

This money was supplied by him; chæ-ko ch'ien shì t'a ch'uh tih 這個錢是他出的。

This was done by his son; chæ shì t'a ri-tsi tso tih 這是他兒子做的。

Did you do this? No; chæ shì ni tso tih mo? puh shì 這是你做的麼，不是。

Was the coarse one bought by him? ts'u tih shì t'a mai tih mo? 粗的是他買的麼。

Name, and Age.

5. To ask a person's name and age is an essential of good manners: 你 ni and 我 o are usually omitted in both question and answer, 貴 kuei and 敝 pi taking their place. In some districts where manners are not cultivated, both are omitted; but it is better for a foreigner to use them.

In referring to a person who is not present, he is spoken of as 姓 'hsing 姓 so and so', and the 貴 kuei is dropped.

In asking the age of children 幾 chi, not 多少 to-shao, is used.

The following are the most commonly used forms:—

Your honourable name? kuei hsing? 貴姓。

My unworthy name is Chang; pi hsing Chang 敝姓張。

What is the name of that person? na ih-uei hsing shen-mo 那一位姓甚麼。

That person is named Pien; na-ko ren hsing Pien 那個人姓邊。

What is the name of this gentleman?—when asking in the presence of the one referred to; chæ ih-uei kuei hsing? 這一位貴姓。

That person named Fang is over there; na-ko hsing Fang tih tsai-na-pien 那個姓方的在那邊。

How old are you?—used in asking the age of a child; chi sui 幾歲。

How old are you? chin-nien to ta nien-chi? 今年多大年紀; (or, to ta sui-su 多大歲數。)

I am ten years old; shih sui 十歲。

I am forty years old this year; chin-nien si-shih 今年四十。

He is more than fifty years old; t'a u shih to sui 他五十多歲。

Repetition of Verbs.

6. Teng 等 and some other verbs are often repeated with 'ih' between, as, 等一等 teng ih teng; 洗一洗 hsi ih hsi, etc., e.g.,

麼 的 少 的 是 我 的
 子 甚 邊 老 買 話 的 的
 箱 姓 來 姓 女 錢 我 少 句 黑 造
 口 人 了 就 個 男 個 是 多 幾 的 人 帝
 一 年 老 我 那 有 十 書 有 說 他 救 上
 做 少 紀 等 發 裏 他 聖 看 要 是 以 是
 我 個 年 一 打 這 給 本 數 還 的 可 地
 給 那 他 等 他 在 少 這 數 我 黃 主 天

NOTES.

Tell him to wait a while; chiao t'a teng ih teng 叫他等一等.
 Give this a wash; pa chæ-ko hsi ih hsi 把這個洗一洗.
 He has waited a long time; t'a teng liao pan t'ien 他等了半天.

NOTES.—a. In speaking of the time of day, 多 to often replaces 過 ko, as, Ten minutes past 4 o'clock; si tien chong to shih fen 四點鐘 多十分.

b. 也 ie is joined to 可 ko with k'o-i at the end of sentences to indicate satisfaction or acquiescence.

c. In the West 還 huan is commonly read huan.

[See Lesson XXVI.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

Make a box for me; chih o tso ih-k'eo hsiang-tsi.

What is the name of that young man? na-ko shao nien ren hsing shen-mo?

*Translate:—*Who sent that man Chang here? did not Mr. Pien's eldest brother? Those basins which I bought for him were not dear; the coarse one cost forty cash, the fine ones eighty cash each: I also bought a white teapot for him and a black box. That person named Fang is more than forty years old: I asked him, Will you give me that long towel? He said, Which one? I said, The one that was bought by your younger brother two days ago. I have two black ones, I still want three white ones, have you them? Please tell me the meaning of this character 'fang'; when you have finished, I will tell you: how will this do? The female was under thirty years old, the male was between forty and fifty, the girl was twelve years old. He washed more than 100 garments for me; how many are there here now? Not many; these four or five, were they not washed by him? He was here more than three weeks, one day less than four weeks; he says he will come again on the 1st of the 1st month next year. This is Mr. Chang's handwriting; (his characters) was not this Chinese letter written by him? I asked him to write it for me; when he was writing it I said, When you have finished writing it I will give you 400 cash. When was this? On the 10th of last month.

READING LESSON VII. 第七要輯

A Confidence Trick.

落了圈套 do chuism too

有一個人姓黃，生在關東，他父親有五十多歲，纔添了他，早生的孩子是四個女的，一個男的，那男的就是他的哥哥，他生的那一天，父親很歡喜，一家的人也都高興，朋友送的東西也不少，粗人送些粗東西，意思也不錯，因為禮輕人意重，父親給他起名叫萬全，過了一個月就給他剃頭，還沒剃頭是黃臉黑頭，但頭一剃就成了白頭黃臉了。這孩子慢慢的長大了，就天天上學堂，跟先生念書寫字，他早晨七點鐘去，九點多鐘回來吃早飯，晚上六七點鐘再來家吃晚飯。到了十六七歲就不再上學了，等在家裏給父親作甚麼要緊的事，父親也常打發他進城去買東西。有一天他在城裏的大街上，在雜貨舖裏給哥哥買了兩條白手巾，一個粗飯碗，一

A lamp.

一¹ 塊⁴ 石² 頭² ih-k'uai shih-t'eo A piece of stone.

一¹ 頂³ 帽⁴ 子³ ih-ting mao-tsi A hat.

Comparison of Adjectives.

1. Adjectives are compared by prefixing or adding certain words to the Positive. The following precede the adjective:—更 keng; 很 hen; 頂 ting; while 些 hsie; 一點 ih tien or 一點兒 ih tien-er and 得很 teh-hen follow it; e.g.,

That piece of stone is much heavier; na-k'uai shih-t'eo keng chong 那塊石頭更重.

This thing is the best; chae-ko tong-hsi hen (or ting) 這個東西很 (or 頂) 好.

耕讀爲本 Husbandry and letters are the two chief professions.

This is good, that is better; chæ-ko hao, na-ko hao-hsie 這個好, 那個好些.

This plate is rather larger; chæ-ko p'an-tsi ta ih-tien 這個盤子大一點.

That form is very long; na-t'iao pan-teng ch'ang teh-hen 那條板機長得很.

When more than one thing is in question, but only one is expressed, the sign of the Comparative is rarely used; e.g.,

This is the better; hai shi chæ-ko hao 還是這個好.

That is the better hat; na-ting mao-tsi ch'ang 那頂帽子強.

Ch'ang 強 is more commonly used in the North, and may be variously translated according to the connection. Hao-hsie 好些 means both 'Better,' and 'A good few,' but the context makes clear which meaning is intended. Hao-chi 好幾, joined to a suitable N. A., may be translated literally 'A good few;' e.g.,

There are a good few people here; u hao-chi ko ren tsai-chæ-li 有好幾個人在這裏.

A good many people have come; iu hao-hsie ren lai-liao 有些人來了.

T'ai 太 as indicating Excess.

T'ai 太 goes a step beyond the Superlative degree and conveys the idea of 'excessive': it precedes a positive statement, and in certain connections may also precede a negative one. e.g.,

That thing is too long; na-ko tong-hsi t'ai ch'ang 那個東西太長.

That person is too bad; na-ko ren t'ai puh-hao-liao 那個人太不好了.

Teh 得 joined to Verbs to form the Passive Participle.

2. Teh 得 is joined to the verb to form the Passive Participle, and may be followed by an adjective, or a negative and an adjective. In the North 的 tih is used interchangeably with 得 teh in this construction; e.g.,

This character is well written; chæ-ko tsi hsie-teh hao 這個字寫得好.

That letter is badly written; na-jeng hsin hsie-teh puh hao 那封信寫得不好.

That was a good bargain; na-ko tong-hsi mai-teh hao 那個東西買得好.

He speaks good Chinese; t'a-tih Chong-kueh-hua shoh-teh hao 他的中國話說得好.

That chair is very badly made; na-pa i-tsi tso-tih hen puh hao 那把椅子作的很不好.

Ts'o-liao 錯了 added to Verbs.

3. When 錯 ts'o is joined to a verb it usually takes 了 liao, and may be translated by 'wrong;' 'mistaken,' etc., according to the context; e.g.,

Right or wrong? Right; ts'o puh-ts'o? puh-ts'o 錯不錯, 不錯.

They took the wrong box; t'a-men t'ai ts'o-liao hsiang-tsi 他們抬錯了箱子.

He mistook his man; t'a k'an ts'o-liao ren 他看錯了人.

You heard wrongly; ni ting ts'o-liao 你聽錯了.

He has made a mistake in that sentence; na-ch'ü-hua t'a shoh ts'o-liao 那句話他說錯了.

Iong 用: uses of.

4. Apart from its primary meaning 'To use', 用 iong has two other important meanings which can be best illustrated by examples. The first is 'To need' in the sense of 'To require,' 'To take up,' as time or material. The second is to indicate the instrument with which something is done; as, 'He cut it, using (with) a knife,' where 用 iong corresponds to 'with' and immediately precedes the name of the instrument used. In the North 使 shì is largely used in place of 用 iong in this last sense; while 拿 na has the same usage in both North and South; e.g.,

It is needless to go; puh iong ch'ü 不用去.

Unsuitable for use; puh hao iong (or shì) 不好用 (or 使).

Do not use this thing; puh iao iong ch'ao-ko tong-hsi 不要用這個東西.

It will not take many days to make a table; tso ih-chang choh-tsi iong puh liao chi t'ien 作一張桌子用不了幾天.

It will not take three days; puh iong san t'ien 不用三天.

God created the heaven and the earth in six days; Shang-ti iong luh t'ien tsao t'ien ti 上帝用六天造天地

Potential Mood formed by 會 huei.

5. In Lesson III, Section 3, the Potential Mood was indicated by 得 teh. When, however, it is wished to convey the idea of proficiency and to shew that the ability to do anything is acquired, 會 huei is generally used. Observation and practice will teach which is the best form to use in any given connection; e.g.,

He is able to buy (well); t'a huei mai 他會買.

He can wash clothes; t'a huei hsi i-shang 他會洗衣服.

Huei-lai 回來 and huei-ch'ü 回去 as Auxiliary Verbs.

6. Huei-lai 回來 and huei-ch'ü 回去 are used as auxiliary as well as principal verbs; e.g.,

Tell him to come back ; chiao t'a huei-lai 叫他回來.

Take it back ; na huei-ch'ü 拿回去.

He cannot go back ; t'a puh teh huei-ch'ü 他不得回去.

Bring back that large hat ; pa na-ting ta mao-tsi na huei-lai 把那頂大帽子拿回來.

NOTES.—a. Kong-fu 工夫 when applied to work usually denotes some thing outside of manual labour, for which 工 kong by itself is used.

b. Tan 但 is often used alone for the sake of euphony.

[See Lesson XXVII.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

What you say is quite correct ; ni shoh tih hua ih-tien puh-ts'o.

This is your mistake. He wrote several characters wrong. The black box those four men have brought is well made, but this box of mine is made much better. He does things too slowly ; he went two days ago to see Mr. Fang, and he is not back yet. Has he finished making that casket ? Not yet ; he says that he will bring it when he has finished it. It will not need much money to buy that small hat. This is the better garment ; that large one is too dear. Can that woman make clothes ? No. Chinese use hot water to wash their faces, foreigners use cold water. You should use a piece of good paper in writing to a teacher. It is better to give him two cash less. He cannot walk back. The false are numerous, the true few. When the girl had finished eating the cake, she returned home. This plate is too small ; have you not a larger one ?

A Visit to the City.

幼童遊景

中國是個很大的國，有二十幾省，有一省叫山東省，就是在北邊，地方大，人也多，一省有一百一十七座城，省城叫濟南府，在城東有一個人姓邊，叫邊得意，有四十幾歲，住在鄉下，離城有幾十里路，有一百多畝地，有四個兒子，大的叫雙喜，是個頂好的孩子，肯聽父母的話，書也念得好，人人都歡喜他，都說他好，到他十三歲的時候，父親對他說，我明天要進城，你和我一同去好不好？你若願意，我就帶你去看看，雙喜聽見這話，真是高興，爲甚麼呢？因他從前沒有到過省城，光聽人說是個大地方，人多，舖子多，又好看，他也不知道，明天是初三，就是趕集的日子，這趕集兩

The Monetary System.

1. The monetary system of China is extremely complicated. At the present time the adoption of a silver coinage and the minting of new copper coins go side by side with the use of lump silver (known as 'sycee') and 'cash'. In the larger centres banks are being started after the foreign order; there is a Bank of China, Chong-kueh in-hang 中國銀行, in addition to many private ones. Meanwhile the older banks continue on the old lines. The decimal system is used universally, and calculations are made in ordinary transactions to two places of decimals, i.e., to tenths and hundredths.

以義爲利 Regard righteousness as gain.

Silver Currency.

Silver currency may be classed as uncoined and coined; the former consisting of 'shoes' and 'ingots', and spoken of as so many ounces, or 'taels', and hundredths: the latter consisting of dollars and cents divided into tenths and hundredths. There is no coin at present to represent the tenth of a tael, but five cent, ten cent and twenty cent dollar pieces are in circulation. These are called 小洋錢 hsiao iang ch'ien, or 'Small foreign money', and the same name is given to the amount as to the coin that represents it; 五分洋錢 u fen iang-ch'ien, 一角 ih-kioh and 二角 ri kioh (or 一毛 ih-mao, 二毛 ri-mao) standing for 5 cents, 10 cents, 20 cents, or for coins of these values. The following examples illustrate some terms used in connection with silver currency:

A 'shoe' of silver; ih-ko üen-pao 一個元寶.

An 'ingot' of silver; ih-ting in-tsi 一錠銀子.

One ounce of silver; a 'tael'; ih liang in-tsi 一兩銀子.

Fifty tael cents; u-ch'ien in-tsi 五錢銀子.

Fifty-five tael cents; u-ch'ien u-fen in-tsi 五錢五分銀子.

One tael and eight cents; ih liang ling pah fen in-tsi 一兩零八分銀子.

One dollar; ih-k'uai iang-ch'ien 一塊洋錢.

Half a dollar; u-kioh 五角; or, pan k'uai iang-ch'ien 半塊洋錢.

Twenty cents; ri-kioh iang ch'ien 二角洋錢.

Twenty-five cents; ri-kioh u fen iang-ch'ien 二角五分洋錢.

One dollar and five cents; ih-k'uai ling u fen iang-ch'ien 一塊零五分洋錢.

In all these examples it will be seen that, as in English, the denomination in which the amount is expressed, dollars or tael, comes last. In the case of dollars, 洋錢 iang-ch'ien is frequently omitted; the N.A. 塊 k'uai indicating that dollars are in question. Liang 兩, too, is usually omitted in speaking of large round numbers, as,

Thirty thousand taels; san uan in-tsi 三萬銀子.

The sign $ stands for dollars; while Tls., cts., are the usual abbreviations for taels and cents.

In-tsi 銀子 and iang-ch'ien 洋錢 are used as the equivalent of 'The tael'; 'The dollar'; e.g.,

What does the tael change at? in-tsi huan to-shao ch'ien? 銀子換多少錢.

What does the dollar change at? iang-ch'ien huan to-shao ch'ien 洋錢換多少錢.

Copper Currency.

2. Until a few years ago 'cash' was the only copper coin used throughout the Empire. This is strung on strings usually made of twisted straw. The amount on each string varies; some districts having 100 cash, (frequently two or three less) on separate strings; while other districts use a number of these amounts strung together and called a 吊 tiao. The value of a 吊 tiao varies according to the number of strings that compose it, but it forms the unit of calculation in the exchange of cash, i.e., if the dollar changes for 1,260 cash it is said to change for 一吊二百六 ih tiao ri peh luk; the word 千 ch'ien not being used in this connection. The new copper coinage has different names in different places, being variously called 銅角子 t'ong koh-tsi, 銅字兒 t'ong tsi-ri and 銅圓 t'ong-üen 銅圓; it too is reckoned by the 吊 tiao.

It follows that when articles are paid for in full in small amounts, a loss is incurred owing to the 吊 tiao being short count; hence a larger or smaller discount must be allowed in reckoning accounts. This discount is called 底子 ti-tsi or 底子錢 ti-tsi ch'ien, and the word 補 pu is employed to indicate that the loss may be 'repaired'. Where money is paid in full, i.e., $99 + 1 = 100$, it is said to be 足錢 tsuh ch'ien, 'Full cash'; e.g.,

I want full cash; o iao tsuh-ch'ien 我要足錢.

How much money needs to be made up? iao pu chi-ko ch'ien tih ti-tsi? 要補幾個錢的底子.

The amount to be made up is 36 cash; iao pu san-shih-luh-ko ch'ien tih ti-tsi 要補三十六個錢的底子.

Paper Currency.

3. P'iao 票 is used both for cheques and cash notes, 錢 ch'ien or 銀 in being prefixed to shew the difference. At present they are largely confined to local use, the 票 p'iao of one place not being negotiable elsewhere:—

A cheque for silver; ih-chang in p'iao 一張銀票.

Cash notes; ch'ien p'iao 錢票.

Change notes for 'cash'; na p'iao-tsi huan ch'ien 拿票子換錢.

Go and change 'cash' for notes; na ch'ien ch'ü huan p'iao-tsi 拿錢去換票子.

The abacus or reckoning instrument is universally used. To reckon on it is expressed by 打 ta, not 算 suan, which is used for accounts. To 打算盤 ta suan-p'an is also used in a general sense, 'To calculate'.

He cannot use the abacus; t'a puh hwei ta suan-p'an 他不會打算盤.

Come and reckon accounts; lai suan-chang 來算賬.

市行麼甚子銀在現
錢價麼到了不到找我
錢到現他要買子找個我
多錢兩塊給他我要錢,我 麼門甚了賬得關神算不店真
位錢算筆兩塊錢發一

NOTES.

Chie 借 and its Uses.

4. The word 借 chie, meaning both 'to borrow' and 'to lend,' causes beginners some difficulty; and the same applies to 找 chao when used of paying a balance, or receiving one that is due. Practice is the great thing, but a study of the following examples may be helpful:—

He wants to borrow $3; t'a iao chie san-k'uai ch'ien 他要借三塊錢.

He cannot borrow money; t'a chie puh tao ch'ien 他借不到錢.

Will you lend me a dollar; ch'ing chie ih-k'uai ch'ien chih o 請借一塊錢給我.

I lent him 300 cash; o chie san peh ch'ien chih t'a 我借三百錢給他.

He has gone to borrow money; t'a ch'ü chie ch'ien 他去借錢.

He still has a balance due to me of $4; t'a hai chao chih o si-k'uai ch'ien 他還找給我四塊錢.

I will give you the balance of 400 cash; o chao si peh ch'ien chih ni 我找四百錢給你.

You give me the balance of $1.00; ni chao ih-k'uai ch'ien chih o 你找一塊錢給我.

Defining Power of chiu-shi 就是.

5. In Lesson I, 是 shì was defined as meaning 'is'; 'are'; etc. chiu-shi 就是, while also having the same meaning, is used in a slightly different manner, usually defining or explaining something that has gone before; e.g.,

The two characters 'men-chi' mean the same as 'sui-su'; nien-chi liang-ko tsi chiu-shi sui-su tih i-si 年紀兩個字就是歲數的意思.

NOTES.—a. Puh-hao 不好 before a verb, in many districts indicates anything inadvisable, or difficult in the nature of things.

b. chiu-shi 就是 or 就是了 chiu-shi-liao are also added to sentences to indicate satisfaction or assent, as, Very well, give him forty cash; chih t'a si-shih ko ch'ien chiu shi liao 給他四十個錢就是了.

c. In the West, dollars are called in-uen 銀圓².

習慣成自然 Practice makes perfect.

‘All’ expressed by tu 都 and long-tsong 攏總.

1. The word ‘all’ is used more freely in Chinese than in English. Tu 都 follows the noun and has the special function of summarizing all that goes before—gathering it up in a comprehensive form. After two things have been mentioned it may be translated by ‘both’: preceding a negative it gives a turn to the sentence which may be rendered by ‘not any’; ‘none’. In distinctly idiomatic sentences it can scarcely be translated. After an enumeration it is joined to 有 iu.

Long-tsong 攏總 or similar words, on the other hand, precede the noun, and are also often used when 都 tu follows; the use of both words roughly corresponding to ‘in all’; ‘the whole of,’ etc., in English.

There are here, in all, 3,000 people; tsai-chæ-li long-tsong iu san-ch’ien ren 在這裏攏總有三千人.

I have not a single cash in the house; o chia-li ih-ko ta ch’ien tu muh iu 我家裏一個大錢都沒有.

All those clothes are washed; na-hsie i-shang tu hsi-liao 那些衣裳都洗了.

None of them will come; t’a-men tu puh lai 他們都不來.

He is able to read, write and reckon; nien-shu, hsie-tsî, ta-suan-p’an, t’a tu hui 念書, 寫字, 打算盤, 他都會.

He has meat, fish and vegetables; ro, ü, ts’ai, t’a tu iu 肉魚菜他都有.

All the men, women and children have just gone; nan-ren, nü-ren, hai-tsî, long-tsong tu ts’ai tseo liaô 男人女人孩子攏總都纔走了.

‘Each’, ‘Every’—how expressed.

2. Such words as ‘each’, ‘every’, ‘different’, etc., that individualize or give a distributive meaning may be expressed in three ways:—

a. By the use of 各 koh before a noun. Where 各 koh is repeated, it may be translated by ‘own’; e.g.,

There is stone of every kind; koh-iang shih-t’eo tu iu 各樣石頭都有.

Every man has his own ideas; koh ren iu koh ren tih i-si 各人有各人的意思.

b. By the repetition of some nouns; e.g.,

Everybody loved him; ren ren tu ai t’a 人人都愛他.

Each house has a lamp; chia chia tu iu teng 家家都有燈.

c. By repeating the N. A. of the thing in question; e.g.,

You must wash each of these garments; chæ-hsie i-shang chien chien tu iao hsi 這些衣裳件件都要洗.

Each of these ten cash notes is false; chæ shih chang ch’ien-p’iao, chang chang tu shi chia tih 這十張錢票張張都是假的.

Tih 的 as indicating an Agent.

3. Many words used in English to indicate 'an agent,' are formed by the addition of such suffixes as 'or,' 'er,' etc.; as, 'hatter,' 'professor.' In other cases definite names are given to persons engaged in certain occupations; such names usually having something distinctive to point out the occupation in question; as, 'paper hanger.' The same distinction is made in Chinese; the word 的 tih indicating the agent and taking the place of the suffixes 'er,' 'or,' etc. Thus used, its force is that of 'he who,' or, 'they who'. For instance, 'a water carrier' is 挑水的 t'iao-shui tih, i.e., 的 tih, he who, 挑 t'iao, carries, 水 shui, water. The word 'some' is similarly formed, e.g., Some carried boxes, some tables 有挑箱子的 iu t'iao hsiang-tsi tih, 有挑桌子的 iu t'iao choh-tsi tih; i.e., there were those who carried boxes; there were those who carried tables. Sometimes 有的 iu tih immediately precedes the noun; e.g., 有的挑箱子, 有的挑桌子 iu tih t'iao hsiang-tsi; iu tih t'iao choh-tsi.

Some sold meat, some sold fish; iu mai ro tih, iu mai ü tih 有賣肉的, 有賣魚的.

They are washermen; t'a-men shä hsi-i-shang-tih 他們是洗衣裳的.

Tell the shoemaker to come to-morrow morning; chiao tso-hsiai-tih ming-t'ien tsao-ch'ien lai 叫作鞋的明天早晨來.

He is a literary man; t'a shü ko nien-shu-tih 他是個念書的.

Ch'i-lai 起來 as an Auxiliary Verb.

4. Ch'i 起 is used as an auxiliary verb and often denotes the beginning of an action. More generally, however, it is joined with 來 lai, when 起來 ch'i-lai may be used alone as a principal verb meaning, 'To get up; to rise'; or be joined as an auxiliary to another verb. The same is true of 出 ch'uh, which may take either 來 lai or 去 ch'ü, as, 出來 ch'uh-lai, To come out; 出去 ch'uh-ch'ü, To go out, but which may also be used in the same auxiliary manner as 起來 ch'i-lai with another verb; e.g.,

Get up earlier to-morrow morning; ming-t'ien tsao ih-tien ch'i-lai 明天早一點起來.

He has just gone out; t'a ts'ai ch'uh-ch'ü 他纔出去.

They have come out; t'a men ch'uh-lai-liao 他們出來了.

He cannot afford to buy that hat; na-ting mao-tsi t'a mai puh ch'i 那頂帽子他買不起.

Carry out this table; pa chæ-chang choh-tsi t'ai ch'uh-ch'ü 把這張桌子抬出去.

Pien 邊 Idiomatic use of.

5. Pien 邊 joined to 這 chæ or 那 na is used to indicate a near or a remote locality; e.g.,

Put it down over here; fang tsai chæ-pien 放在這邊.

Gold is produced in these parts; chæ-pien ch'uh chin-tsi 這邊出金子.

Do you use the abacus in your part of the world? ni-men na-pien iong puh iong suan-p'an? 你們那邊用不用算盤.

Iang 樣 as indicating Manner.

6. One way of indicating 'mode', or 'manner' is by the use of 樣 iang. It furnishes, as it were, the pattern according to which anything should be done.

In N. China 這麼 chæ-mo and 那麼 na-mo are more commonly used than chæ iang 這樣 and na-iang 那樣: tsen-mo-iang 怎麼樣 may be interrogative or not according to the connection; e.g.,

This is the same; chæ shi ih-iang 這是一樣.

Not the same; puh ih-iang 不一樣.

That is different; na shi liang-iang 那是兩樣.

There are all sorts; iang iang tu iu 樣樣都有.

You must do it this way; iao chæ-iang tso 要這樣做.

Not so; puh shi chæ-iang 不是這樣.

This is a different idea; chæ shi liang-iang-tih i-si 這是兩樣的意思.

How about him? t'a tsen-mo-iang ni? 他怎麼樣呢.

But what if he has no money? t'a muh iu ch'ien tsen-mo-iang ni? 他沒有錢怎麼樣呢

What did he say? t'a tsen-mo shoh ni? 他怎麼說呢.

His child is only so, so; t'a-tih hai-tsi puh tsen-mo-iang 他的孩子不怎麼樣.

N.B. This is the origin of the pidgin English phrase, "this fashion"; "that fashion"; "what fashion can do?"

Uses of mo 麼 and ni 呢.

7. In Lesson I, Section 4, 麼 mo was defined as an Interrogative Particle: 呢 ni is used in a somewhat similar way, only as the sign of an indirect question, and may follow when a question is already asked. In some cases it merely adds emphasis; e.g.,

Why do you strike me? ni uei-shen-mo ta o ni? 你爲甚麼打我呢.

Why does he not come to-day? t'a chin-t'ien uei-shen-mo puh lai ni? 他今天爲甚麼不來呢.

What is he doing over there? t'a tsai-na-pien tso shen-mo ni? 他在那邊作甚麼呢.

Comparison—Degrees of.

1. Persons or things may be compared in three degrees, viz., a. Inequality; b. Equality; c. Superiority; as, This is not so large as that; This is as large as that; This is larger than that. These degrees are expressed in Chinese as follows:—

a. Inequality.—The commonest forms used in this construction are 沒有 muh iu, 不如 puh ru, 不及 puh chih, 比不上 pi puh shang or 比不得 pi puh teh, and 趕不上 kan puh shang; the latter from 趕³ kan To follow; to drive.

忙人無智 Hurried men lack wisdom.

This is not so good as that; chæ-ko muh iu na-ko hao 這個沒有那個好.

My cake is not so large as yours; o-tih ping-tsi puh ru ni-tih ping-tsi ta 我的餅子不如你的餅子大.

This piece of land is not so good as that piece; chæ-k'uai ti pi (or kan) puh shang na-k'uai ti hao 這塊地比 (or 趕) 不上那塊地好.

The false is not equal to the true; chia-tih pi puh teh chen-tih 假的比不得真的.

This pot is not equal to that pot; chæ-pa hu puh chih na-pa hu 這把壺不及那把壺.

It should be noticed that the last sentence has no word to indicate the point in which the inequality consists, as 及 chih rarely takes an adjective.

b. Equality.—This is expressed by 有 iu, 如 ru, 同 t'ong or 和 ho, 像 hsiang or hao-hsiang 好像, followed by the object to be compared and 一樣 ih-iang; e.g.,

He has as much money as I; t'a iu o-tih ch'ien to 他有我的錢多.

This door is as high as that one; chæ-ko men iu na-ko men kao 這個門有那個門高.

This basin is the same as that one; chæ-ko uan t'ong na-ko uan ih-iang 這個碗同那個碗一樣.

You speak like a Chinese; ni shoh-hua ho Chong-kueh-ren ih-iang 你說話和中國人一樣.

His heart is as deep as the sea; t'a-tih hsin shen ru hai 他的心深如海.

Just like him; hsiang (or hao hsiang) t'a ih-iang 像 (or 好像) 他一樣.

The negative form of this construction is used to indicate difference; e.g.,

This hill is different from that one; chæ-tso shan ho na-tso shan puh ih-iang 這座山和那座山不一樣.

He rides differently from you; t'a ch'i ma ho ni liang-iang 他騎馬和你兩樣.

Northern Mandarin prefers 和 ho to 同 t'ong in this construction.

c. Superiority.—In Lesson VIII, Section 1 些 hsie and 很 hen or 頂 ting were said to form the simple Comparative and Superlative degrees. The extent or measure of superiority is denoted by 點 tien, 些 hsie, 更 keng, 倍 pei and 得多 teh-to; e.g.,

This is a little dearer than that; chæ-ko pi na-ko kuei ih-tien 這個比那個貴一點.

This cart is much larger than that one; chæ-liang ch'æ pi na-liang ch'æ keng ta 這輛車比那輛車更大.

This is three times as heavy as that; chæ-ko pi na-ko chong san pei 這個比那個重三倍.

His "Mandarin" is very much better than yours; t'a-tih kuan-hua pi ni-tih hao teh-to liao 他的官話比你的好得多了。

Twice as good; hao teh liang pei 好得兩倍。

Different degrees of the same thing, especially Time, Dimension and Quantity, are often compared by repetition; in this idiom 似 sì is largely used in many districts and follows the adjective; e.g.,

Worse every year; ih nien puh ru ih nien 一年不如一年。

Better every day; ih t'ien hao si ih t'ien 一天好似一天。

Hotter every month; ih-ko üeh reh ih-ko üeh 一個月熱一個月。

This water is deeper than that; chæ-ko shui shen chih na-ko shui 這個水深及那個水。

Comparison denoted by chæ-mo 這麼 and na-mo 那麼。

2. In Lesson X, Section 6, both 這麼 chæ-mo and 那麼 na-mo were defined as indicating mode, or manner. They also denote comparison when some standard of comparison is either expressed or understood, and are the equivalents of the English "As . . . as this"; "As . . . as that"; e.g.,

Vegetables are not so dear as this; ts'ai muh iu chæ-mo kuei 菜沒有這麼貴。

The water is not so deep as that; shui muh iu na-mo shen 水沒有那麼深。

I want it so large; o iao chæ-mo ta 我要這麼大。

The above may be turned into adjectival phrases by the addition of 的 tih; e.g.,

A child of this size; chæ-mo ta-tih hai-tsi 這麼大的孩子。

A house as high as that; na-mo kao-tih fang-tsi 那麼高的房子。

Double Comparative: how formed.

3. A double comparative is formed by 越 üeh, followed by an adjective and then repeated; e.g.,

The more disciples the better; men-t'u üeh to üeh hao 門徒越多越好。

The larger the worse; üeh ta üeh puh hao 越大越不好。

Superlative Degree: Forms used for.

4. Some forms of the Superlative are used in certain connections, but usage forbids their use in others. Practice and observation alone can give proficiency in this matter, and shew where to use one form and where to use another; but the following examples may indicate some of the differences in usage. Chi 至 for instance, is largely used as an intensive with adjectives of time and quantity.

Hen 很 may be used before the auxiliaries 有 iu and 要 iao, as well as before most verbs, and also before adjectives and negatives. Sì 死 is commonly employed in speaking of such things as are not very pleasant, and roughly corresponds to a similar usage in colloquial English; as, "Dead tired;" "Worried to death;" etc. The expression 再沒有比 tsai muh iu pi denotes something incomparably good or bad, etc.; e.g.,

He wants 40 cash at the very least; t'a ch'i shao iao sì-shih-ko ch'ien 他至少要四十個錢.

He is only twenty years old at the most; t'a ch'i to rì-shih sui 他至多二十歲.

He is very good at riding; t'a hen hwei ch'i ma 他很會騎馬.

That person is very particular about his self-respect; na-ko ren hen iao lien 那個人很要臉.

They are very wealthy; t'a-men hen iu ch'ien 他們很有錢.

It is very inadvisable to manage in this way; chae-iang pan si hen puh k'o-i 這樣辦事很不可以.

I am bitterly cold to-day; o chin-t'ien leng sì liao 我今天冷死了.

There is nothing larger than this; tsai muh iu pi chae-ko ta 再沒有比這個大.

Choh 着: Its Use and Force.

5. Owing to the absence of any conjugation of the verb, it is difficult to express participial forms. Choh 着 as an auxiliary, in some connections denotes continued action, and so approximates to the present participle. It is used frequently with monosyllabic verbs, and is heard more frequently in some districts than in others. Hai 還 is also frequently used to indicate that an action is still going on; e.g.,

They two were sitting at the door talking; t'a-men liang-ko tsai men-k'eo tso-choh shoh-hua 他們兩個在門口坐着說話.

He was sitting listening; t'a tso-choh t'ing-choh 他坐着聽着.

He came on horseback; t'a ch'i-choh ma lai 他騎着馬來.

He simply depends on his father for a living; t'a kuang k'ao-choh fu-ch'in ch'ih-fan 他光靠着父親吃飯.

He is still waiting there; t'a hai tsai-na-li teng-choh 他還在那裏等着.

Choh 着 also follows both 不 puh and 得 teh in the Potential Mood (see Lesson III) in certain connections, where it 'fits' better than any other word; e.g.,

I cannot use it; o iong puh choh 我用不着.

Just opposite the door; cheng tui-choh men 正對着門.

I have found it; chao-choh liao 找着了.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

This is not the same as that; chæ-ko ho na-ko puh ih iang.

This is much more important than that; chæ-ko pi na-ko keng iao-chin.

Have you any as large as this? iu chæ-mo ta tih muh iu?

The slower you speak the better; shoh-hua üeh man üeh hao.

You and he may go; ni ho t'a k'o-i ch'ü.

In the autumn it gets colder every day; ch'iu-t'ien, ih t'ien leng ih t'ien.

I haven't as much money as that; o muh iu na-mo to tih ch'ien.

I shall have leisure to-morrow; o ming-t'ien iu k'ong.

He will want $2.00 at least; t'a chi shao iao liang-k'uai ch'ien.

He is still there writing; t'a hai tsai-na-li hsie-tsi.

All men must die; ren ren tu iao si.

The Saviour was crucified on the cross; Chiu-chu ting si tsai shih-tsi-chia shang.

*Translate:—*The house that Mr. Feng lives in, is not so good as the house Mr. Chang lives in; Mr. Chang's house is three times as good. Whom was it built by? It was built by a man named 馬. Make three cups of tea and put bread and cakes on the table; when you have done that you had better light the lamp, and go to the woman who lives outside the city, and tell her to come to-morrow morning to do needlework. Hang up this garment; (if) you put it here it will get dirty. A boy of that size is not able to write! he is not equal to a girl of six years old. It is not so good to drink hot water as it is to drink tea. For instance, there are two men, one rich, one poor; the rich has wealth, the poor has none; everybody says, The poor is not equal to the rich. This cloth is three times as good as that; the cloth he bought yesterday is much wider than the cloth you bought; it is the same as this. This empty box is as large as the one you made; a box full of money is heavier than this box. Who gave her the hat she is now wearing? How much did it cost? It was not so dear as the one you are wearing. To buy a large pig will cost at least more than two ingots of silver. I will give him at the most 10,000 odd cash. I do not believe in the principles he preached. How many sedan chairs do you want? I want three; tell the chair bearers to bring them along at once, and not wait half a day. I will go with you. What doctrine is he preaching? He says that everybody has sin, but that the Saviour died on the cross. He also said that God has opened the gate of heaven for us, and now invites both foreigners and Chinese to go in. God is love.

Ancient and Modern.

世道變換

一年有四季，就是春、夏、秋、冬，這四季不能都一樣。夏天比冬天熱得好幾倍，但是把這兩季比起來，不當說¹。一季好，一季不好，也不當說。夏天不及冬天，冬天比夏天更好，沒有這個理。各季有各季的天氣，就是了。人也是一樣，年紀老的不當說，年紀少的不及他們，若往細處說，老年人的力氣⁵趕不上少年人的力氣大。就是說⁶，世事也是一理。有人說古時候好，如今⁷的世代⁸不好，這也不一定。比方一個人沒有錢，常常生病⁹，住的房子又不好，也沒有甚麼朋友，少吃少穿，他¹⁰一定要說現今不如古時好，但人有錢，不愁吃，不愁穿，事情都順¹³，有妻子¹⁴。

1. *Tang*¹ 當 Ought; should. L. 17.2. Muh iu chæ-ko li 沒有這個理 No such principle; nothing of the kind.3. T'ien-ch'i 天氣 Weather.4. Uang hsi-ch'u shoh 往細處說 To go into detail. L. 14.5. Lih⁴ ch'i⁴ 力氣 Strength; vigour.6. Shi⁴ shi⁴ 世事 The affairs of the world; ordinary matters.7. Ru²-chin¹ 如今 The present time; now. L. 24.8. Shi⁴-tai⁴ 世代 Generation; the times.9. Seng¹ ping⁴ 生病 To fall sick; to be ill.10. Ih-ting⁴ 一定 Certainly; surely. So with ting 定 alone, below.11. Hsien⁴-chin¹ 現今 Now-a-days. L. 24.12. Puh ts'eo² ch'ih; puh ts'eo¹ ch'uan¹ 不愁吃 不愁穿 Not anxious about food and clothing.13. Shuen⁴ 順 Favourable; prosperous. L. 12.14. Ch'i²-tsi³ 妻子 A wife. V. 4.

有兒女¹，樣樣都如意²，他定要說，還是今時好。比方一個十幾歲的孩子穿衣裳，他身體不過這麼大，衣裳也不過是這麼大，若把他的衣裳給四五十歲的人穿，他自然穿不上，不是衣裳不好，是他的身子大。論古今也是一理。但天下的人都有一樣的毛病，就是長大了，年紀老了，總說早年比現在大不同，現在沒有早年好。比方說，他媳婦知道他愛吃魚，就上街去找賣魚的，找着了就買幾兩魚來家，慢慢的煎¹⁰，煎好了，又做些菜，擺在盤子上拿來給他吃，他吃了，就說哎呀¹¹，現在的魚比不上我早年吃的那魚，早年的魚有滋味¹²，很好吃，這個魚一點¹³滋味都沒有。他那些話不是說錯了麼？媳婦買來的魚很新鮮¹⁴，沒有比他再新鮮的，煎的也好，但老人家因年紀老了，口味¹⁵變了¹⁶，就嘗不出¹⁷

1. Ri²-nü³ 兒女 Children; sons and daughters.
2. Ru²-i⁴ 如意 According to one's wishes.
3. Tsi⁴-ran³ 自然 As a matter of course; naturally. L. 27.
4. Luen⁴ ku³ chin¹ 論古今 To discuss past and present. L. 13.
5. T'ien-hsia 天下 The world; the Empire; everywhere. L. 15.
6. Mao²-ping⁴ 毛病 A fault; a defect. In the South used for disease.
7. Chang ta liao 長大了 To be grown up.
8. Tsong³-shoh 總說 Are sure to say. L. 28.
9. Hsih²-fu⁴ 媳婦 A daughter-in-law; a wife. V. 5.
10. Chien¹ 煎 To fry.
11. Ai¹-ia⁴ 哎呀 Alas! Oh dear! L. 19.
12. Tsi²-uei⁴ 滋味 Flavour; taste.
13. Ih-tien 一點 A little.
14. Hsin¹-hsien¹ 新鮮 Fresh, as fruit, meat, etc.
15. K'eo²-uei⁴ 口味 Sense of taste; flavour.
16. Pien⁴ liao³ 變了 Had changed—for the worse. L. 28.
17. Ch'ang² 嘗 To taste. L. 22.

味來、是人¹不新鮮、不是魚不新鮮、魚是和他早年吃的那魚一樣、一點兩樣沒有。再說、人常說現今不如古時、他怎麼知道呢、天下很大、人的見識²有限、念的書也不多、能記得的事也少、若知道古時天下攏總的事、也能拿來和現在天下的事比起來、我心裏想、他就不說、現在不如從前了。比方說、人生在元朝³的時候、必說古時宋朝好、現在不好、但那說、現在的元朝、早已成了古時的元朝了。就是現在的清朝⁴、人說趕不上古時好、再過一二百年、人都要說還是古時的清朝好。在我看⁵、光有一個東西古今是一樣、那是甚麼東西呢、不是人的心麼、人人心裏都有罪、所以上帝打發救主來給人贖罪⁶。在江蘇省揚州府⁷、有個八十幾歲的老年人、姓萬、叫萬古心、住在老城城東、他有四個兒子、三個在家裏、一個在外頭做買賣、有的時候他們都在家裏、他就對他們說、現在比不得

3. *Üen*² *ch'ao*³ 元朝 The Yüan Dynasty, 1260-1341 A.D.

4. *Song*⁴ *ch'ao*³ 宋朝 The Song Dynasty, 960-1126 A.D.

5. *Ch'ing*¹-*ch'ao*² 清朝 The Pure Dynasty; began 1583, ended 1912.

6. Tsai o k'an 在我看 As I see it; from my point of view.

7. *Shuh*²-*tsui*⁴ 贖罪 To redeem from sin. L. 17.

8. *Chiang*¹-*su*² *seng*³ 江蘇省 The province of Kiangsu.

9. *Iang*² *cheo*³ *Fu*³ 揚州府 The prefectural city of Yangchow.

1. Ih-ting tih tao-li 一定的道理 A moral certainty.

2. Shoh tih shi 說的是 Said the truth; went to the point.

3. Hen iu li 很有理 Is very reasonable.

Direction: how indicated.

1. Direction is spoken of in Chinese as in English in its relation to the points of the compass, but with the difference that intermediate positions, i.e., positions not directly N. and S. are referred to in reverse order, as E. N. for N. E., W. N. for N. W., etc. In speaking of the points of the compass the Chinese usually begin with the East and end with the North, the North being inauspicious; e.g., tong 東 hsi

一路平安 May all your journey be in peace!

西 nan 南 peh 北. Chinese idiom moreover, usually adds 邊 pian; the South being spoken of as the South-side; etc.

In the north; tsai peh pian 在北邊.

In the south-west; tsai hsi-nan pian 在西南邊.

Northerners are straightforward; peh-pien-tih ren chih 北邊的人直.

Direction in relation to an action is indicated by 往 uang "To go toward;" e.g.,

Where is he going? t'a uang na-h ch'ü? 他往那裏去.

He is going to the North; t'a uang peh tseo 他往北走.

Go to the South; uang nan tseo 往南走.

Distance: Terms relating to.

2. Distance is measured in China by 里 li, but idiom calls for the word 'road,' which in English is not expressed. For instance, when we speak of "So many miles," the word (of) "road" is understood, but in Chinese 路 lu or 地 ti is added, 地 ti being commonly used in the North and 路 lu in the South.

When distance is spoken of in more general terms, 遠 üen is used; either 幾 chi or 多 to being prefixed according as the distance is regarded as greater or less. This idiom commonly prefers 有 iu, though it may be omitted; e.g.,

How far? iu to (or chi) üen? 有多(或幾)遠.

Not far; muh iu to (or chi) üen 沒有多(或幾)遠.

Not far from here; li chae-li puh üen 離這裏不遠.

Shanghai is fifty li from here; Shang-hai li chae-li iu u-shih li lu (or ti) 上海離這裏有五十里路(或地.)

How far is T'ai-p'ing from there? T'ai-p'ing li na-li iu to (or chi) üen? 太平離那裏有多(或幾)遠.

Nan-kuan is more than ten li distant; Nan-kuan li chae-li iu shih li to lu (or ti) 南關離這裏有十里多路(或地.)

How to Ask the Way to a Place.

3. In asking the way to a place it is advisable to use 請問 ch'ing-uen 'May I ask,' or some other polite expression; to omit it may mean being set on the wrong road. The following expressions are used in this connection:—

Is this the way to Tong-ch'eng? shang Tong-ch'eng shi ts'ong (or ta) chae-li tseo mo? 上東城是從(或打)這裏走麼.

Yes, it is the way; shi ts'ong (or ta) chae-li tseo 是從(或打)這裏走.

Do you go by way of Chiang-k'eo to San-shui? shang San-shui shi ts'ong (or ta) Chiang-k'eo tseo mo? 上三水是從(或打)江口走麼.

Is this the right road to Li-chia Tien? shang Li-chia-tien shi lu (or shi chae-t'iao lu) mo? 上李家店是路(或這條路)麼.

Straight on; ih-chih tseo 一直走.

This is the nearest way; tseo chā-li chin 走這裏近.

In going to T'ai-p'ing do not go to the N., go to the South-west; Shang T'ai-p'ing puh iao uang peh tseo iao uang hsi-nan tseo 上太平不要往北走要往西南走.

It should be noted that the reply to the first question was in the same terms as the question itself. This is very common, and it is a great help to imitate this way of speaking as much as possible, since part of the needed vocabulary is thus provided.

Ching 經 or 過 ko is used in speaking of passing through one place on the way to another; as,

I passed through Shanghai on my way to Kiukiang; o shang Chiu-chiang ts'ong Shang-hai ko (or ching-ko) 我上九江從上海過 (or 經過.)

He passed through Shih-li P'u; t'a ts'ong Shih-li-p'u lu ko 他從十里舖路過.

Kan 趕 as indicating Time.

In Lesson XI. Section I., 趕 kan was defined as meaning "To follow." As used in the North when applied to time, it denotes, "By the time; at the time; when." Compare English, "The following day." Teng 等 is used in the same sense, but more freely in the South than in the North; e.g.,

We shall be there by to-morrow; o-men kan ming-t'ien tao 我們趕明天到.

He cannot get there by the 9th; kan ts'u-chiu t'a tao puh-liao 趕初九他到不了.

He had been gone some time when I arrived; kan o tao tih shi-heo t'a tsao-i tseo liao 趕我到的時候他早已走了.

Travel by Rail and Steamer.

4. Chinese lends itself very readily to coining new terms and phrases. This is owing to the genius of the language which allows one noun to act as an adjective and modify or define the meaning of the principal one. The same idiom obtains in English, only to a more limited extent, as in such combinations as 'house-maid'; 'tea-pot'; etc. The introduction of Western inventions and sciences has caused large numbers of such terms to be coined: in this Lesson we shall confine ourselves to some of them used in connection with railways and steamers:—

Railways; t'ieh-lu 鐵路.

Trains; cars; ho (or ho luen) ch'æ 火 (or 火輪) 車.

Railway station; ch'æ (or ho-ch'æ) chan 車 (or 火車) 站.

1st, 2nd and 3rd class; t'eo-teng; ri-teng; san-teng 頭等, 二等, 三等.

這	個	行	不	行
他	能	說	不	能	行
他	裝	做	好	人

NOTES.

To board the train; shang-ch'æ 上車.
 To get out of the train; hsia-ch'æ 下車.
 To travel by rail; tso ho-ch'æ 坐火車.
 To start; k'ai ch'æ 開車.
 Locomotive; ho-ch'æ t'eo 火車頭.
 Steamer; ho-luen ch'uan 火輪船.
 To travel by steamer; tso ho-luen ch'uan 坐火輪船.
 To embark; shang-ch'uan 上船.
 To disembark; hsia-ch'uan 下船.
 To set sail; k'ai ch'uan 開船.

Capacity to Contain: how expressed.

5. The words 'contain', 'hold', are in English applied indiscriminately to everything that has capacity to contain. For instance, a hall 'holds', or 'seats', so many people; a cup 'holds' so much water; etc. In contrast to this, Chinese idiom demands a special verb, according to the nature of the things spoken of; the verbs tso and 裝 chuang are of this class, and take 下 hsia or 了 liao as auxiliaries; e.g.,

One box will not hold all; ih-k'eo hsiang-tsi chuang puh liao (or hsia) 一口箱子裝不了 (or 下).

That house will hold ninety people; na-ko fang-tsi tso teh-hsia chiu-shih-ko ren 那個房子坐得下九十個人.

It will not hold fifty; tso puh-hsia u-shih-ko ren 坐不下五十個人.

Will it hold sixty people? Yes; luh-shih-ko ren tso teh-hsia, tso puh-hsia? tso teh-hsia 六十個人坐得下坐不下, 坐得下.

Seated to the full it will hold eighty people; tso man-liao, pah-shih-ko ren k'o-i tso teh-hsia 坐滿了八十個人可以坐得下.

NOTES.—a. In some districts 起 ch'i takes the place of 闢 kuah; as, A wind has arisen, ch'i liao feng 起了風

[See Lesson XXVIII.]

He has just come from home; t'a ts'ong chia-li ts'ai lai.

Both wind and water favourable; shuen feng shuen shui.

Lay the table and set on food; pai choh-tsi pai (or k'ai) fan.

Translate:—Pack the baggage in the cart. Yesterday it blew a great North-east wind; to-day there is no wind. Two foreign visitors have come in sedan chairs; the chairbearers did not know the road and carried them to the North; but they have brought them back now; they say the luggage will come later on. He said, Cross the river and go to the South-east, there is a railway station not far off. One train starts at 6.30 a.m., another one that travels faster starts at noon. What is the price of a 1st class ticket to 江口? A steamer is not so fast as a train. Travellers carry little with them. He came by way of Shanghai; he travelled half a day by rail and two days by steamer. Each trade has its own line of business. How far is it from here to the city gate? Not far, three or four li at the most; you will be there by the time the lamps are lighted. Hire four men to take these things away. He has not repaired this lamp very well. Now, many travellers travel by steamer; many more travel by rail. Men of the East, West, North and South were all created by God.

Some Travelling Experiences.

人常說在家千日好，出門時難，這是甚麼意思呢？就是說，人離家到遠方去，是很費事。第一，要先把東西收拾好了，裝箱子、打鋪蓋、換錢、安家、這一切事，都得辦理妥當。還要僱人挑東西到碼頭。早年我要上陝西省西安府去，那時我住在長江湖北。

漢口¹、離西安¹有一二千里地、西安是在西北邊。那時中國沒有鐵路、也沒有小火輪船走小河。趕五月十幾、我們僱了一條船、連人帶東西都裝得下、和船行講定了價、就上船、先把幾吊錢付船老板、叫他買米、買菜、第二天早晨就開船。先往北走、後來順河往西、往東、不像走旱路要問人從那裏走、順河走就錯不了。離漢口沒有多遠、又到一個小碼頭、在那裏過夜、第二天還就不亮就開船、一直往西北走、那一天颳了頂大的順風、到了晚上已經走一百幾十里路、再過了幾天我們就走完了水路下船、要起旱走。在店裏住了兩天、僱驢子、僱馬。那邊和南邊大不同、沒有甚麼平地、小車行不開。我們下船的地方、離西安有三四天的山路、很不好走、天也熱、站口也遠、晚上到了店、真是辛苦、但離城有一天的路、我們不再騎驢子、就僱了一輛大

Tih 的 as denoting Material.

1. One common construction in Chinese may be defined as 'descriptive', as it describes things and actions as to their origin. In reference to material, nouns of material, such as wood, stone, 不上高山不顯平地 If you do not scale the mountain you cannot view the plain.

etc., are turned into descriptive adjectives by the addition of 的 tiĥ, which thus answers to the termination 'en' in such words as 'gold', 'golden'; 'wood', 'wooden'; etc; e.g.,

The casket is golden; the abacus is wooden; hoh-tsĭ shĭ chin-tsĭ-tiĥ, suan-p'an shĭ muĥ-t'eo-tiĥ 盒子是金子的, 算盤是木頭的.

Phrases of Origin.

2. The origin of things with regard to the material of which they are composed, and of people, with regard to the place from whence they come, is usually indicated by a descriptive phrase denoting origin; as, Of what is this made? chæ shĭ shen-mo tong-hsi tso tiĥ 這是甚麼東西做的—this is what thing made? Where is he from? t'a shĭ na-li lai tiĥ? 他是那裏來的. This last sentence might either refer to the place from which he started, or the place to which he belonged; the former would be clearly indicated by 從 ts'ong in the place of 是 shĭ; e.g.,

This is made of gold; chæ shĭ chin-tsĭ tso tiĥ 這是金子做的.

Where has he come from? t'a ts'ong na-li lai-tiĥ? 他從那裏來的.

He has come from Tong-ch'eng; t'a ts'ong Tong-ch'eng lai tiĥ 他從東城來的.

Beginning and End of an Action: how indicated.

3. The starting point of an action is indicated by 從 ts'ong, followed by some adverb or adverbial phrase, and completed by a verb having 起 ch'i as an auxiliary. The point at which the action terminates is denoted by 爲止 wei-chĭ; e.g.,

Begin from here; ts'ong chæ-li ch'i 從這裏起.

Begin to measure from here; ts'ong chæ-li liang ch'i 從這裏量起.

Write as far as to this; hsie tao chæ-li wei-chĭ 寫到這裏爲止.

Measure from here as far as to the front door; ts'ong chæ-li liang ch'i, liang tao ta-men wei-chĭ 從這裏量起量到大門爲止.

Measurement and Weight.

4. In Lesson III. Section 1, it was pointed out that the words indicating 'ten hundred,' or, 'ten thousand,' were taken as units of calculation for all numbers exceeding these amounts; e.g., 1,300 was one thousand three hundred; not 'thirteen hundred.' The same principle holds good in measurements; chang 丈, a measure of ten Chinese feet, being taken as the unit, whether in a statement or a question. Chi 幾, 多, and sometimes to-shao 多少, are used interrogatively as in Lesson XII. 2. In Hankow and the adjacent region 幾多 chi-to is used for How many? but such a use is not common in the North; hao to 好多 is used in the West. To 多 often passes from an interrogation to an exclamation as in English; when so used in the North it usually has 麼 mo joined to it; e.g.,

How long is this? chæ iu to ch'ang? 這有多長.

Not very long; muh iu to ch'ang 沒有多長.

How long is that (if over ten feet)? na iu ih-chang chi? 那有一丈幾.

That is forty-five feet three inches long; na iu si chang, u ch'ih, san ts'uen ch'ang 那有四丈五尺三寸長.

That house is not very high; na-ko fang-tsi muh iu to (or chi) kao 那個房子沒有多(或幾)高.

That thing is not very heavy; na-ko tong-hsi muh iu to chong 那個東西沒有多重.

I do not know how high it is; o puh hsiao-teh to kao 我不曉得多高.

What a fine looking child! na-ko hai-tsi to-mo hao-k'an ni! 那個孩子多麼好看呢.

Luen 論 as indicating Quantity or Measure.

5. Among many uses of the word 'by,' in English, is one which relates to measuring; as, Measure your desires by your fortunes; It was sold by the ounce; I engaged him by the day; etc. The word luen 論 'to discuss,' corresponds to this use of 'by'; a significant fact in view of the amount of haggling which goes on when bargains are made; e.g.,

This was bought by weight; chæ shi luen fen-liang mai tih 這是論分兩買的.

That was bought by measure; na shi luen ch'ih-ts'uen mai tih 那是論尺寸買的.

By the day; luen t'ien 論天.

That paper was bought by the sheet; na-ko chi shi luen chang-mai ih 那個紙是論張買的.

Electricity: Expressions relating thereto.

6. The introduction of telegraphy has given rise to a number of expressions in common use, formed on the same plan as those mentioned in Lesson XII. Section 4. Some of the commonest are the following:—

Electricity; tien-ch'i 電氣.

Telegraph office; tien-pao ch'uh 電報局.

Telegram; tien-pao 電報.

局 政裏 郵箱 到信 送在有信 信放沒回 封個信等穀三電要錢裏麼，里早天 這這回他不個送他塊這甚三主上 把把有叫穀貼他問兩從怕穀救他 票 穀 怕 們了 死 我去 替福 信來條不起要 分報收穀算不地已享

Newspapers and Telegraphs.

新聞速傳

從古以來、中國有報、名叫京報、因爲是在北京印的、從京裏發的。報上說的、盡是官場中的事、誰做官、誰候補、那一個升官、那一個革職、是一天發一回、不是機器印的、乃是木板刻的、也是印在粗紙上。早幾十年、有個耶穌教的牧師、姓戴、心靈得很、想了法子、做出活字板來、叫擺字的、先把字擺好、後來用機器刷印、這比刻字更便當、所以現在各省都有報館、用機器印報、

Negative Forms of Sentences.

1. Chinese shews a great partiality for the use of negatives. Where, for instance, English would prefer, 'The men were many;' Chinese would usually prefer, 'The men were not few.' In some cases such a negative construction adds force; in other cases the sentence cast in this form runs better. The same is true of double negatives, which both in Chinese as in English make an affirmative. For instance, 'Dogs will eat anything,' or, 'There is nothing dogs will not eat,' mean the same thing, but the latter form would be more forcible in Chinese; e.g., 將相本無種男兒當自強 Generals and Premiers do not spring from seed; youth must rely on their own exertions.

He has a good deal of money; t'a-tih ch'ien puh shao 他的錢不少。
 Dogs will eat anything; keo muh iu puh ch'ih tih 狗沒有不吃的。
 All went; muh iu puh ch'ü tih 沒有不去的。
 None but want money; muh iu puh iao ch'ien tih 沒有不要錢的。

Numerals used as Adverbs.

2. Numerals used as adverbs in English are expressed in two ways. For instance, we say, 'He came once, twice, thrice,' but beyond this number we commonly employ the word 'times,' as, 'He came four times.' This latter form is regularly used in Chinese. The words denoting 'times' vary according to the nature of the subject, and may be translated variously by 'once'; 'a time'; 'a spell'; etc. Both huei 回, hsia 下, tao 道, and t'ang 趟 are used; e.g.,

I upbraided him on two occasions; o shoh-ko t'a liang huei 我說過他兩回。

Mr. Li has been three times; Li hsien-seng lai-ko san t'ang 李先生來過三趟。

He struck him four times; or, He gave him four stripes; t'a ta t'a si hsia 他打他四下。

Sing it again; tsai ch'ang ih huei 再唱一回。

The second time; ti-ri huei 第二回。

How often? chi huei? 幾回。

The last time; shang huei 上回。

The next time; hsia huei 下回。

It is so every time; huei huei shi ch'æ-ang 回回是這樣。

I invited him once, but he would not come; o ch'ing-ko t'a ih-huei t'a puh k'en lai 我請過他一回他不肯來。

I have been here twice before; o lai-ko liang t'ang 我來過兩趟。

Fah 發: its Force and Usage.

3. Fah 發 conveys the idea of 'manifestation,' 'development,' or 'expression in action'; e.g.,

His face has a yellow tinge; t'a lien shang fah huang 他臉上發黃。

The bread has not risen well; man-t'eo muh iu fah hao 饅頭沒有發好。

Such words as 'get,' 'grow,' 'become,' etc., often give its meaning but the connection alone can decide its force; e.g.,

He became faint; t'a fah ruan 他發軟. L. 29.

Send an extra letter; to fah ih-feng hsin ch'ü 多發一封信去。

Ren 人 as a Suffix.

4. The word ren 人 is used with many verbs to indicate the effect upon the individual. It thus has something in common with our English use of the word 'you,' or 'one,' which is often used in a general way without any special reference to the person addressed. For instance, when we say, 'It exasperates you to hear him say so,' we may mean 'It is exasperating,' without any reference to a particular individual, or we may mean it has exasperated the person or persons in question. This, however, the connection alone can determine, and so in Chinese; e.g.,

Is not his talk exasperating? t'a chae-hsie hua ch'i-ren puh ch'i-ren? 他這些話氣人不氣人。

God always loves; Shang-ti ch'ang ai-ren 上帝常愛人。

Virtue does not fear; hao si puh p'a-ren 好事不怕人。

Ch'u 處 as indicating Place and Circumstances.

5. In English such words as 'place'; 'situation'; 'position'; are used both literally and figuratively. We speak of a place as referring to a locality, and we also speak of a person being in a 'tight place,' in reference to his circumstances: and so of 'situation,' 'position,' and other words. The word 處 ch'u approximates somewhat to this in Chinese, being applied to a place and to a condition, or combination of circumstances. The character of such circumstances is indicated by some suitable word which denotes its quality, as, e.g., 好處 hao-ch'u the condition of goodness, etc. In some districts 處 ch'u is used more freely than in others, being joined to almost any adjective or participle. The following forms are current everywhere:—

Shortcomings; faults; tuan-ch'u 短處.

He constantly talks of my son's shortcomings; t'a ch'ang shoh o ri-tsi tih tuan-ch'u 他常說我兒子的短處.

That child is not vicious; na-ko hai-tsi muh iu huai-ch'u 那個孩子沒有壞處.

Lao 老 and Chiu 舊: Distinction between.

6. There are many English words which are applied indiscriminately to things and persons. We say, 'An old hat'; 'An old man'; and use the one word 'old' for both, but the Chinese use one word for 'old' in the first case, and another in the second. Generally speaking, chiu 舊 is applied to inanimate objects, and lao 老 to living creatures, and to age. A man is lao 老, but his hat is chiu 舊. Things that have fulfilled their functions and are worn out, as a decayed tree, are often spoken of as lao 老; e.g.,

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

I cannot find this character; chæ-ko tsi o ch'a puh ch'uh lai.

There are men everywhere; koh tao koh ch'u iu ren.

There are officials in every city; koh fu, cheo, hsien, iu kuan.

He has gone upstairs; t'a shang leo ch'ü liao.

Tell him to come downstairs; chiao t'a hsia leo lai.

Sixteen ounces to a pound; ih chin shi shih-luh liang.

This letter must be registered; chæ-feng hsin iao kua-hao.

He is a filial son; t'a shi ko hsiao tsi.

He respects his parents; t'a hsiao-ching fu-mu.

He shews great earnestness; t'a fah ta reh-hsin.

He entered the church last Sunday; t'a shang li-pai-rih chin chiao.

They worship God in the church; t'a-men tsai chiao-t'ang pai Shang-ti.

Translate:—All these letters, without exception, were registered. That old gentleman wears an old hat and an old pair of shoes. China has twenty odd provinces; a few years ago there were only eighteen; in every province there are Prefectures, Departments and Districts; the Prefecture of 太平 has eight Districts; the District magistrate came last year; his name is 黃. Meat is bought by the pound, calico by the foot; go and buy 2 lbs. 3 oz. of pork and 10 ft. and 1 in. of Chinese calico. There are trees and grass outside the city; it is really pretty. How many times have you been there? I went once last year and twice during the summer of this year. Tell him to come in and not to stand outside; it is cold outside. He is a bad man; there is no benefit in managing affairs with him. Be so good as to look up this character 敝 for me in the dictionary; I cannot find it. I came once last month, and he was not at home; I come again, and he still is not at home; is it not exasperating! To do nothing but speak of peoples' faults is bad. The first time he measured from here; this time he measured from the North gate as far as to the door of the chapel. The number of those who come to the church to listen to the doctrine is many; they come once every day in the afternoon. The newly-built chapel is twice as large as the old one; it will hold, seated to the full, between 300 and 400 people. How excellent!

本地風光

天上地下所有的東西、沒有一樣不是上帝造的、無論是天上的日月星三光、是世界的江湖河海、是人、是東西、都是他造成的。太初他用六天的工夫、把這一切都造出來給人用、他光吩咐一聲、就有光、有暗、有草木、有鳥獸、有海中的魚、和天下的人。若叫人造一樣的活東西、就是給他材料、把他關在房裏、對他說、你若造不成、就叫你出來、他一輩子出不來了。連盤古也是這樣、就是叫他颰風下雨下雪下霜、叫太陽出來晒熟莊稼、他連一樣也做不出。

有八千多里地長，從東到西有一萬二千六百多里地寬，也分爲二十二省。一省的人有一省人的樣子，各省也有各省出的東西，有出金、銀、銅、鐵的，有出木頭的，不能都出一樣。在北邊有一道河，叫黃河，在南邊有一道江，叫長江，也有人叫大江的，這算是中國兩條頂長的河。黃河水不深，火輪船行不開，長江從江口直往西一千八百多里地，大船小船沒有不能上去的。各到各處蓋樓住的人少，十個人有八九個不住在樓上。有的地方山地少，有的地方山地多。在西邊離上海四五千多里地，有大高山，穀有一千一二百丈高，那麼高的高山，真是太冷了，不好住。那個地方，人、豬、雞、羊、牛、狗，都很少。各省都有大城、小城，就是府、州、縣，這些城有知府、知州、知縣。有人說，古時候有一個老先生做官，生了三個兒子，都做孝子，念書也念得很好，後來都做了官，一個做府官，一個做州官，一個做縣官。那一家的人可以算有福了，人生那樣有用處的兒子少得很，有的人生兒子一點長處都沒有，兒子長大了，就不孝敬父母，叫父母的心有大難處，你我不可那樣行，都要做好人。

Compound Adverbs.

1. Adverbs are frequently repeated before verbs. A large number of adjectives are thus turned into adverbs by repetition, and in such cases generally take a suffix, the commonest being 的 tih. Some adjectives given in preceding Lessons may be so turned into compound adverbs ; e.g.,

威人不自在, 自在不成人 To make a man of yourself you must toil ; if you don't you won't.

He explained in detail; t'a hsi-hsi-tih shoh 他細細的說.

She saw him afar off; t'a üen-üen-tih k'an-chien t'a 他遠遠的看見他.

They hung it up high; t'a-men kao-kao-tih kua ch'i-lai 他們高高的掛起來.

Abstract Nouns of Quality.

2. Abstract ideas are difficult to express in Chinese. Anything concrete is much more easily spoken of; it is almost impossible to render such terms as 'whiteness,' 'blackness,' etc. Such words as 'weight,' 'thickness,' etc., are expressed by an idiom which combines two words of opposite meaning, thus forming abstract nouns of quality. Some examples have already been given, viz., 買賣 mai-mai, 'business'; 尺寸 ch'ih-ts'uen, 'measurement.' Others are 遠近 üen-chin far near, i.e., 'distance'; 輕重 ch'ing-chong, light heavy, i.e., 'weight'. When 不 puh precedes each adjective it indicates the medium between them; e.g.,

The same thickness; ih-iang-tih heo poh 一樣的厚薄.

How about the size? ta-hsiao tsen-mo-iang? 大小怎麼樣.

A moderate distance off; puh üen puh chin 不遠不近.

Fah 法 as a Suffix indicating Manner.

3. The manner in which an action is done is denoted by the word 法 fah, meaning 'A Law; a rule'; affixed to a verb it indicates the 'law' according to which things are done. At times it is joined to a noun, but this is not common; e.g.,

It is done in this way; sh' ch'ia-iang tso-fah 是這樣做法.

It is not written like this; puh sh' ch'ia-iang hsie-fah 不是這樣寫法.

How do you say this sentence? ch'ia-ch'ü-hua sh' tsen-mo shoh-fah? 這句話是怎麼說法.

Shang 上 hsia 下 and ko 過 used as Auxiliaries.

4. The words 上 shang 下 hsia and 過 ko, may be joined to 來 lai and 去 ch'ü to form principal verbs, or they may be used as auxiliary to a principal verb in the same manner as 起來 ch'i-lai and 出來 ch'uh-lai; e.g.,

Come over here; ko-lai 過來.

Go over there; ko-ch'ü 過去.

Bring the book over here; pa shu na ko-lai 把書拿過來.

Go down; hsia-ch'ü 下去; go up; shang-ch'ü 上去.

Come down; hsia-lai 下來.

Come up; shang-lai 上來.

Carry it up; t'ai shang-lai 抬上來.

Take it down; tai hsia-ch'ü 帶下去.

Pen 本: its Use and Force.

5. Pen 本, 'origin,' or 'root,' is used as a pronoun in certain connections; officials and memorialists employ it in speaking of themselves in documents. It has also passed into the colloquial and is prefixed to nouns to distinguish them as peculiar to a person, to the place where, and to the time when he lives. It needs to be translated according to the context in which it is found, as 'This'; 'The one in question'; 'I,' etc.; e.g.,

Native; the place in question; pen-ti 本地.

Natives of a place; pen-ti ren 本地人.

This street; pen kiai 本街.

My country; my native land; pen kueh 本國.

This month; pen üeh 本月.

Chiang 匠 in combination.

6. In Lesson X. Section 3, it was explained that 的 tih indicated 'an agent,' or 'doer.' Many occupations are thus defined, but there are others which are more commonly indicated by 匠 chiang. The following are a few of the commonest:

Carpenter; muh-chiang 木匠.

Stonemason; shih-chiang 石匠.

Blacksmith; t'ieh-chiang 鐵匠.

Brassworker; t'ong-chiang 銅匠.

Silversmith; in-chiang 銀匠.

[See Lesson XXIX.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

There are both round and square ones; üen tih fang tih tu in.

He is very angry; t'a seng ta ch'i.

and lived in this street. Tell him to come up quickly, and not to wait outside the front door. He is constantly abusing people; as soon as he opens his mouth he begins to curse; he is not a good man; everybody says he is bad. Carry that round table over here, and carry this square one over there. The carpenters want their money; they are waiting below; tell them to wait a little longer, I don't want them to come upstairs now. You may reckon four days' labour. He exhorted them four times, but failed to move them; they still abused people. To act thus is to provoke people to anger. When the Saviour ascended to Heaven He told His disciples to go all over the world and propagate religion. Afterwards His disciples went to every country and preached, and very many believed. When He came to the world He was a poor man; He was a carpenter. Afterwards He went forth and preached in His native country, exhorting people to believe and trust in God. Sing the 101st hymn.

3. Correct, if necessary, the following, and give reasons for the correction :—

泡茶好了。有沒有我的布？你的碗大一樣。他住在北。在南西邊。他走三里。太平這裏離多遠。明天我們趕到了。我箱子四十件書不裝。沒有滿了裝。這個東西木頭是做的。他來的是從那裏。這裏起念第三個章六根節。多高。這是我不知道。那件布是尺寸論買。一百尺三寸短。他送過報電和票信來。樓上你要去現在。他三回來。一下打他得很重。他的臉紅發了。沒有好處。這匹事情。小孩子戴兩雙老鞋穿了一塊老帽子。舊年紀的先生說老舊不分。做鐵路的人罵他。道理傳好好的。做饅頭的匠。寫法是這個。叫他來上抬。有方有圓的。

4. Write in Chinese character :—

I want to meet him next time. What did he say last time? When did he go? He went the 23rd of last month. I saw him when I was at home, but I do not know where he is now. He invited the wrong person. I heard it said at that time that he had money and was engaged in business in Shanghai. On the 21st of the 5th month that old woman came to change money. Can they come? They can all come. He is not fond of going out. The things inside are better than those outside. What does the letter say? After he had finished doing it, he went to the house of Mr. Chang. He first said, The people are too many; afterwards he said, The old people are too few. Did you know that those four gentlemen came in the 5th month?

Passive Voice: How expressed.

1. There are several ways of expressing the Passive Voice in Chinese. Sometimes no special word is needed as it is contained in the construction, especially with 是 shī and 的 tih; at other times special forms are used. These in turn, vary in their use according as the one on whom the action terminates is affected by it; as for example, whether he suffers or is benefited. The commonest and most colourless form is 被 pei. This is most usual in the South, 欲爲人上人,先受苦中苦 You must first endure much travail, if you wish to come out on top.

but in the North 叫 chiao or 教 chiao largely replaces it in colloquial use.

Sheo 受 tsao 遭 and ch'ih 吃, more commonly refer to anything met with or borne of an undesirable character, as loss, suffering, injury, etc. Meng 蒙 on the other hand points out a person as the recipient of some favour; as does 領 ling in certain connections; e.g.,

He was struck by a stone; t'a pei shih-t'eo ta liao 他被石頭打了.

I don't know by whom that money was taken; o puh chi-tao na ch'ien chiao shui na liao ch'ü 我不知道那錢叫誰拿了去.

I have been injured by him; o sheo-ko t'a-tih hai 我受過他的害.

They suffered greatly; t'a-men ch'ih ta k'u 他們吃大苦.

She received two cash notes; t'a ling-liao liang-chang ch'ien p'iao 他領了兩張錢票.

We are all recipients of the Saviour's grace; o-men tu meng-liao Chiu-chu-tih en-huei 我們都蒙了救主的恩惠.

I-ching 已經: its Use and Force.

2. I-ching 已經 is stronger than 了 liao used alone, and when it precedes a verb 了 liao often follows it; e.g.,

I have already spoken twice; o i-ching shoh-ko liang-huei 我已經說過兩回.

He has already received the silver; t'a i-ching ling-liao in-tsi 他已經領了銀子.

There is no help for it, the business is already ruined; muh iu fah-tsi, si-ch'ing i-ching huai liao 沒有法子,事情已經壞了.

Pa 罷: How and where used.

3. Pa 罷 may stand at the beginning or end of a sentence. When it stands at the beginning it usually takes 了 liao, and is commonly repeated. So used it expresses satisfaction or acquiescence. As a final particle it may be variously translated according as it stands as a sign of the Imperative, or denotes a query. Its special uses must be watched and gradually acquired.

It is enough! my son is yet alive; pa-liao, pa-liao, o-tih ri-tsi huan tsai 罷了罷了,我的兒子還在.

I wonder if you have any boiling water? I am afraid not; ni iu k'ai shui pa? muh iu pa 你有開水罷,沒有罷.

Let us go; o men tseo pa 我們走罷.

Begone; ch'ü pa 去罷.

There's an end of it, say no more about it; suan liao pa, puh iao to shoh 算了罷,不要多說.

N.A. Care should be taken in using the fourth sentence, as it expresses a desire to be rid of a person in the strongest possible manner.

Shi 使: How used.

4. Shi 使, Lesson VIII. was defined as 'To cause.' It and 叫 chiao or 教 chiao is used to indicate end or purpose; to denote the cause or reason, and in some connections to point out the manner of action. In the South 給 chih is employed in a similar sense, but so used it is not heard in the North. Chiao 叫 is most commonly used and is rather more colloquial than 使 shi; it is often coupled with 好 hao with no change of meaning; e.g.,

You really put me in a difficulty; ní chen chiao o uei nan 你真叫我爲難.

He speaks so as to make people angry; t'á shoh-hua chiao ren seng-ch'í 他說話叫人生氣.

Better not let him go; puh k'o-i chih t'á ch'ü 不可以給他去.

We preach that men may trust the Saviour; o-men chiang tao-li chiao ren k'ao Chiu-chu 我們講道理叫人靠救主.

Give me the money that I may return home; pa ch'ien chih o, chiao o hao hwei chia ch'ü 把錢給我叫我好回家去.

Nei 內 and Uai 外.

5. Nei 內 and uai are opposites, 外 uai denoting anything over and above, or external to something else; it is specially applied to relatives through the female branches; 內 nei has an inclusive sense; e.g.,

An outsider; uai lu ren 外路人.

Outside; overplus; tsai uai 在外.

A province other than that of the speaker; uai seng 外省.

An outsider; one outside the business; uai hang 外行.

An expert; 'an insider'; nei hang 內行.

Within; included; tsai nei 在內.

Not included; puh tsai nei 不在內.

The interior—of a country; nei ti 內地.

Tsai nei 在內 and tsai uai 在外 are placed at the end of sentences; 另 ling or 另外 ling-uai usually at the beginning; e.g.,

That silk is extra; na ch'eo-tsi tsai uai 那綢子在外.

The twenty cents is included in the reckoning; ri chioh ch'ien suan tsai nei 二角錢算在內.

The 400 cash is not included; na si-peh ch'ien puh tsai nei 那四百錢不在內.

NOTES.—a. Hsioh-fang 學房 is also used for 'school.'

b. Pupils are styled 門生 men-seng as well as 學生 hsioh-seng. A teacher would use the term in speaking to or of his own pupils.

c. The following expressions relating to the country will be found useful:—Down in the country; tsai hsiang hsia 在鄉下; To go to the country; hsia hsiang 下鄉: country people; hsiang-hsia ren 鄉下人.

The Saviour suffered that we might be saved; Chiu-chu sheo k'u chiao o-men teh chiu.

Idols have no means of saving men; p'u-sa muh iu fah-tsî chiu ren.

*Translate:—*He was eaten by a lion. He has been ill for two months, and there is no means of curing him; I fear he cannot get better. He keeps two pigs, three dogs, and also keeps twenty chickens. On the 3rd of the 12th month it snowed heavily; on the 4th it rained heavily. It does not thunder in the winter, but in the summer. That scholar has great ability; his teacher says he will be a doctor. Dr. Li has opened a hospital outside the city; he sees patients every day; people come to see him, both from the city and the country. He writes a prescription and says, Take two doses a day. Some are unwilling to take foreign medicine and go to the native drug shop to buy native medicine. The medicine he dispenses is very efficacious. When you go out of the city, go straight on; four li from the city there is the village of the Chang family; at the east end there is a temple, at the west end there is a school. You are there as soon as you cross the bridge. I think he has already gone. The tea-cups and the silk are included; the medicine is extra. The capital city of every country is much larger than the provincial capital. I cannot think of a plan; can you? Neither can I. That hospital is three storeys high; we have no house so high as that in this city. He bought the wrong medicine and was injured in consequence. Idols are made by men's hands, and men place them in temples. Some are made of wood, others of stone, gold or silver. They cannot walk, nor speak, nor save men; to pray to them is useless. The Saviour is able to save our souls; we may all accept His saving grace and obtain salvation.

London.

談叙倫敦

我們上回¹不是論說英國和英國人麼、這³一回我要說英國京城的事。這座城可算是天下頂大的城、再沒有比他大的、城裏住的人有七八百萬、早年有城牆、有城門樓子、現在城根還在、但人多起來牆算無用。城裏的街道修的好看、又大、又寬、又乾淨、天天有人淨街⁵、舖子也多、裏頭本國的各樣東西都有、還有外路來的東西很多。房子頂高、有三層樓的、有六七八層樓的。城東西南北都有火車站、人要下鄉不難、也不要出多少錢、鄉下人上來辦事、買東西、也不用多出錢。在城中有兩個大院、名叫上議院⁶、下議院⁷、大官和臣子在那裏頭商議一國要緊的事、年年皇上親自去開這兩個院、對臣子說幾句話、勸他們認真辦事。城裏還有好些醫院、人生病、

Concurrence: how expressed.

1. Numerical order is usually indicated by 第 ti before numbers. Some exceptions were noticed in Lesson V. Section 2; other additional exceptions are also herewith given. For instance, in the recapitulation of events, or narration of them in regular sequence 第 ti is not required; such expressions being the equivalent of phrases like 'In the first place'; 'In the next place'; 'On the one hand'; 'On the other hand'; 'Both and; ' etc. This last phrase may either indicate: a, simultaneous action; b, the possession of more than one quality; c, the enumeration of events. The Chinese equivalents are employed in similar applications. The following expressions are those most commonly used in this construction: 一層 ih ts'eng; 一面 ih-mien; 一邊 ih-pien; 一來 ih-lai; 二來 ri-lai; 又 又 iu iu; 隨 隨 sui sui; 一不 ih puh; 二不 ri puh; e.g., 吃不盡的苦, 學不盡的怪 There is no end to the experience that may be gained, nor to the suffering endured—in gaining it.

In the first place I have no time, and in the second place no money; o ih-ts'eng muh iu kong-fu; ri-ts'eng muh iu ch'ien 我一層沒有工夫, 二層沒有錢.

He is unwilling in the first place, and unable in the second; t'a ih puh k'en, ri puh neng 他一不肯, 二不能.

In the first place the doctor had no ability; and in the second place the medicine was of no value; ih-lai i-seng muh iu pen-si, ri-lai ioh puh ling 一來醫生沒有本事, 二來藥不靈.

That child cries as she walks; na-ko hai-tsi sui tseo sui k'uh 那個孩子隨走隨哭.

He preaches as he goes; t'a ih-mien tseo, ih-mien ch'uan-chiao 他一面走, 一面傳教.

Mr. Li has both wealth and land; Li hsien-seng iu ch'ien iu ti 李先生有錢有地.

Result of Actions: how indicated.

2. The effect or result of an action which is commonly indicated in English by such words as 'through,' 'by,' etc., as 'He lost his sight through lightning,' is expressed in Chinese by a verb followed by an adjective or any word that does duty for it, without anything special to shew instrumentality; i.e., the verb shews the cause, the word following, the effect; e.g.,

He is blind through crying; t'a-tih ien-ching k'uh huai-liao 他的眼睛哭壞了.

My clothes are dirty through being hung up; o-tih i-shang kua tsang-liao 我的衣裳掛髒了.

This pair of shoes is ruined by wear; chae-shuang hsiat-tsi ch'uan huai-liao 這雙鞋子穿壞了.

Relation and Lack of Relation.

3. Idiomatic phrases which express lack of relation, such as 'No matter'; 'Just as you like'; etc. scarcely fall under any well-defined grammatical rule. Generally speaking they convey the idea of unconcern and lack of interest, or else indicate a careless assent in view of something to follow. The subjoined expressions are used to express these ideas:—

I don't care; o puh kuan 我不管.

Never mind who it is; puh uen shi shui (or na-ih-ko) 不問是誰, (or 那一個).

No matter what you say, he is unwilling; ni u-luen tsen-mo shoh, t'a chiu-shi puh k'en 你無論怎麼說, 他就是不肯.

Just as you like about going; ch'ü puh ch'ü sui ni-tih pien 去不去隨你的便.

He talks quite beside the mark; t'a shoh hsie puh hsiang kan tih hua 他說些不相干的話.

It has nothing to do with me; chae si ü o u kan 這事與我無干.

Take no notice of him whatever he says; puh luen t'a shoh shen-mo puh iao li t'a 不論他說甚麼不要理他.

On the other hand the idea of relationship, such as is denoted in English by 'mutual'; 'reciprocal'; etc., is usually indicated by 相 hsiang before a verb; or by 彼此 pi-ts'i; e.g.,

This has to do with him; chæ s'i ü t'a in hsiang kan 這事與他有相干.

We all meet here to-day; o-men chin-t'ien tu tsai-chæ-li hsiang hwei 我們今天都在這裏相會.

To love one another; pi-ts'i hsiang ai 彼此相愛.

So 所 as a Relative Pronoun.

4. The Relative Pronoun 所 so used in a relative clause, precedes the verb; the noun on which it is dependent standing at the end of the clause; i.e., its position is before the noun, and not as in English after it; e.g.,

The books which we read is, 'The we which read books'; o-men so nien-tih shu 我們所念的書; shu, the books; so, which; o-men, we; nien, read.

The doctrine which we preach; o-men so Chiang-tih tao-li 我們所講的道理.

The flowers that he bought; t'a so mai-tih hua 他所買的花.

The words that were spoken; so shoh-tih hua 所說的話.

The men that came; so lai-tih ren 所來的人.

It is my business to do it; chæ sh'i o so tang pan tih si 這是我所當辦的事.

So 所 has also an inclusive sense, which is emphasized by the addition of 有 iu; e.g.,

All the things that I have; o so-iu-tih tong-hsi 我所有的東西.

The whole of his money is here; t'a so-iu-tih ch'ien tu tsai-chæ-li 他所有的錢都在這裏.

Tang 當: Some uses of.

5. Tang 當 is a very difficult word to use, and a beginner is apt to be dazed by the various meanings it takes on in various connections. It may be helpful to consider here three of its principal uses:—

a. It stands for what is, in the nature of things, fitting or right.

Thus used it sometimes stands alone, and at other times has 本 pen or 該 kai joined to it; e.g.,

You should act in this way; kai-tang chæ-iang hsing 該當這樣行

You have no right to curse him; ni puh tang ma t'a 你不當罵他.

It is properly my duty to say this; o pen-tang shoh chæ hua 我本當說這話.

b. To stand for; to represent; to regard as.

Take, for example, the sentence: He regards money as of no value; t'a na ch'ien puh tang ch'ien iong 他拿錢不當錢用;

i.e., t'a, he; iong, uses; na, introducing object; ch'ien, money; puh tang, as though it did not stand in the place of (i.e., as if it were anything else than) ch'ien, money. Or, I have fallen into his trap; o shang-liao t'a-tih tang 我上了他的當; o, I; shang-liao, have gone into; t'a-tih, his; tang, what stood in the place of—what I thought it was—trap.

Will you kindly pawn this for me; ch'ing ni chih o tang ko tang 請你給我當個當.

He has gone to redeem a pledge; t'a shang tang p'u-tsü shuh tang ch'ü 他上當舖子贖當去.

I was taken in by him to-day; o chin-t'ien shang t'a ih-ko tang 我今天上他一個當.

Whom do you take him to be? ni pa t'a tang shen-mo ren? 你把他當甚麼人.

He makes the false stand for the true, the true for the false; t'a pa chia-tih tang tso chen-tih, chen-tih tang tso chia-tih 他把假的當做真的, 真的當做假的.

A pawn ticket; ih-chang tang p'iao-tsü 一張當票子.

c. At the time of; to serve in the capacity of.

You cannot go and return on the same day; tang-t'ien ch'ü, puh neng hwei-lai 當天去, 不能回來.

At that time I was ill; na-ko tang-k'eo o iu-liao ping 那個當口我有了病.

Chang Iu-fah is acting in the capacity of a teacher; Chang Iu-fah tang hsien-seng 章有發當先生

Ken 跟: Idiomatic use of.

6. In addition to its primary meaning of 'to follow,' 跟 ken has a few idiomatic uses with which one needs to be familiar; e.g.,

I studied Mandarin under Mr. Hai; o ken (or ts'ong) Hai hsien-seng hsioh kuan-hua 我跟 (or 從) 海先生學官話.

He learned how to calculate from Mr. Li; t'a ken Li Lao-pan hsioh suan-fah 他跟李老板學算法.

I went with Mr. Li to Peking; o ken Li hsien-seng shang Peh-ching ch'ü 我跟李先生上北京去.

They applied to him for money; t'a-men ken t'a iao ch'ien 他們跟他要錢.

Fei 費: How used.

7. Fei 費 carries with it the idea of putting one self about; or of going to some trouble; e.g.,

To expend effort; troublesome; fei sî 費事.

I put myself to no end of trouble on his account; puh chî-tao uei t'a fei-liao to-shao sî 不知道爲他費了多少事.

This is a troublesome affair; ch'ae sî chen fei lih 這事真費力.

You have put yourself about for me; hsien-seng uei o fei-liao 先生爲我費了心.

It may often be translated by the word 'expenses,' the word which indicates the cause of the expense immediately preceding it; e.g.,

The expenses are heavy; iong-fei or fei-iong ta 用費 or 費用大.

The expense of cart hire was considerable; ch'æ fei puh hsiao 車費不小.

His father gave him 400 cash for travelling expenses; t'a-tih fu-ch'in song t'a si peh ch'ien tih lu-fei 他的父親送他四百錢的路費.

NOTES.—a. As a N. A., so 所 refers to a block of buildings composed of several chien 間.

[See Lesson XXIX.]

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

He fears neither God nor man; t'a ih puh p'a shen, ri puh p'a ren.

This is very inconvenient; chæ hen puh pien-tang.

He has gone on a long journey; t'a ch'uh ien men.

Is this expression generally understood? chæ-chü hua t'ong-hsing puh t'ong-hsing?

They were burnt to death; t'a-men shao si liao.

How much do you owe him? ni kai t'a to-shao ch'ien?

Add a little more; tsai chia shang ih-tien.

He cannot manage that child; t'a kuan puh choh na-ko hai-tsi.

They prayed for rain but in vain; t'a-men ch'iu ü ch'iu puh hsia-lai.

He spent a great deal of money; t'a hua ch'ien puh shao.

I am going whether or no; u-luen tsen-mo-iang o iao ch'ü.

I was taken in when I bought this; mai chæ-ko chiu shang-liao tang.

The Saviour redeemed us from sin; Chiu-chiu uei o-men shuh tsui.

*Translate:—*From whom did you learn Mandarin? Just as he likes; (if) he comes well and good; (if) he does not very well. It is a troublesome business learning English; the books are difficult to read; the words are difficult to write, but come what may I will learn it. No matter whether they were lions or tigers he did not fear them. The teacher struck the scholar a blow and destroyed one of his eyes. What he does, does not agree with what he says. That coolie carried my box and spoilt it in the carriage. On the one hand he talks unreasonably, and on the other, he curses as soon as he opens his mouth; take no notice of him. He learnt to use the abacus from Mr. Chang. No matter what he does, I cannot keep up with him. Follow me. My heel is injured. I took him for a doctor, but I mistook my man. That man named Li is very poor; on the 6th of last month he went to the pawn shop and pawned a garment; now that the weather is cold he wants to redeem it and cannot, and cannot think of a plan; you think of one for him. This matter has nothing to do with me; I cannot look after his business. I have been taken in by him twice. How will it do for you to go with me? He owes you Tls. 2 $\frac{3}{4}$; why don't you apply to him for them? I did so yesterday, and he said it was not convenient to repay it just now, but he would see later on. (If) we pray to God, He will hear our prayer. More than 1,800 years ago the Saviour died for us on the cross in order to redeem us from sin; grace such as this is higher than the heavens, beyond the thought of man.

READING LESSON XVII. 七十第要輯

The Unwary Youth I.

癡心出洋

這十幾年以來、中國把從古時候所守的章程廢了、看重西學、熱學、地學、格物、算學、光學、化學、代數、和各種的外國學問、自從改了章程以後、有許多年輕的人、心裏想、若能跑到外國去學過一年半載、就能把一肚子的學問帶回來、卻不想、一來要有天分、二來要有工夫、纔能學到好處、花錢更不用說、有天分的也

1. I³-lai³ 以來 This expression follows some reference to time and is not used alone: 這十幾年以來
2. Sheo³ 守 To observe; to keep. L. 26.

Reflexive Pronoun tsi-chi 自己.

1. The word 自己 tsi-chi may be added to pronouns in Chinese, like the word 'self' in English, and with the same force; viz., either to impart emphasis, as, I myself; or to shew that the action is turned back upon the agent, as, I hurt myself. Ch'in 親 and pen 本 are also used with the same meaning, but differ from 自己 tsi-chi in that they have no possessive form; e.g.,

在家千日好, 出門時時難 At home it is pleasant all the time; abroad it is unpleasant continually.

I wrote this myself ; chæ shī o ch'in-tsi hsie tih 這是我親自寫的。
 He saw it with his own eyes ; t'a ch'in-ien k'an-chien 他親眼看見。
 I struck him with my own hand ; o ch'in-sheo ta t'a 我親手打他。
 I myself am also sick ; o pen-shen ie hai ping 我本身也害病。

Myself ;	o	} tsi -我	} 自己 and so with the plural forms.
Thyself ;	ni
Himself ;	t'a
My own ;	o	} tsi -我	} 自己的 and so with the plural forms.
Thine own ;	ni
His own ;	t'a

Either . . . or ; Neither . . . nor.

2. Sentences containing correlative phrases, i.e., introduced by "either . . . or"; "neither . . . nor"; "both . . . and"; are variously translated. Sometimes a Chinese equivalent hai 還 . . . hai 還, or ie 也 . . . ie 也 is used, at other times it is omitted as being obviously understood ; e.g.,

Is it you or he ? shī ni shī t'a ? 是你是他。

Did he say it or did you ? shī t'a shoh-tih shī ni shoh-tih ? 是他說的, 是你說的。

If he did not say it, then you did ; puh shī t'a shoh-tih chin-shī ni shoh-tih 不是他說的就是你說的。

Did you do it or did he ? hai shī ni tso-tih, hai shī t'a tso-tih ? 還是你做的, 還是他做的。

He worships neither God nor idols ; t'a ie puh pai Shang-ti, ie puh pai p'u-sa 他也不拜上帝, 也不拜菩薩。

Neither has he much ability ; t'a ie muh iu shen-mo pen-si 他也沒有甚麼本事。

Supposition : how expressed.

3. Sentences indicating supposition or condition are formed by 若 roh or 若是 roh-shī ; by 要 iao or 要是 iao shī ; and by 不是 puh shī . . . 就是 chui-shī followed by the corresponding correlative 就 chui, 也 ie, 還 huan, and some others. Euphony usually decides whether 若 roh shall be used alone or not, the addition of 是 shī does not affect the meaning. One of the things that makes good Chinese is the right use of suitable words—correlative conjunctions—to express the relation between sentences ; but as usage is the thing that decides, it is difficult to lay down any definite rules, save to point out that 就 chui and 也 ie are among the commonest connectives.

The consideration of 若 roh has been left to this Lesson, as it is a fault of beginners to use it too freely. Supposition is very frequently implied rather than expressed ; the use of 就 chui or 也 ie at the beginning of the second part—the 'turn'—of the sentence being sufficient to indicate it. As between 若 roh and 要 iao colloquial usage prefers 要 iao rather than 若 roh, 若 roh being somewhat bookish; e.g.,

If I see him I will tell you; o roh k'an-chien t'a chiu kao-su ni 我若看見他就告訴你.

If you want it I will give it to you; ni roh iao o chiu chih ni 你若要我給你.

If it had not been you that said it, I should not have believed it; roh puh shi ni shoh tih o chiu puh hsien 若不是你說的我就不信.

If you wish to go, well and good; ni roh iao ch'ü ie k'o-i 你若要去也可以.

If he had not cursed me, should I have struck him? roh shi t'a puh ma o, o hai neng ta t'a mo? 若是他不罵我,我還能打他麼.

If it is not Mr. Li then it is Mr. Chang; puh shi Li hsien-seng, chiu-shi Chang hsien-seng 不是李先生,就是張先生.

Chi-ran 既然 and Sui-ran 雖然.

4. Chi 既 and 雖 sui are used with or without 然 ran, but such a use is in most cases more bookish than colloquial. The addition of 是 shi forms a style half bookish and half colloquial, but its use is conditioned by considerations of rythm and force. Chi-ran 既然 forms the Perfect Participle and may be translated, 'having'; 'since'; 'inasmuch as,' etc.; it is followed by a principal verb, and like 若 roh takes 就 chiu, 也 ie, or 還 huan as required. Sui-ran 雖然 in addition to these takes 卻 ch'ioh as an adversative particle introducing the answering clause; e.g.,

Although he is unfilial, he is still his father's son; sui-ran t'a puh hsiao t'a hai shi t'a fu-ch'in-tih ri-tsi 雖然他不孝他還是他父親的兒子.

Though there is not much, still it is enough; siu-ran puh to, huan k'o-i suan keo-liao 雖然不多,還可以算數了.

Although he gets angry, he is a good man; sui-ran t'a seng-ch'i t'a ch'ioh shi ko hao ren 雖然他生氣他卻是個人.

Since it is his, what do you want with it? chi shi t'a-tih ni iao tso shen-mo? 既是他的你要做甚麼.

Adversative Conjunction tao 倒.

5. In the sentence, 'He was a good man; but he was not esteemed'; the word 'but' serves the purpose of carrying the mind to something, the contrary of what we should have expected. The conclusion we should naturally draw from the first sentence 'he was a good man,' would be that the people would esteem him; 'but' points out that in this case the natural conclusion does not follow. Such is the force of the word tao 倒. It thus carries its original meaning of 'To turn upside down'; the thought or the conclusion we should draw, is as it were 'overturned' by its use. Hence we may translate it by 'But'; 'Yet'; 'Nevertheless'; 'On the other hand'; 'At the same time'; or any word or phrase that places the second sentence or clause in some kind of opposition to what precedes. When such opposition is of a favourable character, ie 也 generally follows it; e.g.,

He is very poor, but what he says is correct; t'a hen ch'iong, t'a-tih hua tao ie shoh-teh puh-ts'o 他很窮, 他的話倒也說得不錯.

Though he has ability, he has made a mess of this matter; sui-ran t'a iu pen-si; chæ-chien si t'a tao tso-teh puh-hao 雖然他有本事, 這件事他倒做得不好.

Compulsion expressed by pih 必.

6. Pih 必 is not often used alone, but has either 要 iao or 得 teh joined to it, the latter being more common in the North. At times it strengthens the future form, but more usually denotes 'obligation'; 'compulsion'; 'necessity'; and the like; e.g.,

You must go; ni pih teh ch'ü 你必得去.

You must put this matter through quickly; chæ-chien si ni pih'iao k'uai pan 這件事你必要快辦.

NOTES.—a. Lien 連 is joined with 帶 tai as a correlative; e.g., Including both the cows and the horses; lien niu tai ma 連牛帶馬.

b. P'ang 旁 in colloquial usage takes 的 tih when used in the sense of 'other'; e.g.,

This is other people's business; chæ shi p'ang ren tih si 這是旁人的事.

Nothing else; simply this; puh shi p'ang-tih, chin shi chæ-ko 不是旁的就是這個.

c. Huan-hsi 歡喜 is often reversed without altering the meaning.

Translate:—What is that by the side of the tree? Is it not a cup? Although he was willing to go himself, his elder brother was unwilling. Including both books and paper, it cost 500 cash; the pencils were additional. You must tell him to come and see me to-morrow. Infuse and bring a pot of hot tea; and also pour out a cup of cold water and bring it. The wall has fallen down. If he cheats you, you come and tell me; he does nothing but cheat people. If the teacher knows he will punish you. If he does not repay you, I will. Although he has money he is a bad man. Inasmuch as he is willing why are you unwilling? Since you did not see how do you know? I know, because I heard Mr. Li say it. Although you cannot control his affairs still you should have said a few words to him. Since he said it, I believe it. Although this affair has nothing to do with me, I must go and see. When he was on his journey he saw a lion a long way off; he was afraid in consequence and ran back to the inn. Though this is a troublesome affair, I will still do it. It is now Spring, and the flowers are open. If you did not do it, your elder brother did. Because it was troublesome to have his queue plaited every week he therefore cut it off. If God had not sent the Saviour to die for us, we should have no way of being saved. The Holy Spirit came down from heaven that He might influence mens' hearts and cause them to believe and trust the Saviour. Inasmuch as the Saviour has come shall we not believe in Him?

Completion as expressed by uan 完 ch'eng 成 and ting 定.

1. The results of certain actions such as success, or failure; completion, or non-completion; may be expressed in a variety of ways, the more common perhaps being by a verb and an adverb; as, 'Carried through successfully.' In some cases however, one verb may follow another, as 'To make complete.' This latter form has its counterpart in Chinese, when the verbs uan 完, ch'eng 成, and 師傅領上門, 巧妙在個人 The instructor leads to the door, but aptitude rests with the individual.

ting 定, follow another verb. Ting 定 may in certain cases be prefixed; thus answering to such an English expression as, 'Made to order'; e.g.,

This was made to order; chæ shī ting tso-tih 這是定做的。

The bargain is completed; chia-ch'ien Chiang-ting-liao 價錢講定了。

When we have finished reading, we will go down; nien uan-liao shu, o-men k'o-i hsia-ch'ü 念完了書, 我們可以下去。

Redemption is accomplished; shuh-tsui-tih si tso ch'eng-liao 贖罪的事做成了。

He could not do it; t'a tso puh-ch'eng 他做不成。

One box will not hold all; ih-ch'ü hsiang-tsi chuang puh-uan 一隻箱子裝不完。

Probability.

2. There are several words used in Chinese to express the idea of 'probability,' such as are indicated in English by 'most likely'; 'seemingly'; 'in all likelihood'; etc., the commonest are:—

Hsiang 想; hsü 許; ie-hsü 也許; hsiang-pih 想必; k'ong-p'a 恐怕; to-pan 多半。

Hsü 許 and ie-hsü 也許 are more widely used in the North than in the South, where 恐怕 k'ong-p'a largely does duty for both. In the North 恐怕 k'ong-p'a usually carries its original meaning of 'apprehension', the idea of 'probability' being largely absent. Hsiang 想 and hsiang-pih 想必 are in current use in most parts; e.g.,

I think he can read; o hsiang t'a shih-tsi 我想他識字。

He probably will not come; hsü t'a puh lai 許他不來。

He may come, or he may not; t'a ie-hsü lai, ie-hsü puh lai 他也許來, 也許不來。

Mr. Hai has not come to-day. Perhaps he has some engagement at home? Hai hsien-seng chin-t'ien muh iu lai; hsiang-pih chia li iu si 海先生今天沒有來, 想必家裏有事。

Perhaps he is on the jetty? k'ong-p'a t'a tsai ma-t'eo shang? 恐怕他在碼頭上。

Most likely it is his own fault; to-pan shi t'a tsü-chi-tih ts'o 多半是他自己的錯。

Certainty and Uncertainty.

3. The word 定 ting, 'to fix,' is the principal word used in colloquial to express the idea of 'certainty'; 'assurance'; etc. Other words are joined with it, but do not appreciably modify its meaning. The opposite meanings of 'uncertainty', and 'improbability', are denoted by 未 wei and 不 puh, also used in combination. The following lists give the collocations most commonly in use:—

Certainty.

Ih-ting	一定.
Ting-ran	定然.
Ting-chuen	定准.
Pih-ran	必然.
Pih-ting	必定.

Uncertainty.

Uei-pih	未必.
Puh-ih-ting	不一定.
Puh-chien-teh	不見得.
Puh chien ch'i	不見其.
Ie-uei-k'o-ting	也未可定.

It is not at all certain that he will be willing to come; t'a uei-pih k'en lai 他未必肯來.

It is not certain that what he says is true; t'a so shoh-tih hua puh-chien-teh shi chen-tih 他所說的話不見得是真的.

People say that the District Magistrate is a bad man; who knows? ren shoh ch'i-hsien shi ko huai ren; chae ie-uei-k'o-chi 人說知縣是個壞人,這也未可知.

Will the steamer come to-day? It is not certain; chin-t'ien ho-luen-ch'uan lai puh lai? puh ih-ting 今天火輪船來不來,不一定.

It will certainly be here by to-morrow; kan ming-t'ien chuen tao 趕明天准到.

This was certainly done by him; chae ting-chuen shi t'a tso-tih 這定准是他做的.

He surely cannot afford to buy such a dear watch; na-mo kuei tih piao t'a pih-ran mai puh ch'i 那麼貴的表,他必然買不起.

Approximation.

4. Phrases which convey the idea of approximation, as applied to exactness and accuracy are much in evidence in every-day speech. A non-committal and inexact attitude of mind, coupled with a genius for generalizing, accounts for a good deal of it. Some of the phrases under Section 2, are employed in this connection; the ideas of probability and approximation running into each other. The following are the expressions most commonly used:—ch'a-puh-to 差不多; shang-hsia 上下; ta-kai 大概; ta-pan 大半; to-pan 多半; e.g.,

This tub is nearly full; chae-ko p'en ch'a-puh-to man liao 這個盆差不多滿了.

Generally speaking, men are unwilling to worship God; ta-kai ren puh k'en pai Shang-ti 大概人不肯拜上帝.

For the most part men have not travelled widely; ren ta-pan muh iu ch'uh ko üen men 人大半沒有出過遠門.

That old gentleman is about seventy years old; na-ko lao hsien-seng iu ch'ih-shih sui shang-hsia 那個老先生有七十歲上下.

I 以 in Combination.

5. I 以 is used alone sparingly in colloquial, but, joined to many prepositions and adverbs is in constant use; the most common combinations are as follows:—

Before; formerly; i-ch'ien 以前.

Behind; afterwards; i-heo 以後.

Outside; beyond; i-uai 以外.

Above; over; i-shang 以上.

Below; under; i-hsia 以下.

To regard as; to consider; i-uei 以爲.

This last expression differs from the rest in that it is verbal in form, and admits of the Object being inserted between its parts; i.e., i 以 introduces the immediate Object. It is used largely in documents and in the speech of educated men, but is slightly bookish:—

He considered himself in the right; t'a tsü i-uei shü 他自以爲是.

I must be about my father's business; o tang i o fu-ch'in-tih si uei nien 我當以我父親的事爲念.

NOTES.—a. Fuh 復 is not used in colloquial in the sense of 'again', except with other words, e.g., To come to life again; resurrection; fuh-hoh, or fuh-seng 復活 or 復生 and a few others.

b. Fen 墳 is used both alone and in combination, as e.g., The grave; fen-mo 墳墓; She has gone to the grave to weep; t'a shang fen ch'ü k'uh 他上墳去哭; but mo 墓 is rarely used alone.

c. Ho 貨 when applied to cargo sometimes takes chien 件 and sometimes not; e.g., How much cargo has that ship on board? About 30,000 packages; na-t'iao ch'uan iu to-shao ho? iu san uan chien ho 那條船有多少貨, 有三萬件貨.

d. The distinction between 'to make,' and 'to make into', is not shewn in Chinese by affixing a preposition to the word 'make,' but by affixing the verb ch'eng 成; e.g.,

He made four pieces of wood into a box; t'a pa si-k'uai pan tso-ch'eng ih-chü hsiang-tsü 他把四塊板, 做成一隻箱子.

e. In the West chia puh tih 加不的 is used to express 'uncertainty'.

[See Lesson XXX.]

He certainly cannot manage this affair; chæ-chien si t'a ih-ting pan puh ch'eng. Let it be so settled; chiu shü na-mo ting-kuei pa.

One cannot speak of this matter with any certainty; chæ-ko si ie shoh puh ting. The teacher will not allow him to go; hsien-seng puh chuen (or hsü) t'a ch'ü.

He has decided to do it in that way; t'a ting-kuei iao na iang tso.

Take a seat and let us have a chat; ch'ing tso, o-men k'o i t'an-t'an.

He briefly explained the general meaning; t'a lioh-lioh-tih Chiang ta-kai-tih.

i-sü.

Unfortunately he will not listen to any persuasion; k'o-shih t'a puh t'ing ch'üen.

He lived to be eighty years of age; t'a hoh tao pah-shih sui.

Alas! he is nearly dead; ai-ia! t'a ch'a-puh-to si liao.

God is willing to pardon; Shang-ti k'en rao-shu ren.

The Lord doubtless has already risen from the dead; Chu i-ching fuh-hoh liao; chæ shü ih-ting-tih.

This must be made known everywhere; chæ iao ch'uan pien t'ien hsia.

It is by no means certain that these two doses of medicine will make your disease better. He may come to-morrow or he may not ; there is no certainty. The three large characters 德成靈 were engraved upon the tombstone. The goods at the shop 大發 are both dear and bad ; they are certainly unsaleable. Probably he will not come to-day, because he is afraid it will rain. His accent is not very good. He has travelled everywhere and been to almost every country. The pupil came late to-day, therefore he cannot go back early. This trouble was most likely provoked by 章未成. I will briefly recount to you the opening of the hospital. That carpenter has come a good few times ; I have already told him that a plank of this thickness is of no use. Perhaps he did not understand your meaning ? He has brought the wrong receipt, this is a receipt for money received, not for a registered letter ; no doubt he has not been to the Post Office. The Saviour was first crucified on the cross, afterwards buried in the grave, and on the 3rd day He rose again. Now His grave is empty because He has already ascended into heaven. Afterwards, when the time has come, He will return to the world and cause all those who believe in Him to enjoy great felicity. This is the general meaning of the Gospel.

READING LESSON XIX. 九十第要輯

The Unwary Youth III.

敗興而返
走了一個月零幾天、船就
到了法國、還沒有到碼頭、
心深和空發商議定了、叫
心深先下船去買衣裳、買
成了就回來把空發帶到
飯店、後來再給他找事、話
說好了、空發先點點銀子、
看看幾兩、後來把十兩給
心深、心深把銀子拿到手
中說、這一定不穀、還要加
上十兩、若不加上怕買不
成、空發先是定准不加、但

1. Shang-i ting-liao 商議定了 Had decided after consultation.

2. Tien tien in-tsi 點點銀子 Counted over the money.

心深說些好話，把他勸信了，他慢慢的又把十兩給他，自己光有一二兩在¹身上。到了碼頭，心深說：你放心，我的箱子在這裏，我快要回來，連衣裳帶帽子我都要拿回來。他去後，空發等在船上，當天心深沒有回來，趕第二天也沒有回來，空發就怕被他哄了，所以他下船去找，大街小巷都找遍了，還是找不着，光見街上的許多人向他發笑，叫他心裏說：哎呀，可惜，可惜，真苦死了，我到這人地兩生的地方，怎得了呢？慢慢的回到船上，就知道心深已經來過了，又走了，把空發的箱子和空發的行李，攏總都帶了去，他自己的箱子還在那裏，打開一看，就見滿箱子是石頭，心深又請船上的人替他對空發說一下，船就碰見本城的鄉親，說他母親不在了，家裏的人要他坐火車快回家去，埋老母親行孝，早已知道你也是孝子，卻因離家遠，就無法行孝，想必你沒有不肯把銀子借用的。又說埋完了母親，一定要叫石匠刻碑，上邊刻空發敬意，四個大字，叫人人曉得中外是

1. Tsai shen shang 在身上 On the person.

2. Tang t'ien 當天 That day; the same day.

3. Ta' kiai' hsiao' hsiang' 大街小巷 Streets and lanes.

4. Chen k'u si liao 真苦死了 Things have come to a pretty pass.

5. Ren ti liang seng 人地兩生 A strange place and strange people.

6. Tsen teh liao 怎得了 How shall I manage? how can I get out of this difficulty?

7. Ta-k'ai ih k'an 打開一看 No sooner had opened it and looked. . . .

8. Hsiang ch'in 鄉親 A fellow-countryman; one from the same district.

9. Hsing hsiao 行孝 To perform the duties of a filial son.

10. Ching'-i' 敬意 A present; an expression of respect.

11. Chong nai shi ih li 中外是一理 The same principle both in China and abroad.

一理、孝道真是不可少的、又知道空發在心深母親的墳上行
了孝、許他們兩個後來再會、這也未可知。還有一句說、一路爲
你費心、本當得幾個錢當工錢。空發等不得聽完、便先哭後罵、
若不是船上的人勸他、他就要用刀自殺。船上的人看他爲難、
就發了好心、說這樣罷、你可以坐本船回國去、我們僱你當小
工、你爲客人鋪行李、擺桌子、洗盤碗、刀子、刷刷客人的鞋、有甚
麼旁的事、也可以給他們作、到了上海、開你幾個茶水錢、就
了。以後過了兩個月、空發就到了家、使老父母很喜歡、好像死
了復活一樣、就給他買衣裳、擺上上等的菜飯、又請了本街上、 和本家的人來會他、但空發要把他所遭的罪說出來、便不知
道從那裏說起、一來自己離家有錯、二來太不用心、上了外人
的當、就略略的講了幾句給他們聽、假裝做沒有受過多少苦
的樣子。所以年紀輕的人、若有念這兩章書的、必要記得、出門

1. Hsiao-tao 孝道 The doctrine of filial piety; filial duty.

2. Pen tang 本當 It is only fitting that, . . .

3. Kong-ch'ien 工錢 Wages.

4. Tsi shah 自殺 To kill oneself; to commit suicide.

5. Hsiao kong 小工 A labourer.

6. Pu hsing-li 鋪行李 To make beds.

7. Pai choh-tsi 擺桌子 To lay the table.

8. Hsi p'an uan 洗盤碗 To wash up plates and dishes.

9. Shuah 刷 To brush.

10. Ka'i ni chi-ko ch'a shui ch'ien 開你幾個茶水錢 Give you a 'cumshaw';
開 is often used in the sense of 'to pay; to settle up.'

11. Chiu suan liao 就算了 And that will settle every thing.

12. Shang teng tih 上等的 First class; tip top.

13. Puh chi-tao ts'ong na-li shoh ch'i 不知道從那裏說起 Did not know where to begin his story.

14. Tai puh iong hsin 太不用心 Was altogether too heedless.

15. Tso . . . iang-tsi 做 . . . 樣子 To put on a style; to make believe.

不可聽信外人的話，雖然他說一口的好話，還是自己該用心，恐怕被他哄了。面生的人多，光知道面不知道心，還算數了麼？要是空發再出遠門，我可以把他所碰的事都寫出來，發給報主。天下的人就能知道了。

1. Mien seng 面生 Not to know by sight.

2. Pao chu 報主 Newspaper proprietor.

天¹ 堂² t'ien-t'ang Heaven.

一¹ 下⁴ 子³ ih-hsia-tsi A short time; at once.

不經一事，不長一智 No wis 'om is gained without experience.

Keh 隔: how used.

1. The word keh 隔 is often the equivalent of the English word 'interval,' and is applied both to time and distance. It has a secondary meaning of 'to belong to something different', as say, a country, or a religion; e.g.,

Take this medicine once every other day; chae-ko ioh keh ih-t'ien ch'ih ih hwei 這個藥隔一天吃一回。

A man named Hsü lives three streets off; keh liang-t'iao kiai, iu ko hsing Hsü-tih chu-chia 隔兩條街, 有個姓許的住家。

We belong to different religions; o-men keh-choh chiao 我們隔着教。

Ch'i 其 in combination.

2. Ch'i 其 is a character principally used in the book style, or uen-li 文理, but like 以 i, it is used in colloquial in combination with other words. It forms part of many prepositions, its meaning being determined by the preceding noun. The following combinations are in constant use:—

Really; in fact; whereas; but; ch'i-shih 其實。

In the midst of; among; ch'i-chong 其中。

The rest; the remainder; ch'i-ü 其餘 (ü 餘² surplus)。

Amongst; in the interval; ch'i-ch'ien 其間。

We will speak of the other matters when I come again; ch'i-ü tih si teng o tsai lai tsai shoh 其餘的事等我再來再說。

He considered that he had mastered the subject, but, as a matter of fact, he had not half done so; t'a i-uei hsioh hwei liao, ch'i-shih t'a iu ih ta pan puh hwei 他以為學會了, 其實他有一大半不會。

A great many people were taken ill, among them an official; iu hsü-to ren chang-ping, ch'i-chong iu ih ko kuan 有許多人長病, 其中有一個官。

In the doctrine that he preaches there is much to affect men; t'a Chiang tih tao-li ch'i-chong hen iu hsie kan-tong ren tih hua 他講的道理, 其中很有些感動人的話。

Ch'i 豈: its Use and Force.

3. Ch'i 豈 strengthens an interrogative statement, and usually demands an emphatic answer in the negative unless followed by puh, when an affirmative answer is required. It forms part of a few bookish phrases which have passed into colloquial use; as,

How dare I? ch'i kan 豈敢—a polite phrase signifying that the speaker is unworthy of the honour or compliment paid to him.

How is there such a principle?—there is no such principle as this; ch'i iu ts'i li 豈有此理。

It commonly conveys the idea of surprise or astonishment; as, 'Can it be . . . ? Is it possible . . . ?' e.g.,

Know ye not that we were baptized into His death? ch'i puh hsiao-teh o-men shi hsiao t'a-tih si sheo hsi mo? 豈不曉得我們是效(效⁴ to imitate)他的死受洗麼。

Will it do to imitate his evil ways? o-men ch'i k'o ken t'a hsioh huai mo? 我們豈可跟他學壞麼。

Do not I know his meaning? o ch'i puh ch'i-tao t'a-tih i-si mo? 我豈不知道他的意思麼。

Repetition of Verbs.

4. Verbs are repeated for emphasis or for euphony. Many verbs thus repeated have 看 k'an as a suffix in the sense of 'to try'; or as we say in English 'to see'—if one can do it. In some cases the verbs are separated by ih, as 等一等 teng-ih-teng, Lesson VII. Section 6; e.g.,

Try and do it; tso-tso k'an 作作看.

See if you can write it; hsie-hsie k'an 寫寫看.

Measure it and see; liang-liang k'an 量量看.

Let us go and listen; o-men k'o-i ch'ü t'ing-t'ing pa 我們可以去聽聽罷.

5. There is nothing in English exactly equivalent to ih-hsia-tsi 一下子, or ih-hsia 一下; or as it is commonly pronounced ih-ha-tsi or ih-ha. It is heard more frequently in the South and West than in the North. Perhaps the nearest thing to it is found in such idiomatic forms as, 'Give it a push'; 'Give it a pull'; etc.; e.g.,

Give him a beating; pa t'a ta ih-ha-tsi 把他打一下子.

I will be there immediately; o ih-ha-tsi chiu lai 我一下子就來.

Wait a while; teng ih-ha-tsi 等一下子.

Give it to him all at once; ih-ha-tsi chih t'a 一下子給他.

NOTES.—a. In describing religions the word 教 chiao takes the place of 'ism' and other suffixes; e.g.,

Protestantism, or Christianity; Ie-su-chiao, or Chi-tuh-chiao; 耶穌教, or 基督教.

Romanism; t'ien-chu-chiao 天主教.

Taoism; tao-chiao 道教.

Buddhism; fuh-chiao 佛教.

Mahometanism, huei-huei-chiao 回回教.

NOTES.

Translate :—We were separated by a high wall. They lived two streets away. I talked the matter over with him, and he said, Is it possible that you don't know we must invite a middleman? When you get up in the morning you must put on your clothes, wash your face, comb your hair, and sweep up the floor. None of the things that he is using are his own, all are lent to him by other people. Everybody said the death of the man Li the day before yesterday was a retribution; he truly was a bad man. The Emperor has already forgiven those criminals. Although his friends exhorted him not to weep, he still wept because his spirit was wounded. Give what is over of the rice to the poor. In this city there are Christians, Buddhists, Taoists, Romanists, and Mahometans. Buddhism came to China nearly 2,000 years ago. Mr. Chang is constantly saying that his family is wealthy, but as a matter of fact, the whole family has not much money. The ancients supposed the earth to be flat, but as a matter of fact, it is round. Is it possible that such a good man as he is would do such evil deeds? You speak very good Mandarin. You are too complimentary; my vocabulary is very limited. Heaven is a good place; all the people there are happy and joyful. Good has a good recompense, evil an evil retribution. Christ gave up His life because He loved men; if He had not loved them would he have been willing to die for them? Those who worship Buddha think that he is able to forgive them their sins, whereas he cannot do so; none but God can forgive men's sins.

A City Ramble II.

登堂聽道

要知和半知，快到北門，就看見一所兩層高的樓房，在上邊有個大銅十字發亮，在大門以上有天主堂三個大金字，門既是開的，他們就進去，抬頭一看，就看見一個老人的像，高掛在大門對面，要知說，想必這是他們拜的神的像罷，半知說，未必一定是外國皇上的像，他們又看見堂的兩邊有許多木人、石人，要知說，大概這些老先生是古時候教中的人罷，現在教中的人錯以他爲神，求他賜福，和佛教人求佛一樣，半知說，甚麼古人，這必是老神父本家的人，不是本家就是朋友，我們回去罷，天不早了，他們往家去，已經到了點燈的時候，在大街上路北⁵看見一個大堂，大門上有福音堂三個字，裏頭擺着幾十條板凳，有一百上下的人在那裏坐

1. Fah¹ liang⁴ 發亮 Sending forth light; glittering.

2. Shen-mo 甚麼 As used here=The idea of such a thing—they the ancients indeed!

3. Shen-fu 神父 A Roman Catholic priest.

4. Tien teng tih shi-heo 點燈的時候 Dusk.

5. Lu peh 路北 North side of the road.

着、掛着幾盞洋燈、在堂的北頭有個講書臺¹、上邊站着一位中國先生、有四十來歲、手裏拿着一本聖經、還有幾個人手中拿着讚美詩、要知說、我們可以進去聽聽、不知道福音是甚麼意思、他們一進去、就看見一個熟人、靠窗戶坐着、姓海、叫福滿、他早年當兵³、後來中國和外國打完了仗、他不再當兵了、有了錢、就在城裏開舖子、賣蓋房子的各樣材料、已經娶了妻、有了兩個兒子、他手裏拿着一把扇子、一臉的福氣⁴、滿臉發光、有一點像太陽似的。他一看見就起來說、二位來了可喜⁶、請坐、請坐、既坐下他又說、我沒有事常來聽聽、越聽真是越愛聽、實在叫我心裏有說不出來的快活、他說到這裏、臺子前拿讚美詩的那幾個人、就唱起來了、所唱的是、耶穌愛我捨他命、我的罪好洗得淨、天堂門他給我開、把他小羊叫進來、耶穌救主愛我、有聖書告訴我、唱完了這一首詩、福滿說、聽得怎麼樣、豈不是好聽麼、我就是一天聽幾十遍、也不以為太多、這真合我的式、要知正要說句話、臺子上站的先生就開口說、我先念兩節書給你們先生們

1. Chiang shu t'ai 講書台 A pulpit; a platform.

2. Shuh ren 熟人 An old acquaintance.

3. Tang ping 當兵 To enlist as a soldier; to be in the army.

4. Ih lien tih fuh-ch'i 一臉的福氣 A countenance full of joy.

5. Man lien fah kuang 滿臉發光 A beaming face.

6. K'o-hsi 可喜 An occasion of joy; "delighted!"

7. Liang chieh shu 兩節書 Two verses (of) the book. Compare 二里路.

聽、後來再把其中的意思說一說給你們聽、以後也許都要略略明白大概的意思、有話說、明人不用細講、這話也不錯、但這本聖經、你們大半沒有看見過、頭一回聽其中的道理、就怕難懂。你我都是中國人、你們認識我的也多、知道早年間我是好佛的人、父母也是好佛、念經、燒紙、就是佛教一切的禮、一切的書、我也沒有不懂得的、但我求佛、越求心裏是越空、我也跟過母親連夜的求、卻免不了罪、心中真苦、若不是蒙了上帝的大恩、使我能得這本書、明白其中的道理、我直到現在還享不到福、心裏還是空的、本堂中還有幾位先生也是那樣、曉得我這話是實話、因為他們已經走過這條路、有話說、要知上山路、必問過來人、但我也⁷不必多說、我就念兩節書給合堂的人聽、要知道他念的是那兩節、以後說了甚麼話、使一堂的人受了感動、聽得喜歡、請看下課就明白了。

1. Ming ren puh iong hsi Chiang 明人不用細講 It is needless to enter into detail with men of understanding.

2. Hao⁴-fuh 好佛 Devoted to Buddhism.

3. Nien ching 念經 To repeat or chant prayers.

4. Shao chī 燒紙 To burn paper money.

5. Mien puh liao tsui 免不了罪 Could not escape from sin or its consequences.

6. Puh shī . . . huan 不是 . . . 還 Huan marks the 'turn' of the sentence and is correlated with 不是: "If I had not . . . then I should not."

7. Puh pih to shoh 不必多說 It is unnecessary for me to say more.

Give N. A. of wall, bridge, street, temple, idol, flower, goods, and tablet.

2. Give sound, tone, and meaning of the following:—

奇傷應德狠虎弄議燒通干隨彼被與犯己己恐
饒碑略惜音容仗丈財材材。

3. Correct if needful the following sentences, and state reasons for correction :—

我蒙了他的苦頂大。他領了罪不輕。他遭了
 恩不少。他來了已經兩會。他城內頭使我去。
 你給他四兩洋錢一分另外。在外送他綢子
 一丈一寸。他上鄉下去找人另外。第一來。他
 沒工夫第二來。他沒錢。這事相干不與你甚

 我的當贖了。你的心爲我費了。我親的眼看
 見了。我告訴你。若看見他。他還若是來可以。
 他是個壞人。雖然他有錢。叫他作定爲我一
 張棹子。這個碗茶滿了差不多。他上下三十
 歲。他以不爲有錯自己。有一道海隔着了。我
 們跟他學。豈可以呢。

4. Write in Chinese character :—

He may come, or he may not; wait awhile and see. I have already promised him between 300 and 400 cash. Who was that who came yesterday and sat there for half a day? I don't know; ask Mr. Ch'ien. What is his name? You had better ask him. He and I have already crossed the sea together. Bring that square thing to me over here. Divide a half and give it to him, and afterward refund Mr. Chang the money you changed yesterday. The teacher that he engaged has not yet come; I don't know where he has gone; perhaps he has some affairs at home? He said something pleasant both when he rose up and when he sat down. He is really a capable man. Count over your money and see how much you have. He himself is unable to move it; you try and move it. He calculated to go yesterday, but he had some trifles (to attend to), and therefore could not go.

SUPPLEMENTARY words it has passed into colloquial, and in certain connections is freely used; e.g.,

Right and wrong; negative and positive; failings—of people, etc.; shī fei 是非.

To get into or provoke trouble; ræ ch'uh shī fei lai 惹出是非來.

Used with 不可 puh-k'o or 不行 puh-hsing, it indicates that something is indispensable; e.g.,

One cannot get on without money; fei ch'ien puh-hsing 非錢不行.

It will never do not to invite him; fei ch'ing t'a puh-k'o 非請他不可.

Joined to 除 ch'u it forms a phrase which may be variously translated by 'except'; 'unless'; etc.; e.g.,

Unless Mr. Li goes he will not get back the baggage; ch'u-fei Li hsien-seng ch'ü, t'a chiu iao puh ch'uh hsing-li lai 除非李先生去, 他就要不出行李來.

Only in case of his not coming will I fail to ask him for the money. ch'u-fei t'a puh lai, o puh ken t'a iao ch'ien 除非他不來, 我不跟他要錢.

This is the only way; only by this . . . ; ch'u-fei chæ-ko ts'ai nsing 除非這個纔行.

Ch'u 除 and its Uses.

2. Ch'u 除 is used in two senses—its ordinary one 'To remove; to exclude'; and also with 了 liao and 以外 i-uai in the sense of 'Besides; none but; with the exception of'; etc. In documentary correspondence it usually takes 外 uai alone, and indicates that the writer will do all that is said between 除 ch'u and 外 uai; e.g.,

Deducting the tare . . . ; ch'u-liao p'i 除了皮.

With the exception of Mr. Ma, no one can get the better of him in argument; ch'u-liao Ma hsien-seng i-uai, u ren neng shoh ko t'a 除了馬先生以外, 無人能說過他.

There is no other name but the Saviour's that we may trust in in order to be saved; ch'u-liao Chiu-chu i-uai, muk iu pieh-tih ming k'o-i k'ao-choh teh-chiu 除了救主以外, 沒有別的名可靠着得救.

Successive Action.

3. Successive Action is expressed in English either by a special word or phrase; as, 'repeatedly'; 'once more'; or by the use of the same word; as, 'day by day,' etc. This latter form closely corresponds to Chinese idiom, in which, while special words and phrases are sometimes used, it is more common to repeat a word. The following expressions are constantly so used: shī-shī 時時, shī-k'eh 時刻, and uang-uang 往往. Iu 又 prefixed to a verb accomplishes the same purpose; as does tong puh tong 動不動 'always'; e.g.,

Here he is again; t'a iu lai-liao 他又來了.

That cock crows all the time; na-ko kong-chi shi-shi-tih chiao 那個公雞時時的叫.

The day he was ill he prayed incessantly; t'a hai-ping tih na-ih t'ien, shi-shi-k'eh-k'eh-tih ch'iu 他害病的那一天, 時時刻刻的求.

It is so on every occasion; uang-uang shi chæ-iang 往往是這樣.

They have met together once more; t'a men iu chü-huei 他們又聚會 p. 261.

He strikes people on every occasion; t'a tong puh tong, chiu ta ren 他動不動就打人.

Supplementary: Lesson I.

4. The following pronouns are in colloquial use in different parts of the Mandarin-speaking area:—

咱² tsa. We; us; e.g., We two; tsa men liang-ko 咱們兩個.

納⁴ nah. To give. To receive. Used in Peking with 你 ni, as, 你納 ni-nah, You, sir;—conveying the idea of respect.

俺^{2,3} an. I; we; us. Largely used in Shantung and Chihli.

儂² nong. I; me; thou; you. Used only in the South.

Ni-men 你們 is in some parts used as a polite expression in speaking directly to a single person.

T'a 他 is used alone for the plural of inanimate things.

Tih 的 as a Relative Pronoun often stands for a noun understood; e.g., in English we may say, 'His food was locusts and wild honey'; or, 'What he ate was locusts and wild honey.' The translation of this passage in Matt. iii. 4 runs as follows: 'Ate that which was locusts and wild honey.' 'That which,' is rendered by tih 的 immediately following the verb. Tih 的 thus used='what'; 'that which'; or a noun; e.g.,

What he wears are straw shoes; or, He wears straw shoes; t'a ch'uan-tih shi ts'ao hsiat 他穿的是草鞋.

I do not know what he says; puh hsiao-teh t'a sho' tih shi shen-mo 不曉得他說的是甚麼.

Chæ 這 and na 那 following a personal pronoun may be used to indicate contempt; though in some connections they may merely denote a protest; e.g.,

That fellow has no gumption; t'a na-ko ren hao puh tong si 他那个人好不懂事.

You are an unreasonable fellow; ni chæ-ko ren puh Chiang li 你這個人不講理.

Shi 是 is at times repeated in giving assent, and at times has tih 的 added to it. In the former case it may express impatience='Yes, yes, I know all about that'; or may be the equivalent of such phrases as, 'Very well; well and good; let it be so;' etc.

Shui; na; 誰, 那 and 甚麼 shen-mo are repeated as the equivalents of 'whoever'; 'whichever'; 'whatever'; e.g.,

Buy whichever one you want; iao na-ih-ko chiu mai na-ih-ko 要那一個就買那一個.

Whoever wants it may come and take it; shui iao, shui k'o-i lai na 誰要誰可以來拿.

We have whatever you want; iao shen-mo iu shen-mo 要甚麼有甚麼.

Eat whatever there is; iu shen-mo ch'ih shen-mo 有甚麼吃甚麼.

Shih 什² Ten. Sundry; often takes the place of 甚 shen in 甚麼 shen-mo with no appreciable difference of meaning.

Ma 嗎 is used constantly as a sign of the interrogative instead of 麼 mo in colloquial; but most teachers prefer to write mo 麼.

Tong-hsi 東西 is used in Chinese as in English to denote "a worthless fellow;" e.g.,

His son is a bad character; t'a-tih ri-tsi shi-ko huai tong-hsi 他的兒子是個壞東西.

Shen-mo 甚麼 is often the equivalent of 'All sorts of'; e.g.,

There are all kinds of people; shen-mo ren tu iu 甚麼人都有.

The phrase 沒有甚麼 muh iu shen-mo means 'Not much'; with 多少 to-shao added 'Not many'; e.g.,

He has not much money; t'a muh iu shen-mo ch'ien 他沒有甚麼錢.

It is not of much importance; muh iu shen-mo iao-chin 沒有甚麼要緊.

He has not many nails; t'a muh iu shen-mo to-shao ting-tsi, 他沒有甚麼多少釘子.

Puh-iao 不要 used in a prohibitive sense, 'Do not', is in many parts superseded by the following characters:—

別² pieh. To distinguish. To part. Other; another. Do not.

莫⁴ moh. A negative; not.

Don't talk; ni-men pieh shoh hua 你們別說話.

Do not covet; moh tong t'an-hsin 莫動貪心.

Seng 生 and 熟 shuh are opposites, and as applied to persons include the ideas of 'Being versed in; familiar with; acquainted with,' and their opposites; e.g.,

He is a raw hand; t'a shi ko seng sheo 他是個生手.

He is afraid of meeting strangers; t'a p'a chien seng ren 他怕見生人.

They are quite familiar with this; chæ-ko si t'a-men hen shuh 這個事他們很熟.

As applied to language seng 生 is used in the sense of 'Unwarranted by usage'; e.g.,

These two characters are used in an out-of-the-way sense; chæ liang-ko tsi hen seng 這兩個字很生.

瞎子, 聾子, 啞吧, 很可憐
 那個房, 子閒着
 我的頭, 疼得
 春種他, 喊聲
 把一升, 一斗
 喊十江, 河, 湖, 海
 米賣五, 十
 他們在, 菩
 上, 帝可, 憐
 主, 叫瞎, 子
 個錢, 一升
 薩面, 前燒
 人打, 發救
 看, 見, 聾子
 香主聽
 來見

NOTES.

All negative particles such as 不 puh; 無 u; 未 uei; 非 fei; etc., may be reinforced by the addition of certain words, which need not be translated except where emphasis is required, in which case they correspond to English 'By no means'; 'Not at all;' etc. The following words and expressions are often so used:—

千 Ch'ien; 萬 uan; 千萬 ch'ien-uan; 並 ping; 切 ch'ieh and others; e.g.,

Certainly it was not he that did it; ping puh shì t'a tso-tih 並不是他作的。

You must not do it on any account; uan puh k'o tso 萬不可做。

Na-ko 那個 is used colloquially in reference to either persons or things that are evil or undesirable, but about whom or which the speaker does not care to speak openly. To say of a person that he is 太那個 is to mean that he is 'unspeakable', and the same expression applied to a place indicates that it is bad beyond words. So also diseases are ascribed to 那個 when it is not thought prudent to enter into detail for fear of the consequences, e.g., if a demon were to hear his name, it might be bad for the person who 'gave him away'!

NOTES.—a. Tsi 子 is added to 瞎 hsiah, 聾 long, and 癱 ch'üeh to indicate the person afflicted; as.

A deaf person; long-tsi 聾子。

A cripple; ch'üeh-tsi 癱子。

A blind person; hsiah-tsi 瞎子。

b. Mi 米 and meh 麥 are spoken of as 'large' and small; as, Rice; ta-mi 大米。

Millet; hsiao-mi 小米。

Barley; ta-meh 大麥。

Wheat; hsiao-meh 小麥。

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

The blind, the deaf and the dumb, are much to be pitied, hsiah-tsi, long-tsi, ia-pa, hen k'o-lien.

That house is unoccupied; na-ko fang-tsi hsien-choh.

My head aches terribly; o-tih t'eo t'eng teh iao ming.

Sow in the Spring and reap in the Autumn; ch'uen chong ch'iu koh.

Call him back; pa t'a han hui-lai.

Give me a call, and I'll be there; han ih-sheng, o chiu lai.

Ten sheng make one teo; shih sheng ih teo.

Rivers, streams, lakes and seas; chiang, ho, hu, hai.

Rice is fifty cash a pint; mi mai u-shih-ko ch'ien ih sheng.

They burn incense before the idol; t'a-men tsai p'u-sah mien-ch'ien shao hsiang.

God pitied men and sent the Saviour; Shang-ti k'o-lien ren, ta-fah Chiu-chu lai.

The Lord caused the blind to see and the deaf to hear; Chu chiao hsiah-tsi k'an-chien, long-tsi t'ing-chien.

*Translate:—*That man is very pitiable; would it not be a good thing to give him a few cash? The daughter of that deaf man is blind; she cannot see to do her hair. Have you mastered this lesson? I have already done so. He decided to cross the lake and go home: he said, It will never do not to go and see my father. We cannot dispense with the plough in ploughing the fields. If people do what does not please that boy, he constantly gets angry; nothing will do but to give him a beating. With the exception of Mr. 莊 no one can manage that affair. If the fields are not sown, from whence shall we get food to eat? Miss 封 is now eighteen years old. From the time she was four years old she was dumb; she could not speak a sentence. Her father took her to the School for Deaf Mutes, and in less than six years she understands peoples' meaning. Is it not a great wonder? This trouble certainly was not caused by Mr. 許. Northerners cannot get on apart from a wheaten diet, and southerners cannot get on apart from a rice diet. The soldier struck him two blows with a sword. The sun comes out by day, the moon by night. I dreamed last night, and in my dream saw a black man. What is the meaning of this? There is not much meaning in it. God is both wise and merciful. If He had not devised a plan, no one could obtain salvation. With the exception of the Saviour He sent, there is no other who could redeem us from sin. If we desire to enter Heaven, it is indispensable that we trust Him.

1. The word 'head' is used in English to indicate a category or class; hence we speak of things falling under such and such a 事大事小見面就了 Great and small matters are soon settled by a personal interview.

‘head.’ This may serve as a rough analogy to a use of 頭 t’eo in Chinese, in which it indicates some quality, or places some action under a certain ‘head;’ the quality being indicated by the word to which it is affixed. Take for example the word 聽 t’ing to hear; 頭 t’eo added to it denotes that what is listened to has some quality which makes it worth hearing; e.g., There is something very interesting in what Mr. Chang says; Chang Hsien-seng shoh-hua hen iu t’ing-t’eo 章先生說話很有聽頭.

The following words which have occurred in the previous Lessons, take 頭 t’eo :—

Something worth saying; shoh-t’eo 說頭.

Harvests; nien-t’eo 年頭.

Palatable; toothsome; ch’ih-t’eo 吃頭.

Fit to drink; hoh-t’eo 喝頭.

Something or somebody to lean on; k’ao-t’eo 靠頭.

Pleasing to the eye; k’an-t’eo 看頭.

Something to laugh at; hsiao-t’eo 笑頭.

Thoughts; nien-t’eo 念頭.

Object of desire; hsiang-t’eo 想頭.

The aspect of a coming event; lai-t’eo 來頭.

That fellow is unspeakable; na-ko ren muh iu shoh-t’eo 那個人沒有說頭.

What is there to laugh at? iu shen-mo hsiao-t’eo ni? 有甚麼笑頭呢.

T’eo 頭 often takes the place of ti 第 in speaking of the first few of a series; e.g.,

The first few chapters; t’eo chi chang 頭幾章.

The first two days; t’eo liang t’ien 頭兩天.

Liao 了 as a Principal Verb.

2. Liao 了 is not only a sign of the Past Tense, Lesson III. Section 8, but also a principal and auxiliary verb; e.g.,

The matter is already finished; si-ch’ing i-ching liao lo 事情已經了了.

There is no settling this affair; chæ-ko si liao puh liao 這個事了不了.

If you speak too rapidly, it is impossible to avoid mistakes; shoh-hua tai k’uai chiu mien puh liao iu ts’o 說話太快就免不了有錯.

That affair of A. insulting B. was settled up long ago; Chang-chia teh-tsui Li-chia tih si tsao-i liao chieh 張家得罪李家的事早已了結.

Supplementary: Lessons II. and III.

3. Ren 人 when used in contrast, is often the equivalent of ‘others,’ and needs the addition of no special word; e.g.,

On no account fight with others; puh k’o ho ren ta-chia 不可和人打架.

Liang 兩 and 三 san are often abbreviated to lia and sa in the North; e.g.,

Three cash for two; sa ch'ien lia 三錢兩.

Numerical categories are very common in Chinese, and the apt use of them adds a good deal to the style of a speaker. Some are used in a sense different from the meaning suggested by the characters themselves; e.g.,

Eighty or a hundred; ih peh pah shih 一百八十.

Three or four; san u ko 三五個.

Between 900 and 1,000; shang-ch'ien 上千.

About 10,000; shang uan 上萬.

Nearly 100 cash; peh shih ko ch'ien 百十個錢.

In addition there are many combinations which are almost proverbial in their use; e.g.,

Too many cooks spoil the broth; ch'ih sheo pah ch'ieh 七手八腳.

All sorts and sizes; ch'ih ta pah hsiao 七大八小.

In the South 'One or two'; or, 'About one'; is expressed by pa 把; e.g.,

An hour or two; tien pa liang tien chong 點把兩點鐘.

About a dollar; k'uai pa iang-ch'ien 塊把洋錢.

One or two garments; chien pa liang chien i-shang 件把兩件衣裳. This idiom is not used in the North.

Ren 認 is sometimes used as the equivalent of 'to be responsible for,' especially when money is in the question; e.g.,

I will be responsible for $2.00; o k'o-i ren liang-k'uai ch'ien 我可以認兩塊錢.

To acknowledge an account or debt; ren-chang 認賬.

To disavow responsibility; puh ren chang 不認賬.

Mai 買 is the general word for 'to buy', and is the one usually employed by foreigners; but the Chinese use several different words according to the article they wish to purchase. These probably vary in different districts, but the following list will at least be a guide:—

扯³ ch'æ. To pull apart; to haul.

截² ch } ieh. To cut off; to intercept.
ts

挖¹ uah. To scoop out; to dig out.

糴² tih. To lay in grain.

稱^{1,4} ch'eng. To style. To weigh. A steelyard.

醋⁴ ts'u. Vinegar.

油² iu. Oil; grease; paint.

Buy three feet of calico; ch'æ (or chieh) san ch'ih pu 扯 (or 截) 三尺布.

He has gone to buy grain; t'a ch'ü tih-liang 他去糴糧.

Buy a bushel of rice; ua ih-teo mi 挖一斗米。

Tell him to buy three lbs. of mutton; chiao t'a koh san chin iang-ruh lai 叫他割三斤羊肉來。

He has just purchased two lbs. of bread; t'a ts'ai ch'eng liang chin man-t'eo lai 他纔稱兩斤饅頭來。

How much vinegar shall I buy? Ten cash worth; o k'o-i ta to-shao ch'ien tih ts'u lai? k'o-i ta shih-ko ch'ien tih lai 我可以打多少錢的醋來, 可以打十個錢的來。

Buy four ounces of oil; ta si liang yu lai 打四兩油來。

I want to buy six ounces of wine; o iao chuang buh liang chiu 我要裝六兩酒。

Chi 幾 or 多少 to-shao repeated, forms such phrases as, 'How-ever many or much'; 'As many as'; e.g.,

Give him as many as he wants; t'a iao chi-ko chih t'a chi-ko 他要幾個給他幾個。

Reckon them all, whatever the number; iu to-shao suan to-shao 有多少算多少。

Lesson III.

4. Ch'ih 吃 as applied to a vessel means the amount she 'draws,' her 'draught'; e.g.,

That vessel draws more than four feet of water; na-t'iao ch'uan ch'ih si ch'ih to shui 那條船吃四尺多水。

Ch'ih-fan 吃飯 in addition to its ordinary use, is often the equivalent of, 'to get a living by'; e.g.,

He lives by the sea—he is a sailor; t'a ch'ih ch'uan-shang tih fan 他吃船上的飯。

Every man lives by his own calling; k'ao shan ch'ih shan, k'ao shui ch'ih shui 靠山吃山, 靠水吃水

糧² liang Grain; rations; provisions, is similarly used; as, That man is a soldier; na-ko ren ch'ih liang 那個人吃糧。

Iu 有 is often repeated with compound words; sometimes for the sake of emphasis, sometimes for the sake of euphony; e.g.,

To have a good foundation; iu ken iu chi 有根有基。

Where in English we use 'is' to indicate a condition or quality, as 'This is reasonable'; or, 'He is wealthy,' Chinese often uses iu, followed by a noun, instead as with us, an adjective or an adverb; e.g.,

That statement is reasonable; na-ch'ü hua iu li 那句話有理。

He is well-to-do; t'a iu ch'ien 他有錢。

Used idiomatically 有 iu frequently has the meaning of 'plenty,' as applied to time or things; e.g.,

Do you want any more? I have plenty; hai iao mo? iu lo iu lo 還要嗎, 有了有了。

He was there a long time; t'a tsai-na-li iu rih-tsü 他在那裏有日子。

Ch'ing 請 used to a person on leaving, is equal to 'Good-bye'; as is also 再會 tsai-huei. On entering a room 請 ch'ing addressed to one going in means, 'After you.'

The following list gives most of the prepositions and adverbs of place in constant use:—

In the midst; among; tsai-chong-chien 在中間.

In the middle; tsai-tang-chong 在當中.

Behind; tsai-heo-t'eo 在後頭.

右⁴ iu. The right; that which is on the right.

左³ tso. The left side.

On the right side; tsai-iu-pien 在右邊.

On the left side; tsai-tso-pien 在左邊.

In front; tsai-ch'ien-t'eo 在前頭.

Here; tsai-ch'ae-k'uai 在這塊.

There; tsai-na-k'uai 在那塊.

Above; tsai-kao-t'eo 在高頭.

In this place; tsai-ts'i-ti 在此地.

} Used principally in the South.

Na-li 那裏 repeated = 'wherever'; e.g.,

Wherever one looked there were people; na-li k'an na-li iu ren 那裏看那裏有人.

到那裏說那裏的話. Speak the dialect of the place where you are.

Puh-teh-puh 不得不 or 不能不 puh-neng-puh preceding a verb denotes necessity, and may be translated by 'cannot but . . .'; etc; e.g.,

I cannot but go; o puh-teh-puh ch'ü 我不得不去.

He is bound to come; t'a puh-neng-puh lai 他不能不來.

Huei 回, pien 徧, or similar words repeated with verbs may be translated 'whenever'; 'as often as'; etc; e.g.,

Wash it every time you use it; iong ih-huei hsi ih-huei 用一回洗一回.

We will reckon accounts as often as you make purchases; mai ih-huei tong-hsi suan ih-huei chang 買一回東西, 算一回賬.

Lai 來 and 去 ch'ü repeated or separated by a verb denote 'repetition'; e.g.,

They talked back and forth and have settled nothing; t'a-men shoh-lai-shoh-ch'ü hai shi muh iu shoh ting 他們說來說去還是沒有說定.

Great numbers went to and fro; lai lai ch'ü ch'ü tih ren to 來來去去的人多.

Tui 對 is used as a verb, 'To check; to compare,' as accounts or writings; 'A pair or brace'; and for 'Adding to fluids'; e.g.,

Let us check the accounts; k'o-i pa chang tui-ih-tui 可以把賬對一對.

A pair of flower vases; ih-tui hua-p'ing 一對花餅.

Add a little hot water; tui ih-tien k'ai shui 對一點開水.

NOTES.—a. 果 usually takes tsi when not preceded by any descriptive word.

b. 之 though a book word, is continually used in ready-made phrases, and so used is understood everywhere.

c. 賸 frequently takes 下 hsia with no difference in meaning.

d. 張 張 and 李 li as used in Section 2, stand for two hypothetical persons, and are used as 'A.' and 'B.' in English.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

They were victorious every time; t'a-men ta ih-chang sheng ih-chang.

He understands surgery, but not pathology; t'a tong uai-k'o, puh tong nui-k'o.

There is no such custom; muh iu chae kuei-chü.

That teacher is very unmannerly; na-ko hsien-seng ih-tien kuei-chü tu muh iu.

The Prefect issued a proclamation yesterday; Chi-fu tsoh-t'ien ch'uh kao-shi.

Each place has its own customs; ih-ko ti-fang iu ih-ko ti-fang-tih kuei-chü.

We have all sinned against God; o-men tu teh-tsui Shang-ti.

Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; Chi-tuh Ie-su chiang shi uei iao chiu tsui-ren.

*Translate:—*The bird he gave me sings constantly; alas! it has just flown away. The harvest this year is not so good as last. That large tree bears fruit once a year. He has gone to Peking to study astronomy; there is no one here competent to teach him. Where is the food that was left over from yesterday? If two nations go to war, it is uncertain which will conquer and which will be defeated. How much have you over of that 3,000 cash I gave you yesterday? Not only is there nothing over; it was not enough. The proprietor of the shoe shop on the main street has engaged an additional assistant. That coolie is very strong; he was able to lift that large stone tablet by himself. The hairs of your head are all numbered. Mrs. 莊 constantly speaks of the failings of others, and provokes people to anger. I beg your pardon. I hand this copy of the New Testament to you; on no account make it dirty. I want to go on the street to-day to buy a few pints of rice: very well, buy and bring back with you two lbs. of pork and one lb. of fish. The Gospels say that Jesus came to earth in the West, in Judæa. He grew up in His father's house, and for thirty years was a carpenter. When He was thirty years old, He left His father's home and travelled all over Judæa, from north to south, from east to west. He both preached and healed. When He saw a blind man, He gave Him sight; when He met a dumb man, He enabled him to speak. He performed all kinds of miracles.

A City Ramble IV.

赦罪妙法

先生又說、兒子兩個字、是借用、並不是說神有妻子、不過是把親愛²貴重³的意思發明⁴就是了、所以這一位降生在猶太國的耶穌、成了人身和我們一樣、能對我們說話、滿有恩惠住在我們中間、一面說神是靈、人也是被他造的、所以本當用靈心拜他、一面說、人有一身的罪、因為該行的並沒去行、不該行的倒去行了、說話行事沒有一樣不犯罪的。又說、善有善報、惡有惡報、這惡報怕你真當不起、就是自己做好事、要補¹⁰從前所有的過、也補不起、罪還是在我們的身上、無法脫離¹¹、但蒙了這位的大恩、他在世上有三十二年、走遍猶太國、到處行好事、可憐人、用神能醫治各樣的病、並不用藥、光

1. Chie-iong 借用 Used in an accommodated sense.2. Ch'in-ai 親愛 Intimate; to love dearly.3. Kuei-chong 貴重 Honourable.4. Fah ming 發明 To manifest clearly; to make clear.5. Chiang-seng 降生 To descend and be born; to come down to the world.6. Ch'eng liao ren shen 成了人身 To become incarnate; to become a man.7. Ih shen tih tsui 一身的罪 Entirely sinful; full of sin.8. Shan in shan pao, oh in oh pao 善有善報, 惡有惡報 Good has a good reward, evil an evil recompense.9. Tang puh ch'i 當不起 Unable to endure.10. Pu 補 To make amends for.11. T'oh-li 脫離 To escape from—as evil habits, etc.12. Shen neng 神能 Divine power.

說幾句話、就叫瞎子能看見、聾子能聽見、啞吧能說話、連死人也叫他能復活、好叫人明明白白的曉得他又是人又是神、無論甚麼人都可以到他面前來、得身體的好處、得靈魂的好處。他也揀出幾個人來作他的門徒、在他升天以後、可以把他所行所爲的一切事、都記²在書上、傳給後世的人、都可以知道。他又說是替天行事傳道、聽他就是聽真神、看見他所行的、就是看見神所行的。他滿了三十二年、就把愛人的心越發表明。怎⁴見得呢、因爲他行完了事、就爲天下各國的人捨了命、釘死在十字架上、和犯法的人一樣。這並不是說他自己有罪、因他一點罪都沒有、沒有犯一回法、沒有行一件壞事、沒有說半句壞話、不論說話行事、沒有一點錯⁵處、神也看不出錯來、人也看不出甚麼不是來。論到他自己本不該死、但是他知道他⁶不死、我們要受大苦、到不了天堂、享不到真福、所以他以自己的死爲贖價、把我們的老賬都還了、使你我可以免罪得福。現在蒙了

1. So hsing so uei 所行所爲 That which he did; actions.

2. *Chi*⁴ 記 To record; to put on record.

3. *Piao*³-*ming*² 表明 To manifest; to make clear.

4. Tsen chien-leh ni 怎見得呢 How may that be seen, or known?

5. Ts'o-ch'u 錯處 Wrong.

6. Shuh-chia 贖價 Ransom; price of redemption.

神的恩惠、赦免我們的重罪、¹得以與他²和好、以後可以去見他的聖面、這豈不是好嗎。先生們要領這麼大的好處、也不用花錢、這一切的福、都是神滿心要白白的賜給你們。³比方風雨罷、這能買麼、大財主⁴出幾千萬銀子買一點雨、也買不下來、船上的老板出幾萬吊錢買北風、也是買不到手、神既是把這些東西白白的賜給萬人、他豈肯要我們多花錢得了赦罪的福嗎、必無此理。有話說、豈有兒子跟父求餅、倒要給他石頭呢、神豈是趕不上人麼、我們求他救我們、他不肯麼。不說旁的、光說我一個人的事罷、以前我也不曉得這道理、也是上廟燒香、費了無數的錢財、⁵還是無用、但我一信這書上的話、靠了這位救主耶穌、我就蒙了恩、算是作了一個新人、舊事已經過去了、心裏成了一個小天堂、所以勸男女老少都來敬拜真神、信靠他打發來的恩主、⁶你我就一直往上行、雖在地便如在天一樣、豈不是好麼、⁷

1. Teh-i 得以 So that.

2. Ho-hao 和好 On good terms with; reconciled.

Tiao 掉 as a Principal and Auxiliary Verb.

1. Tiao 掉 is used both as principal and an auxiliary verb. As an auxiliary it is heard much more frequently in the South than in the North. It is used with the verbs illustrated in the following sentences, and also with 打 ta; 起 ch'i; 弄 long; and 洗 hsi.

玉不琢不成器 Gems unwrought form nothing useful.

My pencil has dropped on the floor; o-tih pih tiao tsai-ti-hsia 我的筆掉在地下。

He cannot sell that salt; na-ko ien t'a mai puh-tiao 那個鹽
他賣不掉。

You can remove it with a knife; iong tao-tsi k'o-i ch'ü teh-tiao
用刀子可以去得掉。

Turn this paper end for end; pa chae-ko chi tiao ko t'eo lai 把
這個紙掉過頭來。

Turn to the south; uang nan tiao 往南掉。

It will not wash out if hot water is used; iong reh shui chiu
hsi puh tiao 用熱水就洗不掉。

K'o 可 as an Interrogative and a Suffix.

2. K'o 可 often forms part of interrogative sentences; as,

Is it so or not? k'o shi chae-ko iang-tsi? 可是這個樣子。

Before certain verbs it roughly corresponds to the word 'able' as a suffix in English, denoting that certain things may be loved, hated, as 'loveable,' etc.: it has been already so used in a few Lessons. It may be prefixed to the following words which have occurred in earlier Vocabularies:—

Evident; it may be seen that . . . k'o-chien 可見。

Loveable; k'o-ai 可愛。

It may be known; which proves . . . k'o-chi 可知。

Allowable; k'o-hsing 可行。

Worthy of respect; k'o-ching 可敬。

Abominable; detestable; k'o-u 可惡。

Terrible; that which may be feared; k'o-p'a 可怕。

Worthy of death; k'o-shah 可殺。

Ih 一 indicating Totality and Uniformity.

3. Ih 一 is prefixed to many words to convey the idea of sameness or uniformity, and also to denote totality—the summing up of parts into one whole; it may be prefixed to the following words which have already occurred:—

Of one heart, or mind; ih-hsin 一心。

Of one mind; ih-i 一意。

Of the same variety; ih-chong 一種。

The whole; ih-kai 一概。

Together with; ih-t'ong 一同。

All together; ih-k'uai-ri 一塊兒。

Continuously; ih-lien 一連。

Of the same way, or quality, or company; ih-lu 一路。

The whole family; ih-chia 一家。

The whole body; the whole of; ih-t'i 一體。

Also, 'The sum total; the whole of'; ih-kong; 一共 From 共 kong. In all; to sum up. With. Together.

All; all at once; ih-ch'i 一齊 From 齊² ch'i, tsi Even; uniform. All.

Supplementary: Lesson IV.

4. Chien 見 is used in certain connections in the sense of, 'To expose to; to come in contact with,' and as a sign of the Passive; e.g.,

Chinese paper must not come in contact with water; Chong-kuch chī chien puh-teh shui 中國紙見不得水.

Thatched houses must not be exposed to fire; ts'ao fang-tsi chien puh-teh ho 草房子見不得火.

As soon as it came into contact with fire it was burned; ih chien ho chiu shao-liao 一見火就燒了.

His disease is no better; t'a-tih ping puh chien hao 他的病不見好.

Don't be offended; puh iao chien kuai 不要見怪.

His malady is a little lighter to-day; chin-t'ien t'a-tih ping chien ch'ing ih-tien 今天他的病見輕一點.

Teachers are divided as to whether 見 chien; or 經 ching; or 禁 chin. To prohibit; to restrain; should be used in the sense of 'lasting,' 'enduring' as material, etc.; Southern teachers usually prefer 經 ching.

That thing will not stand use; na-ko tong-hsi puh chin (or chien) iong 那個東西不禁 (or 見) 用.

This garment stands wear; ch'ai-chien i-shang chin (or chien) ch'uan 這件衣裳禁 (or 見) 穿.

Tsai 在 is often the equivalent of 'To rest with'—as of power; responsibility; etc.; and 'To consist in'; as,

Wealth and honour rest with Heaven; fu kuei tsai t'ien 富貴在天.

I take the responsibility of that matter; na-chien si tsai o 那件事在我.

The practice of goodness consists in motives not in words; hsing shan puh tsai tsui, tsai hsin 行善不在嘴, 在心.

Shang 上 is employed as a verb 'To enter'—as an item in an account; as,

Put it to my account; k'o-i shang o-tih chang 可以上我的賬.

As applied to a stream it denotes against the current, as 下 hsia denotes to go with it; e.g.,

It is easy to go down stream; difficult to go up; hsia shui iong-i, shang shui nan 下水容易上水難.

Joined with 以 i it is used for 'next' as applied to the order of verses, chapters, books, etc.; e.g.,

Matthew is next to, or comes before Mark; Ma-t'ai tsai Ma-k'o i-shung 馬太在馬可以上.

Luke comes after Mark; Lu-chia tsai Ma-k'o i-hsia 路加在馬可以下.

Above the tenth verse; tsai ti-shih chieh i-shang 在第十節以上.

Si 事 as used with 有 iu may either mean, 'To be engaged'; or, 'To be in difficulties'; as,

The shopkeeper is in trouble; p'u-hu iu liao si 舖戶有了事.

I am engaged now, and have no time; o hsien-tsai iu si muh iu kong-fu 我現在有事沒有工夫。

K'an 看 is applied to reading; to thinking; and, read in the 1st tone, to watching; e.g.,

He is there reading; t'a tsai-na-li k'an shu 他在那裏看書。

I think he is an upright official; o k'an t'a shi ko ch'ing kuan 我看他是個清官。

The barber is at home keeping house; t'i-t'eo-tih tsai chia li k'an-men 剃頭的在家裏看門。

In idiomatic usage 看 k'an also means 'As circumstances require'; or 'It depends on'; or it indicates direction; e.g.,

Act according to circumstances; k'an si hsing si 看事行事

Adapt your conversation to your company; k'an ren shoh-hua 看人說話。

It depends on the price; k'an chia-ch'ien kao ti 看價錢高低。

In which direction does England lie? in the West; Ing-kueh k'an na-ih fang? k'an hsi-fang 英國看那一方, 看西方。

Chiu 就 is a word, the force and usage of which must be acquired by practice and observation. A few examples may, however, help to an understanding of its commoner uses:—

The Japanese caught at the expression and said . . . ; Ri-pen ren chiu-choh t'a-tih hua shoh 日本人就着他的話說。

People came to him from every quarter; ren ts'ong si-fang chiu-liao t'a lai 人從四方就了他來。

That military official comes and goes without any notice; na-ko u kuan shoh lai chiu lai, shoh ch'ü chiu ch'ü 那個武官說來就來, 說去就去。

Buy a box of matches while you are about it; chiu-sheo chih o mai ih-hoh-tsi iang-ho 就手給我買一盒子洋火。

Note the idiom in the third sentence—'Said come, then came, said go, then went.' Chiu 就 so used after verbs repeated, conveys the meaning that the action took place either without delay or without notice; as,

No sooner said 'kill' than he was killed; shoh shah chiu shah 說殺就殺。

Tuo 到 joined to 說 shoh; 講 chiang; 論 luen; and 談 t'an, forms part of such prepositional phrases as, 'With reference to'; 'As regards'; 'As to'; etc.; e.g.,

As to his son's disease, I fear it cannot be cured; luen-tao t'a ri-tsi-tih ping, o p'a chi puh liao 論到他兒子的病我怕治不了。

I made no reference to Mr. Li's affairs; o muh iu shoh-tao Li chia tih si 我沒有說到李家的事。

I will speak about this affair for you; cha-chien si o k'o-i chih ni shoh-tao liao 這件事我可以給你說到了。

Hao 好 is used in some connections in an ironical sense in which case the emphasis is on hao. It is also used in the sense of 'easily' and also as a superlative; e.g.,

Very easy indeed!—meaning that it was not easy; hao rong-i 好容易.

A very heavy rain; hao ta ü 好大雨.

That man is easily gulled; na-ko ren hao hong 那個人好哄.

NOTES.—a. Japan is also called 東洋 tong-iang. A 'Rickshaw' is called a 東洋車 tong-iang ch'æ because it was first devised in Japan by a missionary. It was originally called a 'Man's strength carriage;' hence the word Jinrickshaw 人力車, the Japanese name for it.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

Sun, moon and stars; rī üeh hsing san kuang.

The carpenter uses all sorts of tools; muh-chiang iong koh iang tih chia-ho.

Outside the city there are both flower and vegetable gardens; tsai ch'eng uan hua-üen ts'ai-üen tu üu.

Be careful not to break the gong; hsiao-sin, puh iao ta p'o liao lo.

I will not consent to this; chæ-si o puh tah-ing.

Question and answer; ih uen ih tah.

Beat him first and then see; hsien ta t'a ih-tuen, tsai shoh.

Originally I had two fans; o pen-lai üu liang-pa shan-tsi.

All the accounts are settled up; ih-ch'ieh-tih chang tu suan ch'ing.

Some people have two meals and some three meals a day; üu ih-t'ien ch'ih liang-tuen tih, üu ih-t'ien ch'ih san-tuen tih.

He knelt down and earnestly besought God to have mercy on him; t'a kuei-hsia, ch'ieh-ch'ieh-tih ch'ü Shang-ti k'o-lien t'a.

Heaven is a place where eternal happiness is enjoyed; t'ien-t'ang shī iong-üen hsiang fuh tih ti-fang.

*Translate:—*The small bottle has fallen down; pick it up at once. Although he is wealthy, he still lives in a broken-down house. The ancients used oil lamps, but now, generally speaking, all countries use gas and electric light. The day the hospital was opened, both civil and military officials were there; in all between twenty and thirty. The Yellow River flows east right into the North Sea. That river is very unreliable; it rises without any warning, rising more than ten feet in one night; it is something to be afraid of. Which do you think is better, to wear blue or red? It depends on the person; it is better for a child to wear red and a grown-up person blue. Do not lie on any account; liars both injure themselves and others also. Don't be offended with me if I tell you the truth. That pupil's memory is very bad; I teach him a character and he at once forgets it. The pity of it is that the child is spoiled by his mother. His money is insufficient at New Year's time; he cannot clear up his accounts. He is upstairs reading the newspaper. The seed you sowed last year has not yet grown up. When I went to the church I saw them all kneeling. When they had finished praying, a middle-aged man went into the pulpit and said, Let us sing hymn No. 102. All the congregation at once opened their hymn books and began to sing; in all they sang five verses. They all then sat down and listened to him preach; he said, All God's promises are trustworthy.

The Astute Miss Feng I.

慧心姑娘

早幾百年前、有個封姑娘、他父親在外做大官、隔兩三年來家一回、又因沒有兒子、把他一切的家務¹托在這位姑娘的手裏、知道他又有本事、又有聰明、能管賬、能用²人、能辦事、所以父親出遠門在外、十分放心、姑娘也常親手寫信、把家中一切的事細細的告訴他。但世事不能都隨⁵心意、姑娘已經有二十幾歲、又富又貴、就難免人想要娶他爲妻、但是他全⁷不打算出閣、光以他父親的事爲念。本城有個少年人姓過、也是二十歲上下、爲人不好、常結¹⁰交壞

Chin 盡: Various uses of.

1. Chin 盡 is a word, the force of which must be learnt from examples and practice. The general idea is that of 'entirely,' but no one English word conveys all the meaning. The following examples shew its use with nouns, and also before and after verbs:—

四海之內皆兄弟 All within the four seas are brothers

To do one's duty as a man; chin ren si 盡人事.

The uttermost; the extreme limit; chin-t'eo 盡頭.

With all one's mind and strength; chin-lih chin-i 盡力盡意.

Use up all the material you have; chin liao tso 盡料作.

Most excellent; entirely good; chin mei chin shan 盡美盡善.

Entirely; chin-hsing 盡行.

He says nothing but evil, t'a chin shoh huai hua 他盡說壞話.

There is more than can be spoken; hua to shoh puh chin 話多說不盡.

He has inexhaustible wealth; t'a iu iong-puh-chin-tih ch'ien 他有用不盡的錢.

Chiang 將 and its Uses.

2. Chiang 將 is the word commonly used in books as the equivalent of 把 pa as a sign of the Object. In addition, it indicates proximate future, in which case it is usually followed by 要 iao; but 將來 chiang-lai may be applied to both the immediate and distant future as the connection may demand; e.g.,

He is nearly forty years old; t'a chiang-chin si-shih sui 他將近四十歲.

In time to come, all nations shall worship God; chiang-lai koh kueh tu iao pai Shang-ti 將來各國都要拜上帝.

As he was about to enter the city . . . ; chiang iao chin ch'eng 將要進城.

Supplementary: Lesson V.

3. The following list gives the words commonly used in referring to time:—

In speaking of days, 日 rih may be substituted for 天 t'ien; in Nanking, Peking and some other places, ko is frequently added; as,

To-day; chin-rih 今日 or chin-rih-ko 今日過.

To-morrow; ming-rih 明日 or ming-rih-ko 明日過, etc.

Day after to-morrow; heo-t'ien, or heo-rih; 後天 or 後日.

Months are termed 大 ta or 小 hsiao, as they have 29 or 30 days; as,

This month has thirty days; chae-ko ueh ta 這個月大.

Nien 年 may take a N. A. when an adjective is used; e.g.,

Seven years of famine; ch'ih-ko huang nien 七個荒年 (荒¹ huang. Barren; drought. Reckless; false.)

The first year of a ruler's reign is known as 元年 uen nien. (From 元² üen. The first; the chief.)

上 shang and 下 hsia are applied to years as well as to months; e.g.,

Last year; shang-nien 上年.

Next year; hsia-nien, or lai-nien 下年 or 來年.

Year after next; heo-nien 後年.

Tsao 早 is used in many places as the equivalent of 'Good morning'.
It frequently takes 前 ch'ien as a correlative; as,

A few years ago; tsao chi nien ch'ien 早幾年前.

Ta 大 is prefixed to certain designations of time; as,

The day preceding the day before yesterday; ta-ch'ien t'ien 大前天.

The year preceding the year before last; ta-ch'ien-nien 大前年.

The day following the day after to-morrow; ta-heo-t'ien 大後天.

The week before last; ta-shang li-pai 大上禮拜.

The week after next; ta-hsia li-pai 大下禮拜.

The year following the year after next; ta-heo-nien 大後年.

Ko 過 as applied to time is used in the sense of 'To observe; or keep'; as,

To observe a birthday; ko seng-rih 過生日.

To keep holiday; ko-chieh 過節.

To observe the holidays of the 5th and 8th months; ko u üeh chieh; ko pah üeh chieh 過五月節, 過八月節.

Now; at the present time; hsien-chin; ru-chin; ts'i-k'eh; 現今, 如今, 此刻.

At this time; chae hwei-ri 這會兒.

Afterwards; ran-heo; ko-heo 然後, 過後.

Some other day; kai-rih 改日.

From henceforth; from now onward; ts'ong chin i-heo 從今以後.

This life and the life to come; chin-seng, lai-seng 今生, 來生.

Ancient and modern; ku chin 古今.

Sooner or later; at some time or other; tsao uan 早晚.

Formerly; heretofore; ts'ong-lai; hsiang-lai; su-lai 從來, 向來, 素來.

Some time ago; on ahead; t'eo-li or t'eo-ch'ien 頭裏, 頭前.

In bygone times; formerly; hsien-ch'ien; ch'i-hsien 先前, 起先.

In former years; uang-nien; tsao-nien 往年, 早年.

In former days; uang-rih 往日.

In time to come; uang-hsia 往下.

Previously; a long time ago; tsao-hsien 早先.

At the start; in the beginning; k'ai-t'eo-ri 開頭兒

In the beginning; t'ai-ts'u; ch'i-ts'u 太初, 起初.

Primeval times; t'ai-ku 太古.

Olden times; shang-ku 上古.

Mediæval times; chong-ku 中古.

The Chinese divide up time into periods of two weeks called 節氣 ch'ieh-ch'i. In the country, farming operations are regulated by them, and many local events are fixed in relation to them. Their names and approximate dates are as follows:—

立春 lih-ch'uen , Spring begins. February 5.	立秋 lih-ch'iu , Autumn begins. August 7.
雨水 ü-shui , Rain water. Feb- ruary 19.	處暑 ch'u-shu , Limit of heat. August 23.
驚蟄 ching-chih , Excited insects. March 5.	白露 peh-lu , White dew. Sep- tember 8.
春分 ch'uen-fen , Vernal equinox. March 20.	秋分 ch'iu-fen , Autumnal equi- nox. September 23.
清明 ch'ing-ming , Clear and bright. April 5.	寒露 han-lu , Cold dew. Oc- tober 8.
穀雨 kuh-ü , Grain rains. April 20.	霜降 shuang-chiang , Hoar frost descends. October 23.
立夏 lih-hsia , Summer begins. May 5.	立冬 lih-tong , Winter begins. November 7.
小滿 hsiao-man , Grain fills. May 21.	小雪 hsiao-süeh , Little snow. November 22.
芒種 mang-chong , Grain in ear. June 6.	大雪 ta-süeh , Heavy snow. December 7.
夏至 hsia-chi , Summer solstice. June 21.	冬至 tong-chi , Winter solstice. December 22.
小暑 hsiao-shu , Slight heat. July 7.	小寒 hsiao-han , Little cold. January 6.
大暑 ta-shu , Great heat. July 23.	大寒 ta-han , Severe cold. January 21.

Hsia 下 is applied to individuals when two people are in question, and is the equivalent of the English word 'party'; e.g.,

Both parties came to an understanding; liang hsia pa si-ch'ing shoh ming-peh 兩下把事情說明白.

It also indicates the beginning of an action and its discontinuance: as applied to animals it means 'To beget'; e.g.,

To begin to write; to write; hsia-pih 下筆.

To commence operations; hsia-sheo 下手.

To discontinue going to school; hsia-hsioh 下學.

To dismiss an employé; hsia-kong 下工.

To get off a horse; hsia-ma 下馬.

To lay an egg; hsia-tan 下蛋.

Horses and asses beget foals; lū ma hsia chü 驢馬下駒.
(駒¹ chü. A foal; a colt.)

Chih 給 as a sign of the Indirect Object is largely superseded by 替 t'i in Southern Mandarin; e.g.,

I will buy you a lock; o t'i ni mai ih-pa so 我替你買一把鎖.

There are many words used in Chinese to intensify the thought, and which roughly correspond to descriptive clauses in English; e.g.,

The steamer goes like the wind; ho-luen-ch'uan tseo-tih feng k'uai 火輪船走的風快.

你願意學, 不願意學, 不願意
行李收拾不停當
百事要以禮待人
羊走迷了路
他受了過先生的迷惑
不要着急 那個孩子的急死人
他遠遠的望見城
高麗人, 把他的東西搶得乾淨
犯天法的人, 免不了受刑罰
上帝待人 有恩

NOTES.

The soldier's sword is as sharp as a spear; ping-tih tao chen shī feng k'uai 兵的刀真是鋒快. (鋒¹ feng. A sharp point; tip of a lance.)

Hurry up and do it; kan-k'uai (or chin) tso 趕快 (or 緊) 作.

No sooner was the chair on their shoulders than they flew along with it; chiao-tsi ih shang-liao chien, t'a-men chiu t'ai tih fei p'ao 轎子一上了肩, 他們就抬的飛跑.

The student should make note of similar words that he may meet with in his reading, or in his intercourse with the people. To be able to use them aptly is one mark of a good speaker.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

Are you willing to study? No; ni üen-i hsioh, puh üen-i hsioh? puh üen-i.

The luggage is all ready; hsing-li sheo-shih t'ing-tang.

In all things we must treat men courteously; peh si tao i li tai ren.

The sheep has gone astray; iang tseo mi liao lu.

He was deceived by Mr. Ko; t'a sheo liao Ko Hsien-seng-tih mi-huk

Don't be anxious; puh iao choh-chih.

That child is most aggravating; na-ko hai-tsi chih-si ren.

He saw the city in the distance; t'a üen-üen-tih uang-chien ch'eng.

The Koreans robbed him of everything; Kao-li ren pa t'a-tih tong-hsi ch'iang teh kan-ching.

Men who break the laws of heaven cannot escape punishment; fan t'ien fah tih ren mien puh liao sheo hsing-fah.

God treats men graciously; Shang-ti tai ren iu en.

Translate.—That person originally had a depraved mind, and walked in evil ways; his father and mother exhorted him a good many times, but still he would not listen. Later on he broke the laws of the country and was taken to the official, who first beat him 100 blows, fined him Tls. 50, and said that if he were brought before him again he would punish him more severely. In all probability he was deceived by evil men. For three weeks in succession it did not rain, so the inhabitants of the place became anxious and carried the idol out and set him by the roadside; now they are on the look out for rain, but so far it has not come. Vinegar is sour and bread is sweet; to say that two people have drunk vinegar, is a figure of speech. The carpenters stopped work at 12 o'clock and resumed work at 2 o'clock. The weather is hot and the road is bad; rest awhile. He treated me as a child. Mrs. 章 told her slave girl to let down the blind and lock up the front door. Are you thirsty? there is water here; drink as much as you like. The clock has stopped. Wipe the table clean, and then dust the legs of the large chairs. I have used up all my money; lend me a dollar or two. In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. All men know that if they break the law they fear punishment, but if they break the law of God they regard it as of no moment. Why is this? For the most part because they do not receive punishment at the present time, and think it uncertain whether there is any punishment in the future. It is very lamentable that they should be so deceived. Men reap what they sow, that is a moral certainty.

10. Lao¹-shü¹ 老鼠 A rat; a mouse.

11. Sui-ran . . . ch'ioh 雖然 . . . 卻 Note the 'turn' of the sentence—Although—still . . .

12. Puh hao to shoh-hua 不好多說話 Didn't like to say much.

多說話，因他父親也是在京城做大官，卻也不得不勸他，可以死了這個念頭。既然已經有了一個正妻，爲甚麼還要再娶呢？只怕有了一個妻，再有一個妾，兩個人同住要常常吵鬧，弄得一家的人不和，又與他談了些不相干的話，吃完茶，就上轎各回各的衙門去了。論到封姑娘，自己用計脫了南莊之禍，到了家裏，心中本可放下，家人騎馬跟着回去，也都滿心快活。一來過家的事，東不成西不就，二來姑娘心中有那麼靈，能想出法子來，又平平安安回到家中，真叫一家的人稱姑娘爲可敬可愛。往下若他再有了事，他們無論是丫頭，是家人，都爲他死也甘心，願意爲他把心用盡了救他出壞人的手。可見人心正不怕雷打，清心的人是有福的。雖世事是論不定的，卻早晚有算賬的日子，就是現在，近報也在己身，心不光明，還可以點甚麼燈呢？

1. Sǐ liáo chē-ko nien-t'eo 死了這個念頭 Give up thought of it; let the affair die out of his mind.

Chiu 就 joined to other words to indicate Promptitude.

1. In Lesson IV. Section 6 就 chiu is used to indicate sequence, and also to denote that one action follows immediately on another. Thus used it may either stand alone, or be reinforced by other words to indicate that an act should be done without delay. The commoner words so used are as follows:—

Instantly; forthwith; no sooner said than done; 立刻 lih-k'eh; 隨時 sui-shi; 馬上 ma-shang; 隨卽 sui-chih, from 卽² chih Immediately; forthwith. Then. Indicates supposition.

I want that thing at once; na-ko-tong-hsi o-lih-k'eh chiu iao
那個東西我立刻就要。

知過必改 When a fault is known it should be amended.

It cannot be got immediately; lih-shi-tih teh-puh liao 立時的得不了。

They applied for it forthwith; t'a-men sui-chih ken-choh iao 他們隨即跟着要。

His foot swelled as soon as it was struck; t'a-tik chioh ih ta ma-shang chiu chong ch'i-lai 他的脚一打馬上就腫起來。

Tao-ti 到底 and other Phrases indicating Conclusion.

2. The phrase 到底 tao-ti, 'To the bottom,' is used in the sense of the English phrase 'to come to the end of'—i.e., after all is said and done, a certain conclusion or final stage is arrived at—we arrive at the 'end,' the Chinese arrive at the 'bottom.' Let a story illustrate its use and force. Years ago a lady living in an inland city brought some cheese from the coast and gave special instructions to the servant to put it in a safe place, as rats were fond of it. To which he replied, after smelling it, that while it might be true that foreign rats would eat it, Chinese rats at any rate would not touch such stuff. Consequently he left it in an exposed place, with the result that in the morning it was clean gone. His only confession and apology was, 到底吃了 tao-ti ch'ih liao—eaten it after all!—notwithstanding my high opinion of them.

The following characters and phrases are of the same import as 到底 tao-ti:—

究 ¹ ch } iu	To examine into. Finally; in the end.	終 ¹ chong	The end; finally. After all; still.
竟 ¹ ch } ing	The end; finally.		The whole of.
歸 ¹ kuei	To return to; to go back. To belong to. To divide, as in arithmetic.	久 ³ ch } iu	Finally. A long time.
期 ² ch } i	A period; a limit of time.	始 ³ shī	The beginning. To start.
		末 ⁴ moh	The end; finally. Mean. A negative.

From these are derived the following combinations:—

Finally; after all; in the end; etc.; 究竟 ch'iu-ching; 歸期 kuei-ch'i; 終久 chong-chiu; 始終 shī-chong; 歸根 kuei-ken; 末了 moh-liao; 末末了 moh-moh-liao; 末後 moh-heo.

Supplementary: Vocabulary I.

3. Kan 乾 is colloquially applied to a few articles in the sense of 'unadulterated'; meat, wine, milk and vinegar are said to be 'dry' when no water has been added to them. It is quite common for meat to be blown up with water to add to the weight; this is spoken of as kuan shui 灌水; kuan 灌⁴ To water, e.g.,

'Dry' meat is high priced; kan ruh chia-ch'ien ta 乾肉價錢大。

'Dry' milk strengthens the bones and sinews; kan nai chuang ching kuh 乾奶壯筋骨, (chuang 壯⁴ Strong; ching 筋¹ Sinews).

Unadulterated vinegar never goes bad; kan ts'u iong puh huai 乾醋永不壞.

Unadulterated wine easily makes men drunk; kan chiu k'en tsui ren 乾酒肯醉人.

Tai 帶, a belt, has the same figurative use in Chinese as in English; as 'a belt of country'; 'a zone'; etc. It is also colloquially employed to indicate a manner or style, as Milton says of the devil, he was "girded with snaky wiles;" e.g.,

He has an exasperating way with him; t'a tai ch'i-ren tih iang-tsi 他帶氣人的樣子.

They are outsiders, and speak with a Shanghai accent; t'a-men shi uai-lu ren, tai Shanghai k'eo-in 他們是外路人,帶上海口音.

Lesson VI.

4. Cheng 正 is the opposite of hsie 邪; the one the equivalent of 'upright'; 'orthodox'; the other of 'depraved'; 'heterodox'; etc. It is also the opposite of 反 fan To turn over; to turn back. Contrary. The one may be translated by 'positive'; 'the right side'; the other by 'negative'; 'the wrong side'.

As applied to time 正 cheng means 'Just; at that time; during,' and so roughly corresponds to the present participle. Read cheng it denotes an exact sum, and is added to numeral expressions to prevent unauthorized additions being made; e.g.,

The whole day; cheng t'ien chia 正天家.

300 taels only; san-peh liang cheng 三百兩正.

Due west; cheng-hsi 正西.

Exactly in the centre; cheng-chong 正中.

Just as he was speaking; cheng tsai shoh hua ch'i chien 正在說話之間.

Orthodox; correct; respectable; proper; cheng-ching 正經.

This is the right side, that is the wrong; ch'ae-shi cheng mien, na shi fan mien 這是正面,那是反面.

The reverse of each other; ih fan ih cheng 一反一正.

K'ai 開 in some cases is repeated and does duty as both principal and auxiliary. It is also used with many verbs which indicate 'to divide'; 'to begin'; 'to open'; e.g.,

There is no opening this door; ch'ae-ko men k'ai puh k'ai 這個門開不開.

Open this box; pa ch'ae-ko hsiang-tsi ta-k'ai 把這個箱子打開.

The things are too numerous, there is no room to place them; tong-hsi t'ai to, pai puh k'ai 東西太多,擺不開.

Wind up the clock; pa chong k'ai ih k'ai 把鐘開一開.

Make out a receipt; k'ai ko sheo-t'iao 開個收條.

It is used with the following verbs that have already occurred in these Lessons:—走 tseo; 切 ch'ieh; 颶 kuah; 張 chang; 住 chu; 坐 tso; 放 fang.

In addition to 多 to-tsan, and 多會兒 to-huei-ri; 麼會兒 mo-huei-ri; and 幾時 chi-shi are used for 'When?' as,

It is ready whenever you want it; to-huei-rì iao to-huei-rì iu 多會兒要多會有.

When was this brought? chæ shì chi-shì song lai tih? 這是幾時送來的.

When did you arrive? nì mo-huei-rì tao tih? 你麼會到的.

Chong 重 denotes emphasis, as in reading; esteem in the treatment of others; etc.; it is the opposite of 輕 ch'ing in most of its meanings; e.g.,

Emphasize this sentence; nien chong chæ ih-chü 念重這一句.

How is it you speak without discrimination? tsen-mo shoh-hua puh ch' ch'ing chong ni? 怎麼說話不知輕重呢.

To make no difference between important and unimportant; puh fen ch'ing chong 不分輕重.

To esteem one and despise the other; chong-k'an chæ-ko, ch'ing-k'an na-ko 重看這個, 輕看那個.

The meaning of the same word in English may vary very much in different sentences. Thus in using the word 'strike,' we 'strike a person', or 'an idea strikes us', or 'we strike the right path'; while a band 'strikes up', or workmen 'strike.' These various uses, which must be very confusing to a foreigner, can only be understood by observation and practice. Similarly the word ta 打 is used with a large number of words, some of which have been already given; others are added below:—

To strike a match; ta (or la) iang-ho 打 (or 拉) 洋火.

To be victorious; ta-sheng; or ta-sheng-chang 打勝 or 打勝仗.

To be defeated; ta-pai; or ta-pai-chang 打敗 or 打敗仗.

Victorious every time; ta ih chang, sheng ih chang 打一仗勝一仗.

Defeated every time; ta ih chang, pai ih chang 打一仗敗一仗.

To arrange; to set in order; ta-tien 打點.

To fish; ta-ü 打魚.

To estimate; to consider; ta-liang 打量.

To put up an umbrella; ta-san 打傘.

To fight; ta-chang, or ta-chia 打仗 or 打架.

To yawn; ta ha-ch'ien 打呵欠.

To plait the queue; ta pien-tsi 打辮子.

To determine; to intend; ta-suan 打算.

To draw water; ta-shui 打水.

To trouble; to annoy; ta-chiao 打攪.

To sit in contemplation, as Buddhists do; ta-tso 打坐.

To make a rough draft; ta ts'ao-kao 打草稿.

To make enquiries; ta-t'ing 打聽.

To get (one's clothes) wet; ta shih liao 打濕了.

Go by way of Ts'ing-kiang; ta Ch'ing-chiang tseo 打清江走.

An elder brother is spoken of as 老大 lao ta, and his brothers are referred to in order as 老二 lao rì, the second brother; 老三 lao san, the third brother, and so on. The order of birth is indicated by 行 hang, A row; as,

這是我這請兩這有吃那主基
 是們把個你國本口飯雜將
 個要傘畫來立書才要貨他在
 熱彼很畫幫了是的吃舖的
 開此賤的我約上和飽的功
 碼相好的忙印不的
 頭幫
 實老頂是板我常
 鬼過的我們趕

NOTES.

What is your place in order of birth? ni hang chi? 你行幾.
I am the fourth (brother); o hang si 我行四.

NOTES.—a. Ch'ao-nao 吵鬧 is confined to verbal altercation.

b. To help with extra work; to 'lend a hand' is 帮忙 pang-mang; to help with money, food or clothing is 幫補 pang-pu; while to assist in a general way is 幫助 pang-tsu.

c. Chien 賤 while understood in the South is not so common as 公道 kong-tao, or 便宜 p'ien-i; the former term also means 'fair'; 'just'.

d. Peh-hsing 百姓 refers to the people as a whole, as members of the State. To speak of the people in the house as 百姓 peh-hsing is incorrect.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

This is a busy mart; chæ shī ko reh-nao ma-t'eo.

We must be mutually helpful; o-men iao pi-ts'i hsiang pang.

This umbrella is very cheap; chæ-pa san hen chien.

This picture is drawn well; chæ-ko hua hua tih hao.

Lend me a hand; ch'ing ni lai pang o-tih mang.

A treaty was drawn up between the two countries; liang kueh lih-liao ioh.

This book was printed in Shanghai; chæ-pen shu shī Shang-hai in tih.

Eloquent Buddhist priests are very few; iu k'eo-ts'ai tih ho-shang puh to.

When you eat, eat sufficient; ch'ih fan iao ch'ih pao.

The proprietor of that general store is very honest; na tsah-ho-p'u-tih lao-pan shī ting lao-shih.

The Lord makes amends by His merit for our demerit; Chu Chiang t'a-tih Kong pu o-men-tih ko.

When Christ was on earth, He continually cast out demons; Chi-tuh tsai shī-shang tih shī-heo ch'ang-ca'ang kan kuei.

Translate:—India is a very large country; it is nearly as large as the eighteen provinces of China. Don't be in a hurry; he will return immediately. Locks, umbrellas, blue cloth, matches, wine, incense and rice, may all be bought at the general store. Where are matches produced? in Japan. Formerly they came from the West, but afterwards the Japanese made them in large quantities and sold them cheap, so that foreigners could not carry on that line of business. It is impossible to build houses without lime. The day he invited me to a meal there was neither enough rice nor vegetables, so that I was not half satisfied. The watchman beats his drum every night. My books are too many to put on the table. I must call a carpenter to make me a bookcase. Although his disease was serious (重) and the doctor had written him a prescription, after all he would not take the medicine. That basket seller is honest and tells the truth. Every man must do his duty. When the Saviour was on earth He divided five loaves and a few small fishes, and gave them to 5,000 people, besides women and children. They all ate to the full; and there was as much as they wanted. Both Buddhist and Taoist priests are willing to chant for people, but money is indispensable; therefore everybody says: "If you have money you may live; if you have none you must die."

READING LESSON XXV. 課五十二第要輯

A Bookselling Trip.

散賣聖經

戴先生包先生二位先在江口把道理傳徧了，隨即開船過江要往狼山去，在那裏碰見幾千好佛的香客，便對他們講道理賣書，然後動身要進通州城裏去，當日天陰下雨，船離城有二十多里路，有他們帶來的兩位先生苦口勸他們萬不可進城，說是到了虎口邊，一定要送命，這話他們拿當旁耳風，左耳進去，右耳出來，全不在意，光說就是一個人有兩條命，也願意為主送上，不以爲有功，不過算是分內之事了。但世事本是不定的，所以叫那兩位先生等在船上，若當夜不回來，他們可以往上海去報信，又吩咐船老板把船靠在江邊，事情既一一說明，他們就

更費事，又是腳價¹太大，一運到省，非富家就糴不起。又因東西南搭界的兩省裏，也都是荒年，出外糴糧，又無處可去，所以那年冬天餓死的人很多，及到第三年，全省苦得無法可說了。先是人把黃土和在麵裏充饑⁷，後是把樹皮剝下來當飯吃，又挖出樹根來煮着吃，家中有傢伙的，有箱子的，有綢衣裳的，也都往各城裏去賣，以後拆房子賣材料的也不少，直到賤賣東西，並無人要買，有錢的人尚能糴糧吃飽，雖比荒年以前的年間長價¹⁰，卻還有場去糴，但是鄉間的人受了千苦萬難，逃呢，無處可逃，糴糧呢，無錢可糴，就忍飢受餓，在家等死而已。也有跳井的，也有殺孩子吃的，就是有人要出門，也必得三五個在一塊兒，身上帶刀，纔敢齊往外走，不然，怕碰見忍餓的。

14. Ts'ai² kan² 纔敢 Before they dared to . . .

15. Puh¹ ran² 不然 Otherwise; or else.

人把他殺了吃了。真可憐的，就是那些逃難在路上餓死的，也有被狼吃的大路以上盡是骨頭，叫人頭不敢抬，血淚下流。初遭這大災難的時候，人到處起會求雨，家家門口燒香，有上廟求菩薩免這災難的，也有上井求龍王快降大雨的，可惜空費心事，一點益處都沒有。以後百姓們着急唱神戲，把佛爺抬出來，對着戲臺，以爲佛爺看見戲，就是有鐵石的心，也能化開。誰知佛爺看了戲，心仍是不動，沒降大雨，叫人生氣把他丟在外邊直晒，看他自己晒的難受不難受。那知人手所造的大不如人，並不知疼癢，豈能管人的禍福呢？真是不可敬的了。當時南方人聽見這信，就極力捐錢往北發，北方的各府州縣，雖然把各城的南門關了，又把些錢發給窮人，但是窮人過多，凍的凍死，餓的餓死，村中就有一大半成了荒場的了。

1. Tao nan 逃難 To flee from trouble; 逃難的 refugees.

2. Hsüeh lui hsia liu 血淚下流 To weep tears of blood.

3. Ch'i hui 起會 Formed associations.

4. Long² uang² 龍王 The Dragon King, who is supposed to have all water under his control.

4. Write the following in Chinese characters:—

His parents said, 'It is of no great importance.' After all, it is a matter between those two brothers. Very well, very well, say no more about it. He has travelled in a large number of places; he came back this year in the 1st month. The second time I lent him $4.00 odd. I took the dollars to him, and he was unwilling to receive them, so I had my trouble for nothing. I don't know whether he has started or not; you had better go across and enquire. Beyond the sea there are several millions of people; I think of going later on with my elder brother to see. I fear he is not willing to sell that large piece of land; at first he wanted more than Tls. 100, but he afterwards said he would take Tls. 4 less. We will talk the matter over when you come again. Your honourable name? He reckoned back and forth, and after all reckoned it wrong. Send that man 錢 with this letter.

Ho 何: Various Uses of.

1. Attention has been called already to the use of certain words, which, though properly belonging to the book style, have filtered through into common speech. Such words usually form part of set expressions, and if used separately by beginners are generally misunderstood. For example in Lesson XVII. Section 3, the sentence 這事與我無干 occurs. This is quite intelligible as it stands, but 無干 used alone would mean little or nothing. Similarly the Interrogative Pronoun 何 ho should be used with other words, as follows:—

What is the need for . . . ? Why must you . . . ? ho-pih? 何必。

Why must you act so? ho-pih chæ iang hsing ni? 何必這樣行呢。

What concern or business? ho-kan? 何干.

What is it to do with him? chæ ü t'a iü ho kan? 這與他有何干.

Why? uei-ho? 爲何.

Why take the trouble? Why? ho-k'u? 何苦.

What sort or degree; ho-teng 何等—usually followed by some qualifying word, as, 'great'; 'much'; etc.; e.g.,

How great a degree of happiness! ho-teng ta tih fuh-ch'i! 何等大的福氣.

How? What? ru-ho? 如何.

How about? ho-ru? 何如.

By what means? wherefore? ho-i? 何以.

What harm or objection is there? ho-fang 何妨. (From 妨¹ fang To hinder; to oppose. An obstacle).

How much more or less 何況 ho-k'uang; i.e., an hypothesis being granted 何況 ho-k'uang is used to introduce and emphasize the logical deduction; e.g.,

If even you cannot do it, how much less can I? chiu-shi ni ie puh neng hsing, ho-k'uang o ni? 就是你也不能行, 何況我呢.

半途而廢 To go half way and stop.

T'eh 特 and other words indicating Purpose.

2. T'eh 特 which indicates purpose is not often used alone in colloquial, but usually takes either 意 i; or 爲 wei. Design, intent, etc., are also denoted by the following:—

故⁴ ku. A reason; a cause. Intentional.

偏¹ p'ien. Inclined to one side. Partial.

P'ien 偏 is commonly employed in a bad sense = "obstinately and perversely determined"; or when used to introduce sentence = "but, alas:" it is often repeated.

But you are bent on discovering my faults; ni p'ien chien ch'uh o-tih ts'o lai 你偏見出我的錯來.

Expressly; specially; purposely; of set purpose; ku-i 故意; iu-i 有意; iu-hsin 有心; ch'u-hsin 處心; p'ien-p'ien 偏偏; e.g.,

He sinned of set purpose; t'a ming chi ku fan 他明知故犯.

We have come on purpose to worship him; o men t'eh-i lai pai t'a 我們特意來拜他.

That person does evil purposely; na-ko ren ch'u-hsin tso oh 那個人處心作惡.

Fan 凡: its Position and Use.

3. Fan 凡 precedes the noun and is often related to 的 tih, from which it may be separated by a word or clause; in such cases fan 凡 and tih 的 may be translated by 'Those who'; 'that which,' etc.; e.g.,

All those under two years old, fan liang sui i-li tih 凡兩歲以裏的.

Whoever hears my words and does them; fan t'ing-chien o ch'ue hua ch'ü hsing tih 凡聽見我這話去行的.

Whosoever confesses me before men; fan tsai ren mien-ch'ien ren o tih 凡在人面前認我的.

Supplementary: Lesson VII.

4. Ie 也 often has the force of an emphatic particle; as,

He was quite willing to die; t'a si ie kan hsin 他死也甘心.

Not a single person would go; shui ie puh ch'ü 誰也不去.

Hai 還 often conveys the idea of remonstrance or expostulation; e.g.,

The idea of such a thing! Can this be allowed; ch'ue hai liao teh! 這還了得.

What is there against saying it? na hai iu shen-mo shoh puh teh ni? 那還有甚麼說不得呢.

To-shao 多少 in some connections may be translated by 'More or less'; or by 'More' alone; e.g.,

Give him a few more; to-shao chih t'a chi-ko 多少給他幾個.

He knows more or less English; t'a to-shao ren-teh chi-ko Ing-kueh tsü 他多少認得幾個英國字.

That girl is more or less proficient; na-ko ku-niang to-shao hwei ih-tien 那個姑娘多少會一點.

Among so polite a people as the Chinese, there are necessarily a good many polite phrases in common use. Many sound stilted and unreal to the ears of a foreigner, but they are used conventionally, and must not be taken too literally any more than similar terms in English. It goes without saying that they are used more freely among educated people, hence discrimination is needed in their use; to address high-flown language to a coolie is to cast pearls before swine. At the same time, as the proverb has it, "No one blames you for being too polite;" li to ren puh kuai 禮多人不怪, and it is better to err on the side of excess than defect in this matter, especially as so many of the rising generation have no manners to speak of, natural or acquired.

No attempt is made to give an exhaustive list of such expressions as relate to age, place of birth, etc.; most of them gather round the characters and combinations given below:—

屬 ³ shuh	To belong to; to be subject to.	台 ² t'ai	Eminent; exalted.
壽 ⁴ sheo	Old age; long life.	寶 ³ pao	Precious; valuable. Treasure.
令 ⁴ ling	To command. To cause. A term of respect.	仰 ³ i } ang li	To look up to. To rely on.
號 ⁴ hao	A mark; a sign. A number. A name or 'style.'	達 ² uei	To disobey; to oppose.
嚴 ² ien	Stern; dignified.	犬 ³ ch' } üen k	A dog.
舍 ¹ shœ	A cottage. In speaking of one's junior relatives=my.	支 ¹ chi	A branch. To pay; to advance money.
開 ² koh	A screen.	甲 ³ ch } iah k	Armour. Finger nails.
愚 ² ü	Stupid; simple.	甫 ³ fu	A 'style,' or name.

I have long wished to know you; chiu-liang 久仰.

I have not seen you for a long time; chiu-uei 久違.

I have been wanting in respect; shih-ching 失敬.

I have not had the pleasure—used in answer to queries as to one's name; muh ling-chiao 沒領教.

What is your name (hao 號)? t'ai-fu? 台甫.

My unworthy name is Ta-ch'eng; ts'ao tsi Ta-ch'eng 草字大成.

Kuei 貴 precedes enquiries relating to country, city and residence; e.g.,

Which is your honourable country? Kuei kueh? or Kuei kueh shi na-ih kueh? 貴國 or 貴國是那一個.

I am a native of England; pi kueh Ing kueh 敝國英國.

Ling 令 precedes enquiries as to father, mother, son and daughter; as,

How many daughters have you? chi-uei ling-ai? 幾位令愛.

Your worthy mother; ling-t'ang 令堂.

Your worthy father; ling-tsuen 令尊.

Chia 家 and shə 舍 are the equivalent of 'my' as used below:—

Both my elder and younger brother are at home; chia hsiong shə ti tu tsai chia 家兄舍弟都在家.

Your exalted age?—said to people over fifty years old; kao shəo? 高壽.

You sir—more complimentary than hsien-seng 先生; koh-hsia 閣下.

Your honourable place in the Cycle? kuei chiah-tsi? 貴甲子.

What animal presided over the year of your birth, Sir? Hsien-seng shuh shen-mo tih? 先生屬甚麼的.

The Sixty Years Cycle.

The Chinese employ two sets of characters to form a Cycle of sixty years. They are used for casting horoscopes, telling ages, etc., and are spoken of as The Heavenly Stems and The Earthly Branches:—

TEN HEAVENLY STEMS.

十天干 shih t'ien-kan.

甲 ³ chiah	First heavenly stem; the year 1904.	己 ³ chi	Sixth heavenly stem.
乙 ¹ ih	Second " "	庚 ¹ keng	Seventh " "
丙 ³ ping	Third " "	辛 ¹ hsin	Eighth " "
丁 ¹ ting	Fourth " "	壬 ² ren	Ninth " "
戊 ⁴ u	Fifth " "	癸 ³ kuei	Tenth " "

TWELVE EARTHLY BRANCHES.

十二地支 shih-rì ti-chi.

1. 子 ³ tsi	11 p.m. to 1 a.m.	1. 鼠 ⁴ shu ¹	Rat.
2. 丑 ³ ch'eo	1-3 a.m.	2. 牛 ² niu ¹⁴	Ox.
3. 寅 ² in	3-5 a.m.	3. 虎 ³ hu ⁹	Tiger.
4. 卯 ¹ mao	5-7 a.m.	4. 兔 ¹ tu ¹	Hare.
5. 辰 ² ch'en	7-9 a.m.	5. 龍 ² long ¹⁴	Dragon.
6. 巳 ⁴ si	9-11 a.m.	6. 蛇 ² shə ¹⁴	Snake.
7. 午 ⁴ u	} 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The year 1894.	7. 馬 ³ ma ¹¹	Horse.
8. 未 ⁴ uei		8. 羊 ² iang ⁹	Sheep.
9. 申 ¹ shen	1-3 p.m.	9. 猴 ² heo ¹	Monkey.
10. 酉 ³ iu	3-5 p.m.	10. 雞 ¹ chi ⁹	Fowl.
11. 戌 ¹ hsüh	5-7 p.m.	11. 犬 ³ ch'üen ¹⁴	Dog.
12. 亥 ⁴ hai	7-9 p.m.	12. 猪 ¹ chu ²³	Pig.

The Chinese use these Twelve Branches for a number of purposes. Most people can say them off in order, and it is worth while for us to learn them off too. They are used to denote:—

1. The 12 hours of the day as indicated above ; a Chinese hour being equal to two English hours ;
2. The months, the first month being in 寅 ;
3. The signs of the zodiac, Aries being tsi 子 ;
4. The 12 points of the Chinese compass, North being tsi 子 ;
5. Cycles of 12 years, also cycles of 12 days.

The corresponding symbolical animals similarly preside over years and days, and every Chinaman knows the animal that presided over (shuh 屬), the year in which he was born. He often quotes his age by mentioning the animal, and on hearing the animal he can rapidly calculate the corresponding age.

The Stems and Branches are combined to form a curious Cycle of Sixty Years, hua chiah tsi 花甲子. The mode of combination is as follows :—The present cycle began in 1864 and that year was chiah-tsi 甲子, the first stem and first branch ; 1865 was ih-ch'eo 乙丑, the second stem and second branch ; and so on. In 1874, the stems being exhausted, the first was used again with the eleventh branch, forming chiah-hsüh 甲戌 ; 1875 was ih-hai 乙亥, the second stem and the twelfth branch ; while in 1876 the branches being exhausted the third stem was used with the first branch forming ping-tsi 丙子 ; and so on. It is obvious that in sixty years the ten stems will have been used six times and the twelve branches five times, so that the sixtieth year 1923 will be the last in both lists, viz., kuei-hai 癸亥 ; and in the following year the Cycle will begin again. The combination which marks the year is known as sui ts'i 歲次 the order of the year—according to the cyclic characters.

This, and the still more inconvenient system of quoting the year of an Emperor's reign, are the only methods the Chinese have had up till recently of computing dates.

The "pah-ko tsi" 八個字 are four sets of stems and branches, and indicate the year, the month, the day and the hour of a Chinaman's birth. In the case of a contemplated matrimonial engagement the two sets of "pah-ko tsi" 八個字 are submitted (by the parents of the parties, of course) to a competent astrological authority, who compares the two (p'ai pah-tsi 排八字) and predicts without hesitation whether or not the marriage will turn out fortunate. The formal exchange of the "pah-ko tsi" constitutes an engagement.

NOTE.—The Chinese way of reckoning age is quite different from ours. Instead of reckoning a child one year old on the first anniversary of its birth, they reckon it one year old at any point of the year in which it was born. The following year (beginning from their New Year's day) they reckon it 2 years old ; so that in Chinese reckoning a child may be two years old before in English reckoning it is fully one. From this it will be seen that the age of a person, according to the Chinese mode of reckoning, is at least one and often two years more than according to ours. The commencement of the Chinese New Year varies between the 21st of January and the 19th of February. From this time to our next birthday we are reckoned by the Chinese to be two years older than we reckon ourselves to be; while from our birthday to the following Chinese New Year they reckon us one year older than we reckon ourselves. Of course the few weeks at the beginning of our year before their year commences have the same chiah-tsi as the previous year.

NOTES.—a. Scissors are called chien-tsi 剪子 in the South, chiao-tsi 鉋子 in the North, and chien-tao 剪刀 in the West; 剪 chien and 鉋 chiao are both used as verbs.

b. Ch'iang 槍 is also written 鎗.

c. T'eo 頭 is added to chen 枕 in colloquial.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

I am loath for you to go; o shā-puh-teh ni tseo.

That child is repeating his lesson; na-ko hai-tsi pei-shu.

The Development of Japan.

日本漸興

如今中國二十幾省、都有日本人、早年間除了靠海的幾省以外、別的省中找不着一個、就是現在有許多沒有出過門的中國人、看見他們還是認他爲別省的中國人、這也難怪、何以呢、因他相貌和本地人相似、眼睛頭髮都是黑的、身量也矮、他們也學了一口中國話。若問人、他們的國看那一方、十個有八九個必然說、不知道看那一方、其實這國離中國不遠、不過隔一道海、至多有兩三天就到了。這幾十年日本國比先前大不相同、皇上、臣子、早年間打發許多年輕的學生到各國去學、無論是文的武的、是生意買賣場中、凡與本國有益的事、都要學熟了、回來教別人學、所以現在東洋雖是沒有多大、不過是幾千海島連成一大海島的、還是有火車、電綫、電車、電氣燈、火輪船、兵船、並有各樣外國學來的本事。不說旁的、光說他打仗

1. Hsiang-si 相似 Resembling ; like.

2. Ta puh hsiang-t'ong 大不相同 Greatly different from.

3. Tong-iang 東洋 Another name for Japan.

4. Lien-ch'eng 連成 Connected together and become.

的本事、跟造兵船的本事、就可以看得出來。不到十年前、他與俄羅斯失了和、兩國就打起來。俄羅斯人本是看不起日本人、以爲他們不知道打仗、也沒有學會了兵法、但日本人從多年就暗暗的預備好了、買了鎗砲、練了兵、學會打仗的新法、不用弓箭、早已打發武官往德國去、假作不知擺陣、不懂兵法的樣子、故意裝呆哄人、口是甜的心是苦的。又跑到英國去、請了些兵船上的官來帮忙、教他們下水雷、造些風快的魚雷船、與厚鐵身子的兵船、這船上的砲又大又靈、一開砲子就能飛幾十里地、所以俄羅斯人和他們交戰、不管是在水面上、是在旱地上、就打了敗仗、叫日本人打一仗勝一仗、末末了把俄羅斯人打到北邊去、以後兩國打穀了、就彼此商量、可以立和約、再不

1. Ken 跟 Together with.
2. Shih ho 失和 Lost harmony—ceased to be on friendly terms.
3. Ta ch'i-lai 打起來 Commenced hostilities.
4. K'an puh ch'i 看不起 Looked down upon; despised.
5. Hsioh hwei liao 學會了 To become proficient in by study.
6. Ping fah 兵法 Military tactics.
7. Chia tsoh . . . tih iang-tsi 假作 . . . 的樣子 To put on a . . . manner; to act as though . . .
8. Pai³ chen⁴ 擺陣 Disposition of troops for battle.
9. Chuang¹ tai¹ 裝呆 Pretended to be simpletons.
10. Shui² lui² 水雷 Water thunder—torpedoes. 下水雷 To discharge torpedoes.
11. Ü lui ch'uan 魚雷船 Torpedo boats.
12. P'ao-tsi 砲子 Cannon shot.
13. Chiao chang 交戰 To join battle.
14. Ta hiao pai chang 打了敗仗 Fought a losing battle; were defeated.

16. Ta keo liao 打穀了 Had enough of fighting.
17. Lih ho-ieh 立和約 To draw up a treaty of peace.

打了、講定了、就打發大官上美國去、在那裏把事情說好了、所以現今兩下²就如兄如弟、我買你的貨、你買我的貨、你在我這邊做生意、我在你那裏做買賣。但高麗人吃了他們兩國的苦、先是因有多少兵從他那裏過、軍裝兵餉⁴都得給他們搬運、有車裝的、有馬馱的、也有小車推的、把他的莊稼就弄的不像個樣子了。就是現在高麗人也要聽東洋人的吩咐、他們的皇上成了有名無實、國裏一切的事、都在東洋人的手下、像甚麼郵政局的信票、凡所用的都是日本印的、火車站都是日本人管的、各衙門也是歸他們管、大概用不了幾年高麗就要成爲日本的一個小屬國了、卻有一樣、自從日本人上他們那裏去住下、各買賣比早年大得好幾百倍了、真是一朵黑雲其中也有好雨、樣樣事都是苦盡甜來、

LESSON XXVII. 課七十二第

保 ³ pao	To warrant; to insure. To guarantee. To protect.	憂 ¹ iu	Grief; sad. Mournful.
阿 ⁴ a	A final particle.	悶 ⁴ men	Sorrowful; melancholy.
碎 ⁴ sui	Fragments. Broken.	獸 ⁴ sheo ⁹	Brutes; wild beasts.
巡 ² hs } ün	To go on circuit.	染 ³ ran	To dye. To infect. To 'catch,' as a disease.
掌 ³ chang	To patrol.	捆 ³ k'uen	To bind; to tie up.
	The palm of the hand; the sole of the foot. To manage; to control.	瞞 ² man	To hoodwink; to blind.
警 ³ ch } ing	To warn; to admonish.	嫌 ² hsien	To dislike. To object to. Suspicion.
岡 ¹ kang	A mound.	撕 ¹ si	To tear; to rend.
野 ³ ie	Wild; rustic; savage. A wilderness.	稍 ³ shao	Slightly; a little.
嚇 ⁴ heh } hsiah	To scare; to intimidate.	微 ² wei
彩 ³ ts'ai	Ornamented; gay. A prize.	珠 ¹ chu	Pearls.
顏 ² ien	Colour. The face.	子 ³ tsi ³⁵
色 ⁴ seh	Colour. Lust. Sort; kind.	葡 ² p'u	Grapes.
監 ^{1,4} ch } ien	To inspect; to oversee. A jail.	萄 ² tao
牢 ² lao	A prison. Firmly; secure.	點 ³ tien	Sweetmeats; confectionery.
瑟 ⁴ seh ¹	A large guitar.	心 ¹ sin
販 ⁴ fan	To traffic; to deal in.	監 ¹ chien	A prison.

Assent: how emphasized.

1. Simple affirmation and denial, assent and dissent are expressed by 是 shì and 不是 puh-shì. But when to this is added emphasis, and the thought that something must be so in the nature of the case, these are insufficient. This is expressed in the following manner:—

Of course; you are right; k'o-puh-shì 可不是.

You bet! no mistake about that! kan-tsi 敢自.

Why ask that? Of course not; na hai uen? 那還問.

What are you talking about? na lai-tih hua? 那來的話.

That is certain; na shì ih-ting-tih 那是一定的.

謀事在人, 成事在天 Man proposes, Heaven disposes.

It is needless to speak of that; na shī puh-iong shoh-tih 那是
不用說的。

That goes without saying; na shī puh-iong chiang-tih 那是
不用講的。

Final Particles.

2. The Chinese use a good many final particles in ordinary conversation, the commonest of which is a 阿. Beginners should use it sparingly until they have observed how and when the people round them use it, as if misplaced, it has a tendency to make the speaker look ridiculous. There are other particles such as 喇 la; 哩 li; and 哪 na; the latter commonly following a word which ends with 'n'.

Supplementary: Lessons VIII and IX.

3. K'en 肯 is employed colloquially in the sense of 'Readily; rapidly; easily'; e.g.,

Horses easily fall sick; ma k'en seng ping 馬肯生病。

My child is growing rapidly; his won't grow; o-tih hai-tsi k'en chang; t'a-tih hai-tsi puh k'en chang 我的孩子肯長, 他的孩子不肯長。

This ground dries up rapidly; chae-ko ti k'en kan 這個地肯乾。

Chia 家 is added to many words; sometimes to indicate 'a class' and at other times to denote 'an individual'; e.g.,

People; individuals; ren-chia 人家。

State; country; kueh-chia 國家。

Women; females; fu-tao-chia 婦道家。

An elderly person; lao-ren-chia 老人家。

Officials; kuan-chia 官家。

Merchants; business men; shang-chia 商家。

Shopkeepers; p'u-chia 舖家。

At home with the mother—of a woman; tsai niang-chia 在娘家。

I have come to look for a person named Li; o lai chao Li chia 我來找李家。

A steward; kuan-chia 管家。

T'ai 太 is employed indiscriminately in the South, but in the North it is often replaced by 忒 t'eh when anything of an unsatisfactory nature is in question; e.g.,

A string of cash is too little; ih-tiao ch'ien t'eh shao 一吊錢忒少。

Ko 過 'To pass over', is also used to denote a going beyond the mark; it may be used alone or take either 逾² ü; To pass over; to exceed; or 於² ü In; on; or 分 fen; e.g.,

His language is beyond all bounds; t'a shoh-hua t'ai ko liao fen 他說話太過了分。

There is no need to be excessively grieved; puh-pih ko-ü shang-hsin 不必過於傷心。

Ting 頂 in some districts as a superlative is aspirated (t'ing). Other common words and phrases which denote the highest degree are:—

極 ² ch } ih	The ridge-pole of a house. The utmost point. Very.	着實 choh-shih	Thoroughly; in deed and in truth.
最 ⁴ tsui	Exceedingly; most.	到家 tao-chia	Fully; thoroughly. 'At home' at anything.
儘 ⁴ ch } in	All. The utmost; the extreme.	極其 chih-ch'i	A strengthened form of 極.
得荒 teh-huang	Used in the North in connection with anything unpleasant or painful.	甚 shen	Any. Very.
		十分 shih-fen	Ten-tenths; perfectly; entirely.

Detestable in the extreme; chih-ch'i k'o-u 極其可惡.

Extremely low-spirited; men teh-huang 悶得荒.

The very last; chin moh-moh-liao 儘末末了.

The innermost room; chin-li-pien-tih na-ko fang-tsi 儘裏邊的那個房子.

He is not yet quite at home at it; t'a hai muh iu shih-fen tao-chia 他還沒有十分到家.

He has now thoroughly repented; t'a hsien-tsai choh-shih-tih huei-kai 他現在着實的悔改.

He is thoroughly at home in Chinese; Chong-kueh hua t'a i-ching shoh tao-chia 中國話他已經學到家.

Ts'o 錯 is joined to 過 ko and used in the same sense as 除了 ch'u-liao, 'with the exception of'; e.g.,

With the exception of Mr. Pien, who would dare to reprove him? ts'o-ko Pien hsien-seng shui kan shoh t'a? 錯過邊先生誰敢說他.

Apart from him there is no one able to manage it; ts'o-ko t'a muh iu neng pan tih 錯過他沒有能辦的.

So far, in these Lessons 但 tan and 光 kuang have been used for 'only'; other words in common use denoting limitation are:—

只 ³ chi	Only; but.	專門 chuan-men	Solely; entirely.
單 ¹ tan	Single; alone. An account; a bill. Unlined.	味 ⁴ uei	Flavour; taste.
專 ¹ chuan	Only; specially; solely.	一味的 ih-uei-tih	Devoted to; uniformly.
獨 ² tuh	Single; alone; solitary.	只得 chi-teh or 只能 chi-neng	The only thing possible was to . . .
寡 ³ kua	Few; little. Friendless. Used colloquially largely in Southern Mandarin.

Jesus gave Himself up to doing good and healing the sick; Ie-su chuan-men tso hao si, i ping-ren 耶穌專門做好事, 醫病人.

He does nothing but injure us; t'a ih-uei-tih hai o-men 他一個的害我們.

Only the one establishment; chī ts'ī ih chia 只此一家.

He only was left; tan sheng-hsia t'a ih ko ren 單膝下他一個人.

He does not devote himself to the business at all; tsoh sī ih-tien-ri puh chuan-hsin 作事一點兒不專心.

He says he will come; he has no intention of doing so; t'a kua shoh lai, t'a ping puh lai 他寡說來, 他並不來.

Money and Exchange.

In addition to the Vocabulary in Lesson IX, the following terms relating to money are in constant use:—

值 ⁴ chih	To be worth; value.	鷹 ¹ 洋 ² ing-iang	Mexican dollars.
賺 ⁴ chuan	To make money; to earn.	本 ³ 洋 ² pen-iang	Spanish dollars.
折 ² chēh	To discount; to abate.	長 ³ 價 ⁴ chang-chia	To rise in price.
賒 ¹ shā	To buy or sell on credit.	跌 ¹ 價 ⁴ tieh-chia	To fall in price.
欠 ⁴ ch'ien	To owe; deficient.	成 ² 色 ⁴ ch'eng-seh	Fineness, 'touch,' or purity of silver.
利 ⁴ li	Profit.	捨 ³ 本 ³ shāe-pen	To fail in business.
押 ¹ iah	To detain in custody; to suppress.	賒 ¹ 賬 ⁴ shāe-chang	Credit; to run up a score.
搭 ¹ tah	To add to.	戥 ³ 子 ³ teng-tsi	A small balance used in weighing silver.
扣 ⁴ k'eo	To deduct; to discount.	扣 ⁴ 頭 ² k'eo-t'eo	Discount.

The dollar is at .72; iang-ch'ien tsoh ch'ih ch'ien ri 洋錢作七錢二.

To-day a Mexican dollar is worth .71 (of a tael); chin-t'ien ing-iang hoh ch'ih ch'ien ih fen in-tsi 今天鷹洋合七錢一分銀子.

The value of a Spanish dollar is Tls. .75; pen-iang tsoh ch'ih ch'ien u 本洋作七錢五.

How many cash to a dollar? hoh to-shao ch'ien ih-k'uai? 合多少錢一塊.

How much silver is a dollar worth? ih-k'uai iang-ch'ien hoh to-shao in-tsi? 一塊洋錢合多少銀子.

Three taels plus five hundred cash; san liang in-tsi tah u peh ko ch'ien 三兩銀子搭五百個錢.

Take the average (between two or more amounts); ih la-ri suan 一拉兒算.

How much in all? ih-tsong in to-shao? 一總有多少.

Add it up; shah ko tsong-ri 殺個總兒.

Pay a half, and leave a half unpaid; kuei ih pan iah ih pan 歸一半押一半.

Less than it cost; under cost price; puh keo pen 不穀本.

Worthless; puh ch'ih ch'ien 不值錢.

Enquire the market price; ta-t'ing hang-shī 打聽行市.

Unable to change (money) for the full price; huan puh tao hang-shī 換不到行市.

In ordinary cases amounts are reckoned to two places of decimals, but bankers and others extend their calculations to five places of decimals, as shown in the following Table:—

10	huk	忽 ¹	an atom=1	si	絲	a filament.
10	si	絲 ¹	=1	hao	毫	a hair.
10	hao	毫 ²	=1	li	釐	a grain.
10	li	釐 ²	=1	fen	分	a hundredth.

One of the first things the beginner needs to know about is Exchange; he may perhaps find some of his difficulties on the subject lightened by considering the following:—

Dollars and taels are exchanged, or sold, for cash. To find the value of either the whole or part of a dollar or a tael, all that is needed is to multiply the amount by the rate; e.g.,

What is the value in cash of $30.69 @ 1,120 cash a dollar?
 $$30 @ 1,120 = 1,120 \times 30 = 336,000$
 $+$100 @ 1,120 = 1,120 \times 100 = 112,000$
 $= 448,000$
 $\div 1,120 = 399.1071$ cash. Ans.

Or more simply, to multiply decimally— $$30.69 \times 1,120 = 34,373$ cash: Answer. It should be noticed that this answer is slightly larger than the one given above. The rule in such cases is to add 1 when the remainder is over a half.

How many cash is Tls. .36 worth @ 1,560 cash per tael?
 $1,560 \times .36 = 562$ cash. Ans.

It follows that to convert cash into dollars or taels all that is needed is to reverse the above process; e.g.,

How many dollars should I receive for 189,645 cash @ 1,040 per $1?
 $189,645 \div 1,040 = $182.35$. Ans.

How many taels will 2,650 cash realize if silver changes @ 1,520 cash per Tl. 1?
 $2,650 \div 1,520 = \text{Tls. } 1.74$. Ans.

The conversion of dollars into taels, or taels into dollars proceeds as above; e.g., a. What is the value in taels of $4, the dollar being at .72?

100 dollar cents=tael cents 72

$\therefore 1$ " " = " " $\frac{72}{100}$

Hence 400 " " = " " $\frac{72 \times 400}{100} = \text{Tls. } 2.88$. Ans.

Or, more simply, $1 is worth .72 tael cents, $\therefore $4 \times .72 =$ required answer in taels. Ans. Tls. 2.88.

b. What is the value in taels of $8.65, the dollar being at .73?

$1 is worth .73 tael cents $\therefore $8.65 \times .73 =$ required answer in taels. Ans. Tls. 6.31.

c. What is the value in dollars of Tls. 5, the dollar being at .71?

Value of 71 tael cents=100 dollar cents.

\therefore " " 1 " " = $\frac{1}{71}$ of 100 dollar cents = $\frac{100}{71}$.

Hence " " 500 " " = $\frac{100 \times 500}{71} = \7.04 . Ans.

Or, more simply, Tl. 1=100 cents \therefore Tls. 5=500 cents; hence $500 \div .71 =$ required answer in dollars. Ans. \$7.04.

d. What is the value in dollars of Tls. 86.92, the dollar being at 73 tael cents? Tls. $86.92 \div .73 = $119.07$. Ans.

All the cases which arise in dealing with taels and dollars may be summed up in the following brief rules:—

1. To find taels, when the rate is given in taels, multiply the given number of dollars by the rate; e.g.,

How many taels are in $150 @ .73?

According to the rule the answer is $150 \times .73 = \text{Tael} 109.50$.

Ans.

2. To find taels, when the rate is given in dollars, divide the given dollars by the rate; e.g.,

How many taels are in $63.75 @ $1.37 per tael?

$63.75 \div 1.37 = \text{Tael} 46.53$. Ans.

3. To find dollars, when the rate is given in taels, divide the given taels by the rate; e.g.,

How many dollars are in taels 100 @ .725 taels?

$100 \div .725 = $137.93$. Ans.

4. To find dollars, when the rate is given in dollars, multiply the given taels by the rate; e.g.,

How many dollars in Taels 112.15 @ $1.37?

$112.15 \times 1.37 = $153.64$. Ans.

N.B.—In all cases there must be more dollars than taels; fewer taels than dollars.

In a country where silver is largely used in an uncoined state, and passes from one person to another as the equivalent of so many ounces, it is evident there must be some standard by which to test its quality. In some large centres there is a Valuation Bureau called Kong-ku chüh 公估局, where silver in local use is tested and stamped; its quality in relation to the standard being thus officially certified. This standard of fineness or purity, technically termed 'touch,' is known as ch'eng-seh 成色, 'perfect colour,' owing to the fact that impure silver is detected by (among other things) discolouration. Ch'eng-seh thus expresses the standard quality of pure silver and roughly corresponds to the English 'Par' or 100. The actual quality of silver is stated in relation to this standard, but the manner of stating it is the opposite of the English method. For instance we speak of five out of a hundred as 5 per cent., of two and a half out of a hundred as $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., etc., but the Chinese express the same by stating what is left when the percentage is removed. This obtains in speaking of cash, discount, and percentage; e.g., Silver at 5 per cent; chiu u in-tsi 九五銀子. The ten (shih 十) in such cases is understood, not expressed.

Silver at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent; chiu luh u in-tsi 九六五銀子.

Note that 'a half' is expressed decimally=.5.

This cash is 2 per cent. short; chæ shi chiu pah ch'ien 這是九八錢.

He deducts 3 per cent. ; t'a k'eo san fen ch'ien 他扣三分錢.

No discount is allowed in buying odds and ends ; mai ling-sui tong-hsi muh iu k'eo-t'eo 買零碎東西沒有扣頭.

If an account is reckoned at 20 per cent., a thousand cash only equals 800 ; chao pah cheh suan chang, ih tiao ch'ien ch'i suan pah peh 照八折算賬, 一吊錢只算八百.

In many places money is forwarded from place to place by means of drafts procured at native banks. The percentage charged varies according to circumstances, but whatever the sum total may be it is usually distributed over some or all of the following heads :—

Difference of scale ; hsiao p'ing 小平.

Discount ; k'eo-shui 扣水.

Depreciation of silver ; mao-seh 毛色.

Commission ; huei-shui 匯水 (huei 匯⁴ To converge).

The standard in such cases is the one which prevails in the place where the draft is issued, and it is customary to keep all accounts according to that standard rather than in local currency. If, say, money is sent from Shanghai to Chongking, it is better to keep accounts in Shanghai taels, and enter the local values in a separate column. Care must, however, be taken in converting them from one value to the other. For instance, money sent from Shanghai to Hankow is subject to a percentage, say, of 3 per cent., and in forwarding from there to Chongking a further percentage of say, $3\frac{1}{4}$ (expressed decimally as 3.25) may have to be paid on the draft obtained at the native bank. Let us suppose a cheque for Shanghai Taels 100 is forwarded to Chongking by way of Hankow. At Hankow it realizes @ 3 per cent. Tls. 97. This sum is forwarded to Chongking at the rate of $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent and realizes Chongking Taels 93.85. In converting this amount into Shanghai taels it will not do to calculate it at $6\frac{1}{4}$, owing to the calculation being made on 93.85, as this gives 99.71 only. The true percentage for reconversion is found as follows :—

Chongking taels 93.85 = Shanghai taels 100.

∴ " " 1 = " " $\frac{100}{93.85}$

Hence " " 100 = " " $\frac{100 \times 100}{93.85} = 106.55$. Ans.

The percentage is therefore 6.55. And the true percentage for reconversion between Chongking and Hankow is found by the same process to be not 3.25, but 3.35.

Interest is reckoned by fen 分 or hundredths. Half per cent. interest is expressed by pan 半, half, instead of decimally, as above. The common custom is to reckon by the month, and not, as with us, by the year.

Interest must not be charged above 3 per cent. ; ch'ü li puh-k'o ko san fen 取利不可過三分.

He only wants $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. ; t'a ch'i iao ri fen pan li 他只要二分半利.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES.

1. What is the value of $865.29 in taels, the dollar being at 71? Ans. Tls. 614.36.
2. What is the value in taels of $47.653 if the tael is worth $1.37. Ans. Tls. 34.78.
3. Hankow Tls. 200 = Chongking Tls. 193; what is the percentage for reconversion? Ans. 3.63 per cent.
4. If the tael changes for 1,560 cash, and the dollar is at .71, how many cash should I receive for 36 dollar cents? Ans. 399 cash.
5. What is the value in taels of $97.304, if the dollar is worth Tls. .73? Ans. Tls. 71.0319.
6. A Spanish dollar being worth $1.25 Mexican, what is the value in Mexican dollars of $71.823 Spanish? Ans. $89.78.
7. What is the value in dollars of Tls. 86.29, the dollar being at .735? Ans. $117.40.
8. What is the value in full cash (tsuh-ch'ien 足錢) of 476,345 cash at 95? Ans. 452,528 cash.
9. A person changed Tls. 54.63 of chiu-pah in-tsi 九八銀子 for pure silver; how much did he receive? Ans. Tls. 53.54.
10. How many cash should be obtained for Tls. 865,241, if the tael changed at 1,654 an ounce? and how many cash short would there be in the sum total if the cash used was chiu u 九五? Ans. Amount obtained 1,431,109 cash; amount short 71,555 cash.

17. A cheque for Shanghai Tls. 356.25 is sent to Kai-feng Fu by way of Hankow. It is cashed in Hankow and forwarded by draft obtained from a Chinese bank. When it arrives in Kai-feng Fu it is found to be worth Kai-feng Fu Tls. 323.99, or Hankow Tls 344.67. How much per cent. was charged in Hankow on the Shanghai cheque, how much on the draft, and what is the percentage for reconversion into Shanghai taels? Ans. On Shanghai cheque 3.25 per cent.; on draft 6 per cent.; percentage for reconversion 9.94 per cent.

NOTES.—a. In many places 巡捕 hsün-pu is the common term for 'policeman.' For a policeman to go on and off duty is 上岡 shang-kang and 下岡 hsia-kang.

b. Seh-ch'í 色氣 is also used for 'colour.'

c. Shih 十 and shih-fen 十分 are employed to express percentage; e.g., Eighty per cent. are bad; shih-ko iu pah-ko puh-hao 十個有八個不好.

I understand thirty per cent of what he said; shih-chü o tong-teh san-chü 十句我懂得三句.

The Kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking goodly pearls; t'ien-kueh hao hsiang mai-mai-ren chao hao chu-tsi.

Translate:—When you have done up the bedding go and call a coolie to take it to the jetty. There are four policemen in the street: two at the east end and two at the west end, and there is also another standing at the door of the police station. What are you sad about? I have just heard that my mother is dead. He broke the jug to pieces on purpose; this I saw with my own eyes. He regarded his son like a pearl in the palm of the hand. He hoodwinked his father and went to Peking. If you only give him 500 cash, of course he will not be willing to come; he objects to the wages as being too low. The eldest brother was pretty good, but both the second and third brothers were given to lust, wine and covetousness. Tear up this piece of paper. The two men began to fight and tore their clothes to pieces. He has the face (面) of a man, but the heart of a beast. The lion is the king of beasts. There is any colour you like—there are both red, yellow and white. The Saviour wept over the capital of Judæa because the sins of the people of the city were great. His heart was sad because He knew that in the future they would suffer. Judas (猶大), when he sold Christ, thought he had deceived Him, but as a matter of fact he could not do so. Is it possible to deceive the omniscient God? of course not. Sooner or later men's sins will be made manifest; this is a matter of common knowledge.

READING LESSON XXVII. 七十二第要輯

The Younger Brother I.

小弟受屈

古時候在西邊的猶太國、有個老年人、可算是財主家、有駱駝、驢子、牛、羊、還生了十一個兒子、都從小在家和他同住、專門在鄉下放羊、他到了年紀老邁²又生一個兒子、給他起名叫約瑟⁴、看他正如心上的肉、掌上的明珠一樣、給他做了一件彩色的長褂⁷、在他身上肯費大事、他哥哥們看見、以為他父親是溺愛不明、重看約瑟、輕看他們、因此就恨約瑟、罵約瑟、與他不和、心中又怪父親不公道。更有一件奇事、就是約瑟好做夢、有一回他告訴哥哥們說、我夢見我們在田間割麥子、捆成捆、我的捆起來站着、你們

1. Fang iang 放羊 Look after sheep.2. Lao²-mai² 老邁 Very old.3. Ch'i ming 起名 To name.4. Ioh¹-seh⁴ 約瑟 Joseph.5. Ming chu 明珠 A brilliant gem.6. Ts'ai seh 彩色 Many coloured.7. Ch'ang kua 長褂 A long unlined gown.8. Nih⁴-ai⁴ puh¹ ming² 溺愛不明 To love foolishly ; to shew foolish preference.9. In-ts'z 因此 On this account ; hence.  引³ 誘³ in-iu To entice; to induce.
 平² 安¹ p'ing-an Peace; peaceful.
 指³ 頭² *chi-t'eo*¹ Fingers; toes.

Beginning or Origin.

1. In the examples already given of the use of 本 pen and 本來 pen-lai, the prominent idea is that of a root sending forth branches. 源 üen 原 which is often used for 源 üen, 'A fountain,' in like manner indicates the source from whence events flow or have their rise. Thus, by a natural transition of thought they both denote commencement or starting-point, and usually carry with them the suggestion that so it should be in the nature of the case.

飲水思源 When you drink water think of the fountain—be mindful of the source of your benefits.

The following expressions are in common use in this connection:—

At first; primarily; originally; as a matter of fact; etc.; 原先 üen-hsien; 原來 üen-lai; 起頭 ch'i-t'eo; 從根 ts'ong-ken.

Alternatives expressed by hueh 或.

2. It has already been shewn that an alternative—"either . . . or"—is denoted by placing one sentence over against the other, no words answering to "either . . . or" being needed. In books, however, and in some colloquial forms 或 hueh, either alone, or joined to 者 chæ, A pronoun, or 是 shì is employed as a more formal method of saying the same thing. The beginner should use it sparingly.

Either this way or that; hueh-shì chæ iang hueh-shì na iang 或是這樣或是那樣.

It is not certain whether he can do it or not; hueh-chæ t'a neng ie uei-k'o-chi 或者他能也未可知.

Supplementary: Lessons X-XIII.

3. Ts'ai 纔 is employed to introduce the second half of a conditional statement, and denotes that after certain things are done certain consequences will follow. In this it approximates to chiu 就, but with the difference that while 就 chiu shews the natural order or connection 纔 ts'ai indicates that (a), it is then and not before in temporal sequence; and (b), thus and only thus in moral sequence; e.g.,

Wait until he has finished eating and drinking and then go and eat and drink yourself; teng t'a ch'ih hoh uan-liao, ni ts'ai k'o-i ch'ü ch'ih hoh 等他吃喝完了,你纔可以去吃喝.

I am what I am simply by the grace of God; o hsien-tsai ch'eng-liao ho-teng ren, shì meng Shang-ti tih en ts'ai ch'eng tih 我現在成了何等人,是蒙上帝的恩纔成的.

Sometimes it is preceded by such words as 獨 tuh; 只 chì; etc.; which point out that when people are spoken of, those referred to stand by themselves, or when two classes are spoken of, that one and one only is under consideration; e.g.,

People who are not sick do not need a doctor; sick people only need one; muh iu ping tih ren iong puh choh i-seng; chi iu ping tih ren ts'ai iong teh choh 沒有病的人用不着醫生,只有病的人纔用得着.

Followed by 是 shì or 好 hao and preceded by 這 chæ or 那 na, it places a matter beyond question; e.g.,

This doubtless is the right way to do it; chæ-iang tso ts'ai shì puh ts'o 這樣作纔是不錯.

That is first class! na ts'ai hao ni! 那纔好呢.

Puh-ko 不過 is largely used as a superlative in Southern Mandarin; after verbs it denotes inability; e.g.,

That countryman is exceedingly simple; na-ko hsiang-hsia-ren lao-shih puh-ko 那個鄉下人老實不過.

I cannot overcome him in argument; o shoh puh-ko t'a 我說不過他。

The following characters and combinations are used in addition to 各 koh, for 'each'; 'severally'; etc.:—

每³ mei Each; every.

On the 15th of every month; mei üeh shih-u 每月十五。

逢² feng To meet with; whenever.

Letters are forwarded on the 3rd and 8th; feng san pah fah 逢三八發信。

每逢 mei-feng On every occasion.

To observe Sunday once every seventh day; mei-feng ch'ih tien 每逢七天守禮拜。

各自 koh-tsi Each one severally.

Each went to his own home; koh-tsi kuei chia 各自歸家。

Tu 都 as representing 'all' sums up what goes before; other words expressing totality are 統³ t'ong All; the whole. To govern; to rule.

衆⁴ chong A multitude; the whole of; all. All; the whole; 通統 t'ong-t'ong; 通身 t'ong-shen; 大家 ta-chia; 大眾 ta-chong. Both ta-chia 大家 and ta-chong 大眾 commonly follow pronouns; as,

They all consulted about it; t'a-men ta-chia tu shang-liang 他們大家都商量。

This garment is badly made throughout; chae-chien i-shang 這件衣裳通身做的不好。

Lesson XI.

Different words are used for building. Both 造 tsao and 修 hsiu are used for building a bridge; 造 tsao is employed for building a vessel; 砌 ch'i and 立 lih for a wall, and 修 hsiu for a city wall.

Puh-ru 不如 is the equivalent of, 'Cannot do better than'; e.g.,

The best thing is to go to the yamên and see the official; puh ru shang ia-men chien kuan 不如上衙門見官。

You cannot do better than not go; puh ru puh ch'ü 不如不去。

As an auxiliary 住 chu is not joined to all verbs, but it may be to the following which have already occurred:—

Sheo 守; ting 釘; ch'ih 吃; ch'i 騎; tso 坐; chan 站; k'ao 靠; kuan 管; tui 對; na 拿; t'ieh 貼; ren 忍; hsien 閒; ting 定; chi 止; chi 記; pao 保; tien 點; sheo 受。

Lesson XII.

Li 離 joined to 了 liao is of the same import as 除了 ch'u-liao and 錯了 ts'ò-liao—'Apart from; with the exception of'; e.g.,

Apart from this way of doing it, how can we act? li-liao chae-mo pan, tsen-mo hwei hsing ni? 離了這麼辦, 怎麼會行呢。

Lesson XIII.

The advent of the newspaper has pressed many terms into new moulds and given them fresh applications. If the suggestion bear fruit that the government should issue a Standard Dictionary of

Terms and appoint a body of men corresponding to the French Academy, there may then be some uniformity in the terminology employed to represent new terms introduced with foreign arts and crafts. Meanwhile we must employ such terms as are in common use; some connected with newspapers are as follows:—

Editor-in-chief; tsong chu-pih 總主筆.

Editor; chu-pih 主筆.

Compositors; pai-tsi-tih 擺字的.

Reporters; fang-si ren 訪事人.

Moveable type; hoh tsi pan 活字板.

Newspaper article; luen, or luen-shoh 論 or 論說.

News; hsin-uen 新聞.

Advertisement; kao-peh 告白.

訪³ fang To enquire about.

器⁴ ch' k } i A vessel; a utensil.

登¹ teng To rise. To record.

總³ tsong All. The chief. An emphatic particle.

聞² uen To hear. To smell.

機¹ ch k } i A loom. A machine. An opportunity.

館³ kuan A public office. A tavern; an eating house; etc. A private dwelling.

Newspaper office; pao-kuan 報館.

To insert an article; teng-pao 登報.

Printing machine; in shu chi-ch'i 印書機器.

T'ieh 貼 is used figuratively to attach oneself to a person, and also in the sense of to make good—to pay out to make up a deficiency; e.g.,

To pay out money—as for a loss, etc.; t'ieh ch'ien 貼錢.

To pay the difference in the quality or 'touch' of silver; t'ieh shui 貼水.

To be attached to, as friends or clothing; t'ieh shen 貼身.

Intimate; t'ieh-hsin 貼心.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

He was so scared that his face changed colour; t'a keh teh lien tu pien-liao ien-seh.

To transact public business; pan kong-si.

There's no undoing this; kiai puh k'ai.

There is abundant evidence; iu p'ing iu chü.

Flourishing and declining by turns; ih hsing ih shuai.

I cannot take responsibility; o tso puh teh chu.

This underling was sent by the Prefect; chæ shi chü-fu p'ai tih ch'ai.

I will explain it to you; o k'o-i kiai-shoh chih ni t'ing.

He has changed his mind; t'a pien-liao hsin.

I will go when I have an opportunity; teh chi-huei o chiu ch'ü.

To forget how to write a character when one wants to; t'i pih uang tsi.

The God of peace; ts'i p'ing-an-tih Shang-ti.

Heaven is a glorious place; T'ien-t'ang shi ko iu iong-iao tih ti-fang.

他辦解有一我這我他得提賜天
嚇公不憑興作是可變機筆平堂

NOTES.

Translate:—The branches of the vine can only bring forth fruit; they are useless for anything else. They went according to his commandment and loosed the ass. In the province of Shantung there are a good many vineyards. A yamên is a place for the transaction of public business. My own private affairs are of little importance. This in all probability is a private grudge. At the Court there are prime ministers and statesmen, all managing government business. He took up the basket and went off to the street to buy things. Don't doubt him; he tells the truth; his statements are by no means without proof. I had a dream last night and cannot explain its meaning. That man 章 first enticed him into vicious courses, and afterwards got all his money by false accusations; it really is enough to make an iron man shed tears. He wrote a newspaper article yesterday and sent it to the editor to-day, asking him to insert it in the paper. Reporters go all over the city making enquiries about all sorts of things, and afterwards go to the newspaper office and write them up. The peace which God gives is deeper than the sea; men have this peace after their sins are forgiven. The Lord commanded His disciples to go to the village and unloose the colt of an ass and bring (拉) it to Him. The devil leads people astray to commit sin.

出監見君
約瑟在武官家中、辦事甚是
用心、早起晚睡、見天往前進
步、叫武官看重他、把些大事
託他辦、他既然樣樣辦得十
分好、武官就提拔他、升他做
管家、家中一切的事、沒有一
樣不交在他手中、家人也都
在他手下、武官所有吃穿用
度全不掛心、因約瑟本是最
靠得住的、專心拿他主人的
事當事辦、原先人都看不起
他、以後卻看他是可敬可愛

Inference: Phrases used to express.

1. In deducing a conclusion from a line of argument, we may employ either a word or a phrase. Certain things being so, we infer certain conclusions. Words like 'therefore,' 'whence,' 'since,' etc., generally introduce these conclusions; or we may employ such phrases as, 'In consideration of,' 'This being so,' etc. Chinese colloquial usually prefers this latter style; the single words being more generally employed in books. The following gives some of the phrases in common use, which may be introduced by either chæ 這, or na 那—chæ-iang-k'an-lai 這樣看來; chæ-iang shoh-lai 這樣說來; k'an-chæ-ko-iang-tsi 看這個樣子; e.g.,

始終如一 The same from beginning to end.

Since this is so, the dog is not his; chæ-iang-k'an-lai, keo puh shi t'a-tih 這樣看來, 狗不是他的.

If this be the case we should all love God; chæ-iang-shoh-lai, o-men tu kai-tang ai Shang-ti 這樣說來, 我們都該當愛上帝.

Finally; in conclusion; to sum up; tsong-rì-ien-chi 總而言之.

Looked at from this point of view; ts'ong (or ru) ts'i k'an-lai 從(或如)此看來.

2. One peculiar Chinese construction, to which little more than allusion can here be made, is the stringing together of four characters to form a phrase. Such phrases are very common, and the student is advised to learn them and to use them freely. There are five kinds which we will notice in order:—

1. Repetition of ih 一.

Intercourse; coming and going; ih lai ih uang 一來一往.

Coming and going; ih-lai ih-ch'ü 一來一去.

2. The second character repeated with tih 的 at the end; such phrases are descriptive.

With earnest desire; ien-pa-pa-tih 眼巴巴的.

Perfectly white; peh-seng-seng-tih 白生生的.

3. The first and third, or second and fourth the same, or in correspondence.

Foolish; stupid; hu-li-hu-t'u 糊裏糊塗.

Well intentioned; hao-sin hao-i 好心好意.

4. The first and third opposites, or in correspondence.

Hypocritical; k'eo-shi hsin-fei 口是心非.

Early and late; ch'i tsao shui uan 起早睡晚.

5. Numerical.

Differing in size; ch'ih ta pah hsiao 七大八小.

Neither the one thing nor the other; puh san puh si 不三不四.

Supplementary: Lessons XIV to XVII.

3. Other adverbial numerals in common use are:—

次⁴ ts'i The next in order. A time. A series.

陣⁴ chen A file of soldiers. A battle. A time; a short space.

番¹ fan Foreign. A time; a turn.

Also 遍 pian; 遭 tsao; 場 ch'ang.

Fah 發 may be used with the following words which occur in these Lessons:—

To grow rich; to become wealthy; fah ts'ai 發財.

To become light; to shine; fah liang 發亮.

To become dim of sight; fah hua 發花.

To become vicious; to develop vicious tendencies; fah huai 發壞.

To be sad; melancholy; fah men 發悶.

To become weak; fah ruan 發軟.

To shew hardness ; to become stiff ; fah ing 發硬.

To manifest ; fah hsien 發現.

To become sour ; fah suan 發酸.

To shew mercy ; fah ts'i-pei 發慈悲.

To be proud ; arrogance ; fah chiao-ao 發驕傲. (L. 30.)

To shew stupidity ; to be stupid ; fah hu-t'u 發糊塗.

To be stiff ; fah pan 發板.

To shew authority ; to put on a semblance of anger ; fah wei 威¹

uei Severe ; stern ; 發威.

Feverish ; fah-shao 發燒.

Ch'u 處 may be added to the following words :—

Greatness ; that which is important ; ta-ch'u 大處.

Smallness ; that which is unimportant ; hsiao-ch'u 小處.

Height ; preëminence ; kao-ch'u 高處.

Everywhere ; tao-ch'u 到處.

A meeting-place ; chü-ch'u 聚處.

Bitterness ; suffering ; k'u-ch'u 苦處.

The extremity ; extremes ; chih-ch'u 極處.

An inn ; a low place ; hsia-ch'u 下處.

In the open ; publicly ; ming-ch'u 明處.

In secret ; in the dark ; an-ch'u 暗處.

In every place ; koh-ch'u 各處.

In addition to the characters already given, the following take 人 ren as a suffix :—

Hai 害 ; ch'iu 求 ; iong 用 ; pang-tsu 幫助 ; kan-tong 感動 ; fuh 服 ; lai 賴 ; p'ai 派 ; ai 愛.

Lesson XV.

The word 界 kiai furnishes an interesting illustration of the way in which the Chinese language is being adapted to express foreign ideas. It is now employed to translate 'world' as applied to any special occupation or province, as of knowledge ; etc. ; a distinctive word immediately precedes it ; e.g.,

The commercial world ; shang-kiai 商界.

The official world ; kuan-kiai 官界.

The world of learning ; hsieh-kiai 學界.

Lesson XVI.

Another word which forms the passive is 挨 ai, iai. To delay. Side by side. Near ; next. This is most commonly used in connection with suffering or anything undesirable ; e.g.,

To suffer from cold ; ai leng sheo tong 挨冷受凍.

To be cursed and beaten ; ai ma ai ta 挨罵挨打.

Lesson XVII.

Other words to express lack of relation or interest are:—

任⁴ ren To allow; to tolerate. An official position.

拘¹ chü; kü To grasp. To adhere to, as an opinion.

As you like; no matter; etc.; ren-p'ing 任憑; chì-kuan 只管;
puh-chü 不拘; puh-kuan 不管; e.g.,

Not matter who it is, he must act reasonably; puh chü ho ren, iao chao li hsing sì 不拘何人, 要照理行事.

Merely attend to matters of present interest; hsien-chin chì kuan hsien-chin sì 現今只管現今事.

Further meanings and uses of 當 tang are as follows:—

1. In the presence of; e.g.,

To confess his sin in the presence of all; tang chong-ren mien-ch'ien ren tsui 當衆人面前認罪.

2. To bear; to endure; e.g.,

My punishment is greater than I can bear; o-tih tsui t'ai chong, tan-tang puh ch'i 我的罪太重, 擔當不起.

Unable to bear responsibility; unworthy—used in self-depreciation; puh kan-tang 不敢當.

I cannot bear such a heavy burden; chæ-mo chong tih tan-tsi o tang puh ch'i 這麼重的擔子我當不起.

Mien 面 is also employed to denote social status; reputation; etc.; e.g.,

He has a great reputation—for managing affairs; t'a hen iu mien-tsi 他很有面子.

Let him off for my sake; k'an o-tih poh mien rao-shu t'a pa 看我的薄面饒恕他罷.

Shameless; mien-p'í heo 面皮厚.

NOTES.—a. In the North 葦子 uei-tsi is used for 'reeds.'

b. Chiao 焦 is used as a superlative before some words; e.g., Very dry; chiao-kan 焦乾. Curiously enough, in the West it is used before 'wet,' as, Very wet; chiao shih 焦濕.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句雜

Evil reports circulate everywhere; tao-ch'u tsao iao-ien.

The money was just enough; ch'ien Chiang- Chiang-tih keo liao.

I do not accept this principle; o puh fuh chæ-ko li.

Without cause or reason; u üen u ku.

That child is impatient of restraint; na-ko hai-tsi puh fuh kuan.

Keep it here; liu tsai chæ-li.

If you are unwilling, there's an end of it; puh üen-i chiu la-tao.

You speak Mandarin very clearly; ni shoh kuan-hua hen ch'ing-ts'u.

He doesn't see through my meaning; t'a k'an puh t'eo o-tih i-si.

The wheat is overripe; meh-tsi shai chiao-liao.

It is not easy to be a pastor; tang muh-si puh iong-i.

Hell is a place of suffering; ti-ih shi sheo k'u tih ti-fang.

NOTES.

*Translate:—*Some reeds grow by the river side and some by the side of lakes. Animals are fat in the winter and lean in the summer. There is an abundant harvest this year. Light is just breaking in the east. Men do evil in secret, and are recompensed in public. This piece of bread is too hard; there is no swallowing it. Before he went abroad he was a poor man; he has now come back very wealthy. The Customs will not let goods go aboard till they have examined them. What he said two days ago has truly come to pass. Detain him to a meal. No matter (不管) how much ability he has, I don't want him here to serve me. He suddenly got into a rage and turned and went away. Although he is over seventy years old, he is still vigorous. When the wind blows, the grass moves. They went three times in succession, and in the end did not meet the Yamen underling. No matter whether the disciples of Christ are rich or poor, they all have the hope of heaven in their hearts, and sooner or later will all get Home. When a man goes to hell, he can never come out; although his friends engage all the Buddhist and Taoist priests in the world to chant prayers for him, it is useless. Men need not spend any money to gain the hope of heaven; God gives it to men freely.

The Younger Brother III.

逢凶化吉

約瑟到了皇宮、見了皇上、
皇上對他、說我聽人說、你
一聽見夢、馬上就會解、約
瑟說、不敢當、並非我有這
本事、是上帝定要給皇上
有平安的講解、只請皇上
說罷。皇上便說、我夢見七
隻肥牛站在河邊吃草、又
有七隻瘦牛極其醜看、隨
着上來、把那七隻肥牛吞
了、吞了之後、還是看不出
肥來、仍是乾瘦、我就醒了、

1. Chiang-chiai 講解 Explanation.

2. Ch'eo¹-k'an⁴ 醜看 Ugly; evil-looking.

又夢見一棵麥子，長了七個穗子，又飽滿¹，又肥美²，隨後又長了七個穗子，很淡薄³，被東風吹焦了⁴，這些淡薄的穗子，吞了那七個肥美的穗子，我將這夢告訴衆宰相臣子，他們都不能解。約瑟說，兩個夢總歸爲一，上帝將要行的事已經指示皇上知道了。七隻肥牛是七個豐年⁵，七個肥美的穗子也是七個豐年，那七隻瘦牛是七個荒年，七個淡薄的穗子也是七個荒年。埃及徧地必先有七個大豐年，以後必有七個大荒年，叫人地兩苦⁹，甚至忘記了起先的豐年。皇上做的這兩個夢，其中有定准的意思¹¹，必要應驗，所以據我的愚見，皇上不如揀一個有聰明能辦事的官，派他在這七個豐年之中，走徧埃及通國¹³，在各府州縣積收莊稼中五分之一¹⁵，積在倉裏，預備將要來的七個大荒年，這樣可以救一國人的命。皇上聽了這一番話說解的

1. Pao-man 飽滿 Full.

2. Fei-mei 肥美 In good condition.

3. Tan⁴ poh² 淡薄 Poor; indifferent.

4. Chiao 焦 Dried up by the wind.

5. Kuei uei ih 歸爲一 Both in the same category.

6. Chiang-iao 將要 About to; on the point of.

7. Chi-shi 指示 To point out; to indicate.

8. Feng¹ nien² 豐年 Plenteous years.

9. Ren ti liang¹ k'ui 人地兩苦 Both the land and men will suffer.

10. Shen-chi 甚至 So that. L. 30.

11. Ting⁴ chuen² 定准 Certain; assured.

12. Chü⁴ o²-lih¹ ü² chien⁴ 據我的愚見 In my humble opinion.

13. T'ong¹-kueh² 通國 The whole kingdom.

14. Chih¹-sheo¹ 積收 To store up.

15. U fen chi¹ i 五分之一 One-fifth. In any fractional statement the number before fen 分 may be regarded as the denominator; the number following chi 之 as the numerator; as above 五分之一 or 1 fen of 5 fen, or $\frac{1}{5}$. Any fractional number can be expressed in this way.

16. Ch'eh ih-fan hua 這一番話 This speech.

好，又對臣子說，像這樣的聰明人，真正難得，何不派他去管這些事呢？就轉過來對約瑟說，神既然賜你這聰明，我現今封你做宰相，管本國的百姓。話一說完，就摘下戒指，戴在約瑟的指頭上，又給他換上一套官衣，又把金鍊子戴在他頸項上，叫人跪下拜他，就派他管理全地了。約瑟領了命出去，在各到各處，趁着七個豐年，收了無數的糧，積在各處的倉裏頭，真比海沙更多了。以後皇上越發看重他，叫他娶了一個大德的女子爲妻，給他生了兩個兒子，叫他享多大的福氣，得多大的榮耀。要是和他先前在哥哥們和販子與武官夫人手裏所受的苦比起來，真是有天淵之別了。轉禍爲福，地獄變了一個小天堂，使人可以知道上帝早晚總肯給服事他的人開一條出路。不過先要試煉他們的德行，然後纔成全他們今生來生的事。

1. *Feng*¹ 封 To appoint to office.

2. *Tseh*⁴ 摘 To take off—of a ring, hat or spectacles.

3. *Ih*¹ *t'ao*⁴ *kuan*¹ *i*¹ 一套官衣 A complete outfit of official dress.

14. *Teh*² *hsing*⁴ 德行 Virtue.

15. Ch'eng-ch'üen 成全 To complete; to bring to perfection.

約瑟¹憑良心辦事、不隨壞人的引誘、顯出一片²誠心、正是真金³不怕火煉。過了那七個豐年、荒年就來到、旱的是天如銅、地如鐵、耕地無用、撒種不發、就是菜園、葡萄園、若離河邊遠些的、也都晒焦了、叫通國變成一片荒地。埃及四圍的國、也都是這樣、若不是約瑟⁴先把夢解的好、埃及國也要和這些國受一樣的⁵大苦。頭兩三年還罷了、有錢的還可以糴糧、但日後只得往埃及國去糴、因早已聽見有個能人把一國救活了。當時約瑟的老父親和他的哥哥們還在猶太國、那裏也是乾荒⁶、他們過日子也很艱難⁷、只因聽見在埃及那裏有糧可糴、他父親就叫他哥哥們備驢⁹預備銀子、趕緊下去糴¹⁰、免得他們全家餓死、哥哥們就把家事安排妥當¹¹、辭別了老人家、動身往南方去了、也是從約瑟早年經過的路走。要知道他們在埃及國遭遇何事、怎照約瑟起先做的夢行、看下課就曉得了。

1. P'ing⁴ liang²-hsin¹ 憑良心 To act conscientiously.

2. ih-p'ien ch'eng² hsín 一片誠心 A true or faithful heart.

3. Chen chin puh p'a ho lien 真金不怕火煉 Genuine metals are not afraid of being tested by fire.

Ning-k'o 寧 可 and its Correlatives.

1. Where in English we should say 'It is better to die than to sin,' Chinese would say 'It is better to die and not to sin'—expressing 'than' by a negative, 'not.' Ning-k'o 寧 可 or k'en 肯 is the equivalent of 'It is better to. . .'; or 'Rather than . . .'; they precede one or other of the following expressions:—puh 不; ie-puh 也不; puh-k'ò 不可; puh-k'en 不肯; e.g.,

從來好事必經多磨 Never was a good work done without much trouble.

Rather die than steal; ning-k'ò sì puh tso tseh 寧可死不做賊.

Better to recompense kindness than to be unthankful for it; ning k'ò pao en puh k'ò uang-en-fu-i 寧可報恩不可忘恩負義.

It is better to be cursed and beaten than to lie; ning-k'ò ai ma sheo ta, puh k'ò sah-huang 寧可挨罵受打, 不可撒謊.

Rather endure persecution than follow depraved courses; ning-k'ò sheo pih-p'eh puh k'ò hsing hsie-lu 寧可受逼迫不可行邪路.

Sequence, as expressed by shen-ch'ì 甚至 and ch'ì-ü 至於.

2. Shen-ch'ì 甚至 is employed to denote logical sequence—matters have reached the point at which some results are to be manifested. Ch'ì-ü 至於 is used in a similar way; or as a prepositional phrase introducing a subject; e.g.,

His sickness is not unto death; t'a-tih ping puh ch'ì-ü sì 他的病不至於死.

The two men quarrelled till they began to fight; liang-ko ren ch'ao-nao, shen-ch'ì ta ch'ì chia lai 兩個人吵鬧, 甚至打起架來.

Supplementary: Lessons XVIII to XX.

3. While 若 roh and 要 iao are the words most commonly used to express supposition, there are others which are constantly used in books and in the conversation of educated people. They furnish the same variety as such English words as 'supposing'; 'provided that'; 'in the event of'; etc., but context and usage must determine the translation:—

If; in the case of; granting; etc.; *t'ang*³ 倘; t'ang-roh 倘若; sheh-roh 設若; chia-roh 假若.

Tao 倒 is often strengthened by the addition of fan 反, which in some districts precedes it, in others follows it. Another adversative particle in books and in a high style of talk is 乃³ nai. But; if; namely. Joined to 是 shì it is often used as a correlative of 不是 puh-shì; e.g.,

It is not the scholar, but the teacher that is bad; puh shì hsioh-seng puh-hao, nai-shì hsien-seng puh-hao 不是學生不好, 乃是先生不好.

Do not seek your own profit, but the profit of others; fei ch'iu li ch'ì, nai ch'iu li ren 非求利己, 乃求利人.

In addition to 必 pih, the following words and combinations are employed to express 'necessity':—

務⁴ u To devote attention to. Duty; business. Must.

須¹ hsü Necessary; must.

Must; it is necessary to; etc.; 務必 u-pih; 務要 u-iao; 總 tsong; 總要 tsong-iao; 總得 tsong-teh; 必須 pih-hsü.

Men must practise goodness; ren u-iao hsing-shan 人務要行善.

He will surely return; t'a tsong-teh iao hwei-lai 他總得要回來.

Ch'a 差 is a word round which gather many expressions denoting approximation, such as 'nearly'; 'almost'; etc. The following list includes those most commonly in use:—

A little different; not quite the thing; ch'a ih-tien 差一點.

Nearly right; almost the thing; ch'a-puh-to or ch'a-puh-li 差不多 or 差不離.

Quite beside the mark; Widely different; ch'a teh-to 差得多 or ch'a teh-üen 差得遠.

Just a little out; Not much beside the mark; ch'a, ie ch'a puh-to 差也差不多.

Ch'ioh 卻 forms part of a few phrases which introduce something additional, generally in the way of protest, or taking exception to something already stated. In the North it is colloquially pronounced k'eh, and some teachers write 可 k'o for it, but it is probably 卻 ch'ioh read as k'eh; e.g.,

But there is something else .; ch'ioh iu ih-chien 卻有一件.

Lesson XIX.

Other phrases of similar import to 大概 ta-kai; 上下 shang-hsia; etc., are 大約 ta-ioh; 約有 ioh-iu; 光景 kuang-ching; 將近 chiang-chin; 前後 ch'ien-heo; as,

About three years ago; tsao san nien tih kuang-ching 早三年的光景.

Nearly 6,000 people; ioh iu luh ch'ien ren 約有六千人.

He is nearly fifty years old; t'a chiang-chin u-shih sui 他將近五十歲.

Lesson XX.

Two other interrogatives besides 豈 ch'i are in constant use, viz., 焉 ien and 難道 nan-tao. Ien 焉 while used largely in books is not infrequent in colloquial. Nan-tao 難道 is more common in the North than in the South, and is frequently followed by 不成 puh-ch'eng, which takes the place of 麼 mo or 呢 ni, used after 豈 ch'i, and conveys the idea of 'expostulation' or 'remonstrance'; e.g.,

How can such things be possible? ien neng iu chae iang tih si ni? 焉能有這樣的事呢.

If he should make a mistake in reading, can it be that it shall not be pointed out to him? nan-tao t'a nien ts'o-liao chin puh ch'ichiao t'a mo? 難道他念錯了就不指教他麼.

Sequence of events as well as of time is frequently shewn by repetition; e.g.,

Kill each one as he comes; lai ih-ko shah ih-ko 來一個殺一個.

Use sentences as you learn them; hsioh ih-chü iong ih-chü 學一句用一句.

Send the sheets away as they are printed; in chi-chang fah chi chang 印幾張發幾張.

MISCELLANEOUS EXAMPLES. 句 雜

Tientsin is a place where many people gather together; T'ien-chin shi ko ta chu-ch'u.

The thief stole my watch; na-ko tseh t'eo-liao o-tih piao.

Ten in a row; ih-p'ai shih-ko.

To injure others and benefit oneself; suen ren li chi.

This colour does not match; chæ-ko puh p'ei (or tui) seh.

He told the matter in detail; t'a pa si-ch'ing ch'iang-hsi shoh-liao ih-pren.

I cannot guess your meaning; o ts'ai puh choh ni-tih i-si.

They met together every Sunday at 10 o'clock; t'a-men mei-feng li-pai-t'ien shih tien chong chü-huei.

The Ten Commandments were given by God; shih-t'iao-kiai shi Shang-ti ch'uan hsia lai tih.

We should worship God with all reverence; o-men kai kong-kong-ching-ching-tih pai Shang-ti.

The Saviour is willing to forgive all our offences; Chiu-chu üen-si shæ-mnen o-men ih-ch'ieh tih ko-fan.

Translate:—I spent a good deal of money and trouble over him, and in the end he spoke ill of me; was not this ungrateful? May I trouble you to take (捎) this letter to my home? He is a respectable person, and he has also grown up good-looking. A thief came last night and stole a pair of trousers and a coat; I got up and followed him, but did not overtake him. If a man acts conscientiously it is unavoidable that he will be persecuted. Don't speak in too low a voice, I can't hear what you say. Two men came as witnesses, but their witness did not agree. Everybody dislikes a person who exhibits pride; it is the same principle both in China and abroad. That child answered his father altogether too rudely. This is a matter that concerns you. This affair was arranged by one of his relatives. Sooner or later the Saviour will return, and all men must assemble before Him. He is loth that any should not be saved; therefore He exhorts men to repent, believe and trust in Him. Whenever a man repents and believes, he is saved. Should we not all repent and trust Him? God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him, might not perish but have eternal life.

READING LESSON XXX. 課十三第要輯

The Younger Brother IV.

兄弟受驚

埃及國糶糧的章程是要凡外路來糶糧的，都上約瑟那裏去糶，所以哥哥們到了京城就去見他，一見就跪下給他磕頭，隔了十幾年，那裏還認識他呢。他既是穿一身的官衣，就是他的親母親也認不到了，卻有一樣就是約瑟認識他們，故意發威問他們是那裏來的，有弟兄幾個，父親還在不在，又說你們並不係好人。他們回答說，有一個小兄弟留在家中，因為父親不准帶來，約瑟說，這話是真的，是假的，也未可知，我總要留下你們內中的一個人，其餘的可以回家去，把小兄弟帶來為憑據。約瑟就吩咐人把他們的口袋裝滿了糧，再加上路上用的糧，又把原銀仍放在口袋中，對哥哥們說，你們快去把小兄弟送來做見證，他們聽見這話，就良心發現，彼此說，遭罪了，這是我

1. K'oh¹ t'eo² 磕頭 To knock the head on the ground; the kow-tow.

2. Ch'in mu-ch'in 親母親 His own mother.

3. Ch'ioh iu ih iang 卻有一樣 But there was one thing.

READING LESSON XXXa. 課十三第要輯次

The Younger Brother V.

一堂共樂

老三說、小的¹初次來時、大人就問、你們有父親、有弟兄沒有、小的說、有、老父親還在、小兄弟常在他身旁、離不開、大人就吩咐把小兄弟一同帶來、除非同來不得見大人的面。我們回到家中就將這話告訴老父親、他卻不准小兄弟來、說他母親早死了、他胞兄³也被野獸撕碎了、只還撇下他一個人、倘若他再遭了害、我就必然⁵悲悲慘慘的下陰間去了、死⁷也不肯叫他去、但以後大家被饑荒所逼、無法度日、只得商¹⁰妥¹¹讓他和我們一同下來、現今他若不跟我們回去、父親的一條老命算送了、他要悲悲傷傷的下陰間去、就是小的、既然做保、不但無臉見父親、還要永遠擔罪、因此求大人開¹⁴

1. Hsiao tih 小的 'The small one'—a depreciatory term used in addressing superiors.

2. Ts'u ts'ü 初次 On the first occasion.

3. Pao¹ hsiong⁴ 胞兄 Brother by the same mother.

4. P'ieh¹-hsia⁴ 撇下 To leave; to forsake.

5. Pei¹ pei¹ ts'an³ ts'an³ tih¹ 悲悲慘慘的 Mournfully.

6. In¹-chien¹ 陰間 The nether world; the world of darkness.

7. Sì ie puh k'en chiao t'a ch'ü 死也不肯叫他去 He would die before he would let him go.

8. Pei⁴ chi¹-huang¹ so³ pih¹ 被饑荒所逼 Were compelled by the famine.

9. Tu⁴ rih⁴ 度日 To pass the days; to live.

10. Shang t'o 商妥 To come to a satisfactory understanding.

11. Rang⁴ 讓 To suffer; to allow.

12. Pei pei shang shang tih 悲悲傷傷的 Grieved in spirit.

13. Iong-üen tan tsui 永遠擔罪 Bear the blame for ever.

14. K'ai en 開恩 To shew favour; to be gracious.

恩給小的點薄面子，放他與我們同回家去，我們總不忘記大人的好處，並且也要給大人傳名。老三把這一番話說完，真叫約瑟動心，就吩咐差人都退去，對哥哥們說，我就是約瑟你們的兄弟，你們還不認識我麼？哥哥們聽見這話，便嚇掉了魂，臉上發紅，渾身發抖，怕的是約瑟要立時報早年的仇。不料約瑟倒說，謀事在人，成事在天，起先我到埃及來，是上帝打發我來的，要救活這一國的人，你們快回去罷，告訴老父親說，約瑟還在，並且在埃及做宰相，請快來一同享福。話一說完，就抱着哥哥們的頸項，大家都哭了一場，隨後送他們銀子、糧食，和幾套好衣裳，還套上了幾輛車，叫他們坐車回去，又另外預備些厚禮，叫驢子一駄一駄的，給老父親，又囑咐哥哥們一句話說，路上不可爭鬧，就打發他們走了。到了家，父親看見禮物，又看見車馬，聽了他們的回報，就

1. Chih hsiao-tih tien poh mien tsi 給小的點薄面子 Suffer me not to be put to shame.

2. Puh uang-chi . . . hao-ch'u 不忘記 . . . 好處 We will not forget the benefits—conferred by you.

3. Ch'uan ming 傳名 To spread abroad the fame of.

4. Tong hsin 動心 To be moved.

5. Heh tiaò liaò huen 嚇掉了魂 Scared out of their wits.

6. Huen¹ shen¹ 渾身 The whole body.

7. Fah² teo³ 發抖 To tremble.

8. Pao⁴ . . . ch'eo² 報 . . . 仇 To avenge.

9. Meo³ si tsai ren, ch'eng si tsai t'ien 謀事在人，成事在天 Man proposes, Heaven disposes.

10. Pao³ 抱 To embrace.

11. T'ao⁴ 套 To harness.

12. Heo li 厚禮 A substantial present.

13. Chuh²-fu⁴ 囑咐 To charge.

14. Tseng¹-nao⁴ 爭鬧 To quarrel.

15. Huei pao 回報 'Return message'—report.

一面喜歡、一面希奇、說罷了罷了、約瑟還在、這真是天上掉下來的福氣、是意外的好處。以後他一家的人、連牛、羊、牲口、小孩子、和所有的傢伙、一齊都向埃及國搬運、約瑟也坐車出到境界、來迎接、見了父親行禮、父親看見兒子、兩下喜的是鼻酸淚下、又哭又笑、父親說、感謝上帝莫大的恩典、使我再見你的面、如今我死也甘心。後來蒙皇上的大恩、派他們都住在多有青草的縣分之內、叫他們在那裏可以放羊、使他們男女老少、都享太平的福。這以上的事、說的很略、因為話長紙短、若要知詳細、請看舊約書頭一卷、從第三十七章起、到第五十章為止。卻有一樣、就是世事據人看、雖是好像一盤棋、或是好像一團麻、誰也摸不着頭緒、到底還是上帝做主、半點不由人、因上帝是無所不知、未來的事也沒有不知道的、早已爲信服他的人把一切的事安排妥當、叫凡事與愛他的人有益、人所論不定的

1. T'ien shang tiao hsia lai tih 天上掉下來的 Unexpected.
2. I nai 意外 Beyond thought.
3. Ching⁴-kiai⁴ 境界 The boundary; the border.
4. Ing²-chieh¹ 迎接 To welcome; to meet.
5. Hsing li 行禮 Saluted; observed the appropriate ceremonies.
6. Pi⁴ suan¹ lui⁴ hsia⁴ 鼻酸淚下 Snivelled and wept.
7. Moh ta tih en-tien 莫大的恩典 Exceeding great grace.
8. Ch'ing¹ ts'ao³ 青草 Green grass; pasture.
9. Hsien-fen 縣分 A District.
10. Chüen⁴ 卷 A book; a document.
11. Ih¹ p'an² ch'i² 一盤棋 A game of chess.
12. Ih¹ l'uan² ma² 一團麻 A ball of hemp.
13. T'eo²-hsü⁴ 頭緒 A clue.
14. Pan tien puh in² ren 半點不由人 Nothing whatever is left to man.

禍福都在他手中、正像父母在孩子還小、早爲他們打算、叫他們長成人、得享雙親¹、早預備的好處。這樣看來、人因信靠救主、得稱爲天父的兒女、就得全能的大神爲父、他們一生一世的事、都蒙他爲他們辦的一點不差、使他們行完了今生的路程、就可以得到那無災無病的美地、享那享不盡的永福、這豈不是極好麼。

1. Shuang ch'in 雙親 Parents.

2. *Lu' ch'eng*² 路程 Journey; road.

3. Utsai u ping 無災無病; Free from calamity and sickness.

2. Give sound, tone and meaning to the following characters :—

持 島 矮 擔 舍 違 偏 牢 講 撕 岡 碎 仇 派 指 積 肥 驗
透 焦 改 配 追 損 捐 梢 搜 瘦 賠 倍.

3. Write the following in Chinese character :—These two books are not very heavy. Put this food here for them to eat; it is nearly enough for three people. This is much larger than that; I knew that as soon as I looked at it. You do as I tell you, and it will be just right. It is easy to write, but not easy to talk. His mother came back last year on the 3rd of the 4th month. When did he bring these two newspapers? I do not know; go and ask him. I told him to go three times, but he was unwilling to do so. Since this place is bad, why not go to a higher place? Speak a little slower and I shall understand. They all walked two stages, and could walk no farther; so they stayed in the house of Mr. 萬. They all scattered—some went to the east, others to the west. This ten-cent piece is only half as heavy as that twenty-cent piece. The man who sells tea is an unreasonable fellow; he broke my brother's head open. His friends are many, but he has not much money. This was made to order. It has fallen to the bottom; go and fetch it for me. It is unimportant whether you do it or not. Men have sin, but God has grace. Alter this for me; it is too light. The man who sits at the door opposite is like one of the ancients; go across and invite him to come over here. It is easy to understand the meaning of this book, but difficult to act according to what it says. All in good time; ask your teacher to explain it to you a sentence at a time, and then you will understand all kinds of expressions.

禱告文

大慈大悲的天父上帝、我們這些罪人、奉靠救主的尊名、來到父的台前求恩、求父看主的功勞、悅納我們、開恩憐憫我們、因為我們的罪極其衆多、該做的並沒去做、不該做的偏要去做、真叫我們在至聖至潔的主面前抱愧、不敢抬頭、只得懇求主不照我們的罪待我們、照父的慈愛、大施恩典、饒恕我們一切的不義、使我們因信救主的話、靠他的大功、就可以蒙恩得救。感謝天父、因為疼愛我們到了極處、打發救主來替我們受苦、擔當我們的罪、在十字架上、捨命流血、又感謝天父、因他已經復活了、坐在父的右邊、執掌天上一切的權柄、能搭救我們、能引導我們走天路、又能把我們救到底、永遠不離開我們、永遠不拋撇我們。現在求主賜力量給我們、叫我們隨時隨地遵主的旨意行事、叫我們遠離一切的惡行、作事對得住人、又對得住神、凡事不虧良心、使人因見我們的好行為、就把榮耀歸在主的名下、又求主叫我們誠心事奉你、使你的國興旺、魔鬼的國衰敗、叫無數的人脫了魔鬼的手、成了天父的兒女、求主准我們的禱告、求錯的饒恕我們、求不到的添補給我們、因為我們所求所謝、都是奉靠救主的尊名、阿們。

叙談真道

門口來了客。請他到客房。倒兩碗茶來。請坐。貴姓。不敢。沒有領教。豈敢。敝姓鮑。不敢。敝姓張。府上在那裏。安慶府。啊。首府。豈敢。請教貴國是那一個。敝國英國。貴庚。空長三十三歲。幾位令郎。四個蠢兒。先生有德。恭喜你。在我們這裏有幾年。不久。只有十幾年。啊。說話同我們一樣。那兒的話。中國土俗人情。一大半不懂。好說。先生在這裏有甚麼公幹。託福。在這裏教學。我們這裏沒有來過嗎。沒有來過。我們教中的書閣下見過沒有。見過。也曾看過幾本。啊。你這帶的是甚麼書。就是你們教中的一本書。巧得很。是怎麼得的。是我一個朋友買的。又轉送給我的。很好。先生看得怎麼樣。好還好。但有好些難明白的地方。不錯。彷彿海有淺有深的地方。請茶。以後叙談。叙談。貴教的書常有上帝兩個字。請教這是指那一位說的。上帝兩個字是指一位真神說的。就是掌管天地的大主宰。啊。就是我們這裏說的玉皇大帝麼。並不是玉皇。因為玉皇是。人生在漢朝。姓張。名儀。這麼說。這位上帝到底是那一位呢。他就是造化天地萬物的大主宰。比人在先。無始無終。無所不能。無所不在。無所不知的真神。開天闢地。不是盤古麼。說到盤古。乃是渺茫無稽之談。況且出乎情理之外。他是個人。

人不說不知。木不鑽不透。 If men are not informed they do not know, if wood is not bored it is not pierced through.

焉能造日月星辰、山川草木、和天地人三才呢。豈不是有一位神在三才之上嗎。是的。這句話在理。但這位神造出許多東西是怎麼造法呢。他比不得人。先要備辦材料。他只說一句話。東西就有了。只用六天的工夫把一切造成。造成東西以後呢。末了造出兩個人來。是一男一女。他現在做甚麼功夫呢。如今他保護萬人。賜下各樣的好處給他們。叫四季一點不錯亂。如三字經上說。曰春夏。曰秋冬。此四時。運不窮。先生說。賜他們好處。怎見得呢。就是下雨。颳風。出太陽。曬熟了五穀。叫東西生長。叫人有吃的。有穿的。這不是大好處嗎。下雨不是龍王管的事麼。不是的。龍王也是人捏造的一個鬼神。有好年成。不是土地菩薩作主麼。並非菩薩能管的事。難道泥塑木雕的偶像能幫人的忙。救人的苦。管人的生死嗎。明明是虛假的事。這位神只有一個稱呼麼。不只一個。有好幾個。就是真神。天主。天父。還有耶和華三個字。爲甚麼叫真神。因爲人所稱呼的神是假的。所以添個真字好分別出來。何以叫天主呢。要指明他爲掌管天地的大主宰。講到天父兩個字。這也是要表明他爲天下人的大父親。這個好明白。惟有耶和華三個字。我實在不懂。那怪不得。這三個字是外國的土音。繙出中國的話來。就是自然而有的意思。啊。這明白了。這不過畧畧的述說這位神的來歷。若要說盡他的作爲。能幹。就是一輩子也說不完。這自然。像這位大神豈不是先生可愛可敬的嗎。是。這不用說。但是還有許多的奧妙。我還懂不到。請說給我聽。看你

們貴教中的書、常有靈魂兩個字、請教這是怎麼解說。靈魂是人人都有、就是上帝造人的時候所賜的人。不是有三魂七魄麼。非也。只有一個靈魂、一個身體纔成了人。啊、靈魂身體相連。不錯。但是這樣、身體要死、靈魂是不得死的。這奇怪、豈不是身體死了、靈魂就沒有了嗎。並不是、若身體死、靈魂也死、人不是和飛禽走獸一樣麼。但骨肉腐爛、靈魂不消散嗎。不得消散、必永遠活着。若永遠活着、到底要在那裏活着呢。或在天堂、或在地獄。在那裏做甚麼事。憑今生所作的、或享福、或受罪。這事情怎麼可以曉得呢。原來有書為憑、我們書上很講究這些事、就是貴國的人雖然說消散的話、到底也信服靈魂常活着。怎見得呢。因為貴國的人、年年上墳祭祖先、又守孤魂節、放河燈、請和尚、道士、念經、超度、輪迴等事。這話是不錯。天下的人不論是那國、都深深的相信靈魂不得死、也不得消散。靈魂可比燈籠的蠟燭、燈籠沒有蠟燭、不過是個空燈籠就是了。又彷彿雀鳥在雀籠一樣、雀鳥一飛、也不過是個空籠而已。這樣看來、靈魂好比身體的光、能看見、說話、辦事、都可以以靈魂為主麼。是的。先生說的很對、一點不差、或是可比君王住在深宮、臣子宰相、辦理國政、都是聽他的吩咐去辦。是的。領教領教。救靈魂上天堂只有一位、就是我們書上常說的那位耶穌。耶穌是那一個。他是上帝的兒子。上帝有家眷麼。不是的。這不過是借着人倫比天上的事、最親的就是父子、而且有一個同體的意思在裏頭。父不比子大麼。在人看來是

這樣，但是天上的事總比不全。耶穌兩個字是怎麼解說呢。憑不得字面講，耶穌兩個字是外國口音，繙出中國的話來，就是救世主。啊，勸人爲善，同我們孔聖人一樣。不一樣，他來要救人，不是來勸世。不錯，我也聽見人說，他本來在我們中國傳教，後來碰見孔子，他就走到西方，叫孔子勸東方，他去勸西方。噯呀，告訴先生那句話的人大錯了。耶穌早一千八百多年前，從天上降下來，住在西方的一個國，名叫猶太國，你們以他爲聖人就是了。不是的，他比聖人兩樣，他有神性，也有人性，一面爲神，一面爲人。同我們這裏的神仙不差甚麼，或者是皇帝所封的神麼。也不是的，皇帝所封的神不過是古時的仁人君子，耶穌比他們都在先。先生不是纔說他早一千八百多年纔有嗎？這是說他降生的時候，他還沒有降生以先，在天上，他怎麼降世呢？他成了人身，披了肉體，被一個閨女所生，這閨女的名字叫馬利亞。他在那裏長大呢？在一個小村子，名叫拿撒勒。他怎樣過日子，靠甚麼吃飯呢？他學手藝，當木匠，造一切的木器，就是棹子、椅子、板櫈、門、窗戶，這些東西，不是苦寒麼？真苦寒，他一輩子也是做個窮人。他當木匠到底麼？不是的，一到三十歲他就出門在外，周游四方，傳道，做好事。他傳的是甚麼道，做的是甚麼好事呢？他所傳的道理都包在一個字之內。這希奇，請教是那一個字呢？就是個愛字。怎麼樣？他說，人最要緊的本分，是要一面盡心，盡力，盡意，愛上帝，也要一面愛人如己。愛上帝是甚麼愛法呢？要保守他一切的誠命。要

保守他甚麼誡命呢。就是他的十條誡，我可以講給先生聽。第一條是這樣說，除了我以外，你不可敬奉別的上帝。第二條說，你不可爲自己製作甚麼偶像，甚麼形像，彷彿上天、下地、地底下、水中的萬物，不可跪拜那些像，也不可事奉他，因爲我耶和華你的上帝，是忌邪的上帝，怨恨我的，我必罰他的罪，以及子孫到三四代，敬愛我的，遵守我誡命的，我賜恩給他，直到千代。第三條說，你不可妄稱你上帝耶和華的名，因爲妄稱耶和華名的，耶和華必不以他爲無罪。第四條說，你當記念安息日，守爲聖日，六日之內，可以勤勞，辦理你的一切事務，第七日是你上帝耶和華的安息日，這一日，你和你的兒女、僕婢、牲畜，並住在你城裏客旅，無論何工都不可作，因爲六日之內，耶和華創造天地、海，和其中的萬物，到第七日，便安息，所以耶和華降福給安息日，定爲聖日。第五條說，你當孝敬父母，使你可以在你上帝耶和華所賜的地方長久居住。第六條說，不可殺人。第七條說，不可姦淫。第八條說，不可偷竊。第九條說，不可作假見證陷害人。第十條說，不可貪慕人的房屋，不可貪慕人的妻子，和他的僕婢、牛、驢，並他一切所有的。噯呀，守全這些誡命真難，怕沒有人守過罷。除了耶穌以外，沒有人守過。不守，怕上帝不愛麼？他還是愛我們，因爲他深有一可憐人的心，他滿心最慈悲，怕不能曉得罷。靠自己的聰明是不能曉得，所以耶穌來告訴我們。他說甚麼話？他說，上帝憐愛世人，甚至把他的獨生子賜給他們，叫凡信他的人，不至滅亡，必得

永生。況且他常用比喻，比這件事。甚麼比喻。有一回他用比喻是這麼說，一個財主有兩個兒子，小的在家不安分，不服父親的管，常要離家出外，就求他父親要分幾股產業給他，叫他走了，父親就分了幾股產業給他。過了幾天，小兒子把他一切所有的收拾起來，往遠方去，在那裏毫無節度，耗費錢財，以致成了窮人，一個錢都沒有。他一到這個地步，又遇見那地方大遭饑荒，叫他窮苦得很，因為沒有人送他吃的，他就給那地方的一個人，在田裏看豬。那個時候他纔醒悟過來，說：我父親有許多工人，口糧有餘，我倒在這裏餓死嗎？我要起來，到我父親那裏去，對他說：『阿，我得罪了天，又得罪了你，從今以後我不配稱為你的兒子，把我當作你的一個雇工罷。』說完了話，他就起身回家，那曉得他離家還遠，他父親望見他，就急忙的跑出來迎接，雙手摟抱着他的頸項，與他親嘴。兒子就認錯說自己不好，父親卻吩咐僕人說：『拿出上好的袍子來給他穿，把戒指戴在他的指頭上，把鞋子穿在他的腳上，把那肥牛犢牽來宰了，我們可以吃，喝，快樂罷。因為我這個兒子是死而復活，失而復得的。』他們就快樂起來。這比喻的意思，先生會得過來麼？會不過來。這浪子可比我們世上的人，父親可比天父，滿有慈悲的心，接待我們罪人。啊，耶穌還說些比喻嗎？他很說了幾個，在那新約全書上先生可以看看。閣下先說他做好事，請教他做甚麼好事。他常醫治各樣的疾病、疼痛，就是叫瞎子看見，聾子聽見，啞吧說話，癱瘋的能起來，長大痲瘋。

的能潔淨，又叫死人復活。彷彿我們漢朝華陀相似。不是的，他不動刀，不動鍼，不開方子，叫人吃藥，他只說一句話，人的病就全退了。他還做甚麼事呢？他末了替人贖罪，怎麼個贖法？他甘心情願替衆人捨他的性命。在那裏捨的？在十字架上。甚麼叫十字架？就是兩根木頭，一根豎的，一根橫的，釘成一個架子。啊，想必他犯法受罪罷？不是，他釘死在十字架上，是因為我們世人都有罪，都犯了上帝的誡命，既然犯了誡命，總該受罪，惡報就該當歸到我們各人的頭上。幸虧這位耶穌出來，替我們受罪，把我們的惡報一身承當，我們的罪都歸到他身上去，所以他受苦受難，不是爲他自己的罪，乃是爲我們衆人的罪。啊，彷彿俗語說：前人開路，後人行。有一點彷彿，可說耶穌因爲在苦架上受罪，他就把天堂的道路開通了。他釘死以後怎麼樣？死後埋葬在墳墓裏。想必到如今還在墳墓裏罷？不是，到第三日，他就復活。那奇怪得很，實在奇怪，但他的門徒親眼看見他，而且同他喫飯，說話，親手摸過他。既是這樣，他現在還在猶太國麼？不在那裏，復活以後，他在地面上只住了四十天，過了四十天，他就升上天去，到如今還在那裏掌管天、地、下的大權柄。他留下甚麼吩咐沒有？留下來，就是吩咐他的門徒往普天下去，勸化萬民悔改，相信福音。相信福音，有甚麼好處？極大的好處，就是可以免你先生的罪。免甚麼罪？我沒有罪。可惜，我們人人都有罪。請教人有甚麼罪？大概可以分兩樣。那兩樣呢？就是該做的事沒有去做，不該做的事倒

去做。怎麼曉得那該做、那不該做呢。各人都有良心，所以能辨別是非。那是不錯。人若從生到死，憑良心做人，他纔可以算沒有罪。那樣的人難得。沒有那樣的人，連一個也沒有。請教有甚麼不該做的事呢。不該敬拜那泥塑木雕的偶像，把他當神，該以上帝爲大，不拘看甚麼都不可以看比他大。若看功名、錢財、富貴、喫喝，比他要緊，這就是罪。看他在先就是了。是，因爲他是萬德的根源。人若不看重他，就彷彿樹枝離了樹根一樣，不能開花，不能結果，只能枯乾了。所以人做那不該做的事，是因爲離了他。啊，是這個情理。故此人常撒謊、偷東西、佔便宜、欺負人、哄騙人、辱罵人、毀謗人、犯姦淫、起貪心、殺人、起不好的念頭、想那不該想的事、埋怨人、嫉妒人、背地裏搬人的是非、妄做見證、和各樣的惡，這一切的事都是由人心出的。怎麼由人心出的呢。人心是善的。好樹結好果子，壞樹結壞果子。若人有善心，憑據在那裏呢。雖是那麼說，人還可以正心。正不了，救主說，人心就是萬惡的根源。他怎麼說。他說，從人心裏出來的就是惡念、姦淫、苟合、兇殺、偷竊、貪婪、邪惡、詭詐、浪蕩、嫉妒、驕傲、狂妄。把心一洗就是了。人洗不淨，只有耶穌的血成了洗罪泉源，能把人的心洗得比雪還白。總要求他纔能把心洗淨了。你們書上是怎麼解說悔改兩個字。據我們書上說，悔改就是痛悔從前的罪孽，而改好了行爲。啊，就是知過必改。不錯，比方一個人素來撒謊、悔罪以後說話務必認真，說一句可算一句，或是往日訛詐人，以後要賠還，或拜菩薩，以後

只要拜上帝、或做生意不公、用大秤小斗、後來總要做個公平的買賣、這樣纔可算真回心轉意了。要去假歸真、是又要在上帝的面前認罪、明說自己辜負他的大恩典、如同奸臣在皇帝的跟前認罪、以後做忠臣。這樣說、悔罪改過、可以算是個最要緊的事情。若要塗抹罪惡、或要進入天國、或要成一個好人、非悔改不可。你們書上也有這一句、悔改信福音、這是甚麼意思。這句話的意思最要緊、我可以詳細講給先生聽。請說。一個人光痛恨往年的罪過、本是不穀。怎麼不穀呢。因為他往年的罪還在身上、比方一個犯人坐監受罪、也有悔改的心、但他還是要受罪、一個人犯上帝的法、也是這樣。所以要添上信福音那句話、纔可以曉得怎麼樣使罪得赦、上帝因為有個憐憫人的心、開恩典說、若一個人肯信靠耶穌、那個人的罪都可以得赦免、這就是福音了。何必倚靠他呢。因為除他以外沒有可靠的救主。自己積功德不好嗎。若有功勞何必悔改呢。這件事、依不得你說、依不得我說、上帝免罪的法子就是要我們相信耶穌得救、悔改相信耶穌是連合的、分開不得、若悔改不信、或只信不悔改、不能免罪、又要悔改又要相信。先生說、信靠耶穌、怎麼靠法呢。我可以告訴先生一件古事、好把那靠字解清白、就是古時候上帝叫猶太國的人獻祭免罪、他們所要獻的就是牛、羊、鵓、鳩、鴿子、獻法是這樣、若獻羊總要選擇沒有殘疾的、擇好了、要把兩隻手按在羊的頭上、承認罪惡、認完了、就有人用刀宰羊、流出他的血來、這樣、人的罪

惡都歸到那羊的身上，故此上帝把那個人的罪免了，羊一死，就算替那人死。現今我們也要靠耶穌得救，彷彿那人把手按在羊的頭上一樣，靠他免罪。這個意思難明白。是的，所以耶穌應許聖靈來開導我們的心竅，叫我們明白。聖靈是那一位。他是三位一體上帝的第三位。能看見他麼。不能看見，他是個靈。他做甚麼樣的功夫。他感動我們的心，叫我們明白聖書做好人，又叫我們與上帝同心。他可比個通事，把上帝的話解通了。若不看見他怎麼曉得呢。雖然人不看見他，耶穌卻說：我要求父，父就要另外賜你們一位保惠師，叫他永遠同你們在一處。後來求下來了。沒有求下來了，就是在耶穌升天以後有十天的光景，他就下來了。怎樣下來呢。忽然間下來，彷彿一陣大風，當時有三千多人悔改信服耶穌。現今怎麼樣。現今他還是做這樣的功夫，我們傳道全是倚賴他的能力。況且耶穌親口說：你們雖是不好，尚且把好东西賜給兒子，難道天父倒不把聖靈賜給求他的人嗎。好，你們的教是怎麼入法。凡悔改信耶穌的人，都可以入教。入門要行甚麼禮。耶穌設了兩樣的禮，就是洗禮和聖餐。聖餐是甚麼禮。這是耶穌設的一個大禮，就是衆教友都吃一點餅，喝一點酒。啊，這是喫丸藥罷。不是喫丸藥，喫丸藥是人造的謠言。爲甚麼吃餅喝酒呢。餅可比耶穌的身體，酒可比他的血。教中的人還要守甚麼規矩。每逢七天要守禮拜，到堂裏讚美上帝，念聖書，作禱告，聽牧師講解聖書。他們平常要怎麼樣呢。平常各人要幹各人

的事、做出個端正的榜樣來。你給他們多少錢一個月。君子謀道不謀食、分文都不給他。他們怎麼樣過日子呢。各人還是照常做各人的事、做買賣的做買賣、耍手藝的耍手藝、安分守己。念經的工夫怎麼樣呢。他們不是念經、只在家中天天作禮拜、念一章聖書、唱幾節讚美詩、作幾句禱告就是了。不燒香、點燭嗎。不燒香、不點燭、只用一片誠心禮拜上帝。作禱告說甚麼話呢。沒有一定、有的看事、而隨便求、也有用一定的樣式。甚麼樣式呢。就是耶穌定的樣式說、我們在天上、的父、願人都尊主的名爲聖、願主的國來到、願主的旨意行在地上、如同行在天上、我們日用的飲食、今日賜給我們、免我們的債、如同我們免了人的債、不叫我們遇見試探、救我們脫離那惡者、因爲國度、權柄、榮耀、全是主的、世世無窮、阿們。我看你們教中的人、吃飯的時候、先用手遮眼睛、念個甚麼咒。閣下看錯了、不是念咒、是感謝上帝、賜他們飲食。不是念咒是說甚麼話。或說、多謝天父、賜我飲食周備、養活肉體、求賜天糧、養活靈魂、叫我永守主的道、以後升天、享永福、求謝都是靠主的功勞、阿們。你們和天主教是不是一樣。不一樣、大不相同。有甚麼不同處。不同的地方多、就是看聖書、作禮拜、吃葷、娶妻、禱告、吃聖餐、認罪、贖罪、煉獄等。啊、差得這麼遠麼。是、說到看聖書、我們願人人看、願人人考究、是道則進、非道則退。天主教不然嗎。不然、只許聽神父解說就是了、說是說非、全憑他一個人講。你們的教堂作禮拜不一樣嗎。不一樣、天主堂有偶像、香爐、燭臺、

他們也燒香、念經、素珠、磕頭拜神父。啊、和我們佛教差不多。差不多、大同小異。先生纔說吃葷兩個字是怎麼樣。我們耶穌教隨便吃、這個不關緊要、惟天主教定規吃齋的日期、教中的人都要守。我們佛教也是的、但是婚娶怎麼樣呢。天主教禁止神父娶親成家、叫他們做一輩子的鰥夫。你們教中娶老婆、不娶呢。不禁止娶親、因為聖書說明婚姻是個貴重的事情、生子成家也是敬重人倫。那是不錯、人倫是廢不掉的。再說禱告兩個字、天主教中、多用外國土話、叫衆人不懂意思、也求聖母、拿他當做中保。巧得很、我們佛教也用許多外國咒符念經、也有許多不明白的話、語、你們如何呢。我們只用本地話教衆人明白、也只求那一位真中保、就是我們的主耶穌。你們吃聖餐也是兩路嗎。兩路、天主教只許人吃一片饅頭、不許吃酒、餅、兩樣、他們又說、一經神父的手、酒變爲耶穌的血、餅變爲耶穌的真體、隨意可以獻作祭物。這還了得、糊塗至極。就說到認罪、我們的規矩也是兩樣。怎麼爲兩樣呢。天主教要他們的人在神父面前認罪、不拘男女老少、富貴貧賤、那怕是君王、都要在他跟前認罪。何以呢。據他們說、神父操赦罪的權柄。機密事情也要告訴他嗎。都要告訴他、名爲告誡、若不老實講、他說些很話嚇死人。啊、這真是個妖術邪法、但是先生說贖罪、這是怎麼樣。我們的聖經說、耶穌釘死在十字架上、特爲要贖他百姓的罪、他死了一回、贖罪的事就成功了、惟天主教說、人可以自己贖罪、自己做出一點功勞來、名教補贖、再是

人死後神父或給他超度，叫他靈魂可以得天上的福氣。啊，我們也是一樣。不錯，可惜這個迷惑深得，勸老兄不必從這虛妄的法子，人一下地獄，就是天下的銀子也買不出他來。煉獄地獄一樣嗎？不一樣，煉獄是天主教憑空捏造的地方，聖書並沒有這兩個字。據聖書說，善人死後要歸天，永遠與上帝同在，惡人要下地獄，永遠受苦。出錢可以買得出來罷？買不出來，這是騙人錢財的壞法子。不能超生嗎？萬不能，一個人生前做惡，死後要受永遠的苦楚。先生怎麼知道呢？因為我們的主耶穌說明白了，在那裏蟲是不死的，火是不滅的，必有無窮無盡的苦楚。天堂可以買得進去罷？買不進去，得天堂的永福而免地獄的永火，不在乎錢財多少，在乎罪之免不免。不免罪不得進去嗎？那是一定的。因為天堂是個至聖至潔的地方，大有榮耀，大有體面，沒有罪過，沒有苦難，沒有禍患在那裏。人一死可以到那裏去嗎？他的靈魂可以去，他的身體要入土，隨後復活。怎樣復活呢？人人都要復活，不問他好歹總要復活受報應，或者是受善報，或者是受惡報。正如俗語說，善惡到頭終有報，不是不報，時辰未到。那是不錯，但是說身體能再活，實在是令人難解。自然，在人看來是個萬不能有的事情，惟有上帝是無所不能，再說，若沒有復活，善惡怎分得清楚呢？所以上帝叫人復活，就是要賞善罰惡。現在沒有報應嗎？有是有，但不均勻。現在可比種下禍福的田地，一復活就有個收成，種的是善收的也是善，種的是惡收的也是惡。善人惡人

一齊復活嗎。不能。主的百姓要復活在先，惡人要復活在後，相隔多少年代呢。千數年的光景，如今惡人是頭，善人是尾，但以後不然。以後要怎麼樣呢。以後救主要再來接他自己的百姓，叫他們永遠與他同在。啊，耶穌還要來嗎。還要來一回。要幾時來呢。不定，或早或晚。彷彿從前一樣嗎。大不一樣，他要坐雲回來，有千千萬萬的人隨着他來，大有榮光，大有權柄。人人能看見嗎。那時天下的人都要看見，要認真他是天地萬物的大主宰。他的百姓要露他的光嗎。是他們要得大福氣，再不挨罵，挨打，受世人的氣，這就是他們最快樂的時候。過了千年以後呢。過了千年，惡人要復活受審判，按着各人的行為，受各人的報應。誰要坐堂呢。就是上帝，因為他無所不知，也最公平，他必要公公道道派定各人永遠的刑罰，這就是天地的末日。害人的鬼如何呢。也要一同受刑罰，要在硫磺火裏受世世無盡的大苦。他們的頭腦魔鬼也要在那裏吃大苦。那是應當的。但是閣下要如何躲避那樣的後患呢。我苦口勸你老兄趕緊的悔改，誠心實意信服這位救世主耶穌。何必呢。因為耶穌是個照黑暗的明燈，是生死的福根，是永生的道路。啊，我不坐了，打攪打攪，二回再來再談。不送，留步。少陪啊。那裏的話，慢待慢待。

1. The first and fifteenth of the month ts'u-ih, shih-u 初¹, 十五 are observed as special days for worship, etc. But what is done on these occasions is largely regulated by reference to the Calendar, huang-lih 皇歷 published yearly by the Imperial Board of Astronomy ch'ing-t'ien chien 欽天監.

2. Cards are not used when making an informal visit. A missionary's card should have his nationality and occupation stamped upon it, a little to the right above his name, e.g., The English Missionary Hua Kueh-hsiang; ta-ing chiao-si, Hua kueh-hsiang 大英教士花國香. It is usual to have the following sentence stamped on the back: "To be used as a visiting card only;" pai-k'eh liu-ming, puh tsoh pieh iong 拜客留名, 不作別用. This is to prevent any person using it in order to obtain money under false pretences, etc. Some foreigners notify the local official that no card is from them unless both name and date are written in English. This serves as a check on unscrupulous rascals.

3. The word ch'ing 請 is used in social intercourse with various meanings. For instance, in giving another the precedence, it is 'Will you please go first.' Here it may be translated, 'Request him to enter.' In most cases it indicates respect for the person to whom it is addressed. When it is not convenient to receive a visitor, the phrase, 'To stop the chariot' tang-chia 擋駕 is used to indicate this.

4. The words kuei 貴 or tsuen 尊 are not always used in asking another's name. The Chinese regulate the use of these words according to the status of the person in question, but it is better for foreigners to err on the side of over-politeness than to run the risk of being thought rude. The proverb says: 'No one blames you for being too polite'; li to ren puh kuai 禮多人不怪.

5. Chinese surnames are contained in a book called The Family Names, puh-chia-hsing 百家姓. They are arranged in groups of four in a line, and as many of them are of the same sound, though differing in form and meaning, it is customary—as here—to quote the line in which the one in question is found. To be able to do this raises a foreigner at once in the estimation of a Chinese.

6. Chinese have three names, called respectively Small or Milk Name, hsiao, ru, or nai ming 小, 乳, 奶名; Book or Student Name, shu ming, or hsioh ming 書名, 學名; and Official Name, kuan-ming, or k'ao-ming 官名, 考名. Besides these they generally have a Title, hao 號, and sometimes a Nickname, uai hao 外號. The first of these is given in childhood, the second on beginning school life, the third at the age of 15 or 16, and the last on coming to manhood. The third is the one stamped on a visiting card.

應酬佳話 The refined expressions of social intercourse.

就個小館。老夫子高才啊。豈敢、才學疎淺得很。先生貴國是那¹一國。敝國是英國。先生寶眷可在這裏麼。豈敢、家眷也在這裏。令政夫人可是中國人。不敢、賤內也是外國人。有幾位令郎。不敢、有兩個小兒。恭喜、可有令愛。不敢、有個小女。可有貴乘³龍了。不敢、有了一個小婿。賢昆仲幾位。豈敢、愚弟兄四個。先生行幾。不敢、行二、還有一個家兄⁵、兩個舍弟。幾位令姪公。一個舍姪、是家兄的孩子、舍弟纔有舍弟媳。令姊妹幾位。不敢、有一個家姐、一個舍妹。令尊令堂大人呢。不敢、家父去世了、家母還在外國。還請教先生貴庚^{子就問先生高壽}。不敢、癡長三十四歲。^{虛度五十九歲}隨閣下來的這幾位⁷是親戚罷。有的是親戚、有的是朋友、這一位在城裏開一個小店。財喜好得很。託福、糊嘴罷。寶號開在那裏。小舖子開在三牌樓。生意還與隆罷。沒有事。那一位呢。他駕船。寶舟在那裏。豈敢、小

1. A wife is spoken of as (The One) in the Home, chia-li 家裏, or The Small Home, chia-hsiao 家小. A vulgar term is 'Old Woman,' lao-p'o 老婆. In asking after the wife of another, tsuen fu-ren 尊夫人 is often used.

2. In saying how many children he has, a Chinese gives the number of sons only; if he has any daughters they are only referred to in answer to a question about them.

3. Ch'eng-long is an affected term for a son-in-law, based on a story of two sisters who got husbands like dragons. The usual name is nü-hsüeh 女婿.

4. The order of sons in a family is expressed by p'ai hang 排行, meaning 'Arranged in a series.' Hence the question is asked to ascertain whether a person is the eldest, or second, etc. The name, followed by the position in regard to the order of birth, is often stamped on the back of a visiting card; e.g., fu-kueh, hang san 輔國, 行三. Colloquially the word lao 老 is prefixed as follows: Eldest, lao-ta 老大, Second, lao-ri 老二. Third, lao-san 老三; etc.

5. Care should be taken to use polite prefixes correctly. Note that chia 家 stands before members of the family older than the speaker; shæ 舍 before those younger than he. In addition to those given in this Dialogue, the following conventional prefixes are common; the student should get examples from his teacher showing how and where they should be used: -han 寒, lao 老, hsien 賢.

6. Many conventional expressions are not so forcible to Chinese ears as their literal meaning would suggest, even as many expressions used in polite conversation in the West, will not bear too close an analysis.

7. Note use of nei 位 in speaking of a person in his presence. To use ko 個 in such a case is disrespectful.

船灣在龍王廟。先生品高望重，一定是福壽雙全。承閣下的誇獎，實在是老大無能。過謙過謙，請問你們那邊拜年不拜年。也是拜年。賀節不賀節呢。不賀節。我們這邊娶親過年，中舉升官，出門回來，都去拜客。你們拜客怎麼說法。或說久違，違教，不相見好久了，或是自謙奉承的話頭，我們結交朋友，應酬客，一切人情的話，多得不可說。我這位朋友說，你們見人不打恭，不作揖，只拉手，可是這樣麼。不錯，禮行不同。又說，你們行客拜坐客，不教他坐左邊，以右手為主，也不很講究位分，我們中國以左手為主。有客來，總請他上坐，倒碗茶給他喝，或拏煙袋來給他吃煙，我們去拜客，先用圖書印幾張片子，裝在護書裏，穿上禮衣，這纔去拜客。你們請朋友來吃飯怎麼樣呢。說到請人吃飯，要看他年紀大小，來的遠近，纔請他坐首席，也有坐二席、三席、四席、五席、六席，不等。何以爲首席呢。進大門靠右手，上頭是首席，靠左手，上頭爲二席，坐首席的左手是三席，坐二席的右手爲四席。五六呢。棹子上橫頭，靠坐首

1. The usual thing at New Year is to send a card on the morning of New Year's Day, and pay a call two or three days afterwards. Women do not visit for the first four or five days after New Year.

2. Visits on the holidays in the fifth and eighth months, are largely confined to officials.

3. It is a good thing to acquire a stock of such expressions, and to use them freely; to do so adds much to the pleasantness of intercourse with the Chinese.

4. To raise the hands, ta-kong, or kong-sheo 打恭,拱手 is not so respectful as to tsoh-ih 作揖. The degree of respect shewn is indicated in the one case by the height to which the hands are raised, and in the other by the time taken, and the depth to which the body is bent.

5. This is a point much insisted on in Chinese society. Foreigners often lose ground with the Chinese by setting such rules at defiance, but it is better to fall in with native usages in this respect. A general "levelling up" is not a thing to be greatly desired.

6. The Chinese in social intercourse regard the pipe as a necessary accompaniment of tea. Hence the proverb, "Tobacco and tea prevent a breach;" ien ch'a puh fen chia 烟茶不分家. But they will not misunderstand a missionary neither offering nor accepting a pipe, as abstinence from both tobacco and wine is looked on as an evidence of a good life.

席的右手爲五席、靠二席的左手、爲六席、棹子下橫頭是主人自己坐的地方、也可以說七席八席、這是以大門向爲主、棹子縫也直對大門的。怎樣照棹子縫呢。比方在書房請客、牆上不是掛的有字畫嗎、棹子縫總要直對字畫、主人面對字畫坐着、就不錯。你們這邊送禮怎麼樣。看交情的輕重、比方情重、他送十樣來、或收七八樣、或全收也可以、情淺的、收四五樣就殼了。送來的人還要給他的腳錢、名叫回托兒錢。你們給他多少呢。一吊錢的禮物、給他一百個錢、還要把一張名片、放在托子裏、意思謝謝他的主人、若主人親自送來、自然不給錢、只說、不敢當、不敢當、後說、愧領、愧領。請問你們外國人、去見我們中國的官、怎麼樣呢。我們不用磕頭、打千、比方衙門裏跟官的來問個甚麼事、說某老爺叫我過來請安、要請問一樁事、我就說多承貴東的愛、事情就是這樣、就給他回片、消他的差、他就說、我可以回去告訴敝東就是了。

1. The rule is to hang four scrolls on each side of the room. Those on the left hand looking outward are covered with poetry or extracts from some well-known author, those on the right hand with flowers. The written ones are in the place of honour. A set of the painted ones is called ih-t'ang si-shi-tih hua-huei 一堂四時的花卉。

2. Tables are placed with the seams of the top pointing north and south. The positions taken by visitors are regulated by this.

3. Presents are given at births, marriages and deaths, on attaining a literary degree, at the New Year, and on the holidays in the fifth and eighth months. A card is always sent with them. The degree of intimacy and respect is indicated by the amount of the present accepted; the more accepted the greater the respect shewn. As local usages vary, it will be well for the student to ascertain what custom obtains in his district.

4. It is the custom to give gratuities to servants. In many cases the amount of wages given is regulated by the number of opportunities the servant has of making money in the way here indicated. The wise use of a few cash on these and similar occasions, is often of great value. About 10 per cent. is the usual amount to give.

5. It is of great importance to show due respect to those in authority. Not being subjects of the Emperor, foreigners are not obliged to show respect in the manner here mentioned, but anything of a disrespectful bearing should be avoided.

6. Such a person should have a card to accredit his message, and should be furnished with a card to take back as evidence that he has fulfilled his commission.

要是親自去見怎麼樣呢。我們拿個帖叫門丁傳進去，見面的時候，站在他的左手，對上作個長揖，或彼此對面作揖，不等。然後他說，請上坐，或讓我坐匠床上，他就問，你駕有甚麼事來。我就說，特來請安，但有點事要費心，就由這句話談起，說完了話，他就舉杯說，請茶，放下杯子，我就站起來還作一揖，說費心，暫違。他也拱手說，再見，就送出來。我說，打攪，打攪，可以不必勞駕。他說，得罪，得罪，簡慢得很，莫怪，空坐。我說，豈敢，言重得很。他說，沒有事，可以來坐坐。我說，再來請安，就教兩下互一拱手，說，請。他說，不遠送，恕送，慢慢走。我說，請留步，不要客氣，諸事領教，後會有期。我們見官就是這樣。話長時短，不能久談，我們可以回去罷。閣下要回去麼，我心裏實在有點依依不捨。承先生的厚愛，彼此都是一樣，我們以後可以常常通信，是彼此常有書信往來，就不致於久別生疎了。好極好極，過一期再來領教。那就不敢當了。請。請。請。

1. Visits to the magistrate's office should be made either in a chair or in a cart. The card should be carried in a native card case, hu-shu 護書, and handed in by a servant. A courteous conciliatory manner in dealing with either the men-fang 門房, or the Secretary, si-ie 師爺 may materially expedite the business in hand.

2. Care is needed in turning the body to keep the face toward the one turned from; to turn the back is considered a great insult. Official etiquette, i-chu, 儀註 needs special study, and as most foreigners are, in the nature of the case, ignorant of it, they should be careful not to expose themselves to insult by displaying their ignorance.

3. The room where a magistrate sees his guest is arranged in the same manner as the guest hall, k'eh-t'ang 客堂, in an ordinary house; the same relative order in the matter of seats should therefore be observed.

4. The subject in hand should be introduced with a few polite opening phrases. The bluntness and abruptness of Western intercourse is often mistaken for rudeness by the Chinese. They say that we speak "all in a heap" shoh hua ih ta tui 說話一大堆。

5. The lifting of the cup by the official is to intimate that the visit is at an end. At times it has the same significance in ordinary intercourse, but this depends on circumstances. A good deal is hinted at in the actions of the Chinese, and foreigners will do well to ascertain what such hints mean.

6. Nearly all such invitations are mere conventionalities, and mean nothing.

GEOGRAPHICAL NOTES. 輿地

Boundaries and Divisions of China Proper.

North :—Mongolia.

East :— Gulf of Pehchihli, the Yellow Sea and the Pacific Ocean.

South :—The China Sea, Gulf of Tonquin, Tonquin and Siam.

West :— Upper Burmah, Thibet and Kokonor.

Wells Williams divides China Proper by its physical features into Three Portions ; viz., the Mountainous, the Hilly, and the Level Country.

1. The Mountainous portion is more than half of the whole, and lies W. of a line passing N and S. through Wu-ch'ang, in Hupeh.

2. The Hilly portion lies E. of this meridian and S. of the Yang-tsi.

3. The Great Plain is the remaining North Eastern portion, and is said by him to be the richest part of the Empire.

According to Giles, the cities of China number 1,884. They are divided as follows:—Fu 185, T'ing 134, Cheo 248, Hsien 1,317. To this must be added the Manchurian Provinces, which according to the same authority contain 4 Fu, 10 T'ing, 6 Cheo and 15 Hsien. Total 35. This gives a total of 1,919 in all.

Chief Rivers of China. 河江國中

China has four principal rivers, viz., the Yellow River in the North, the Yangtze in the Centre, the West River in the South and the Han River running from the N. W. to the centre. There are also three smaller rivers, viz., the Pei Ho in the North, the Huai Ho north of the Yangtze, and the river Min, which flows through the province of Fuhkien.

YELLOW RIVER.—Huang Ho 黃河. Rising in Kokonor, about Lat. 35° N. and Long. 93° E., it enters Kansuh and passes Lanchow, 800 miles from its source. It is then flanked by the great wall for 430 miles, and passes out into Mongolia. It re-enters China between Shansi and Shensi, forming their boundary, then strikes eastward through Honan and Shantung, and passing the walls of K'aifeng and Tsinan in its course, falls into the Yellow Sea about Lat. 37° N. and Long. 118° E. Formerly, after leaving K'aifeng the river flowed eastward into Kiangsu, falling into the Yellow Sea about 100 miles north of Chinkiang. Its direct length is 1,290 miles, but as the course winds, it is nearly 2,500. The area of its basin is 475,000 square miles. It is comparatively shallow, and of little use for purposes of navigation.

YANGTZE RIVER.—Iang-tsi Chiang 揚子江, also called "Ta Chiang" 大江 and "Ch'ang Chiang" 長江. Rises in Thibet. After flowing for more than 1,000 miles in thinly populated country it passes into China Proper near Batang in Szechwan. Here it is known as the Chin-sha 金沙, or Golden Sand River. Then flowing southward and eastward, it for some distance forms the boundary between Szechwan and Yunnan.

Passing northward and eastward through Szechwan, and under the walls of Ch'ungking, where it receives a large tributary, the Ki'ling Chiang, from the North, it enters Hupeh, and rushes through the gorges to Ich'ang. At Yohchow, it receives the waters of the Tongt'ing Lake, and passes Wuch'ang, with Hanyang and Hankow opposite to it, at the junction of the Han river. Skirting the northern extremity of Kiangsi, at Kiukiang near the mouth of the P'oyang Lake, it strikes N. E. through Anhwei, and passing Ank'ing and Wuhu, enters Kiangsu near Nauking.

After intersecting the Grand Canal at Chinkiang, it falls into the Pacific by two magnificent mouths about Lat. 32° N., Shanghai being on the Hwangpu river 黃浦江, which joins the southern mouth at Woosung. Its length, as the bird flies, is 1,850 miles; as the course winds, about 3,000. It drains an area of 548,000 square miles.

THE WEST RIVER 西江, rises in Yunnan, and flowing in a south-westerly direction separates Kweichow from Kwangsi for a distance of 160 miles. It then flows S. E. through the centre of Kwangsi and Kwangtung, emptying itself through the Delta into the South China Sea by a number of mouths in latitude 23° N., Longitude 113° E. In its course it receives several tributaries, the principal of which are the Red River 紅水江, the Kwei River 桂江, which joins it at the Treaty Port of Wuchow 梧州, and the North River 北江, which enters it at Samshui 三水. Its total length is about 1,250 miles.

THE PEI RIVER 北河 rises in Mongolia among the In Mountains 陰山, and after running parallel to the Great Wall, enters the Plain of Chihli to the north of Peking 北京, and flowing in a south-easterly direction passes the cities of Tongchow 通州 and Tientsin 天津 and empties itself into the Gulf of Pehchili at Taku 大沽 twenty-eight miles from Tientsin. It is navigable from Tongchow to the sea only.

CHIEF RIVERS OF CHINA. 河江國中

THE HAN RIVER 漢河 (or 江) rises in Shensi close to the borders of Szechwan. Flowing W. by S. W. it passes the cities of Hanchong 漢中 (900 miles from Hankow) and Hsingan 興安 in Shensi, entering Hupeh to the west of Yuenyang 隕陽. From this point it pursues a south-westerly course and empties itself into the Yangtze at Hankow 漢口, the mouth of the Han. On its way through Hupeh it passes Laohokow 老河口, a busy mart 350 miles from Hankow; Siangyangfu 襄陽府, and the important business centre of Fancheng 樊城, 300 miles from its mouth; the city of Anlu 安陸, and Shayang 沙羊, an important market place on the right bank of the river. From Hankow to Laohokow the Han is shallow and full of sand banks; above that full of rapids, which make navigation difficult and dangerous.

THE HWAI RIVER 淮河 rises in the south of Honan and flows east past Sinyangchow 信陽州; entering Anhwei to the South-west of Yingchowfu 潁州府, it flows in a north-easterly direction, emptying itself into the Hungtze Lake 洪澤湖. It is navigable from Sinyangchow.

THE MIN, OR SNAKE RIVER 閩江, is formed by three principal tributaries which unite near to Yenpingfu 延平府. From this point it flows S. E. past Shuikow 水口 and Foochow 福州 (35 miles from the mouth of the river), emptying itself into the China Sea by two mouths. It is about 350 miles in length.

THE GRAND CANAL.

This canal was made in separate sections, between the 7th and 14th centuries, both Chinese and Mongols being engaged in its construction. It commences in the province of Chihli, near the treaty port of Tientsin 天津府; and entering the province of Shantung, near Tehcheo 德州, flows in a south-westerly direction until it reaches Linch'ing Hsien 臨清縣. From this point it flows south-east for a considerable distance. To the south of the Yellow River, near Tongp'ing Cheo 東平州, it passes through a low-lying country, where its flow is regulated by locks, and its banks in many places are faced with stone. These locks give it the local name of "Chah Ho," from the Chinese character chah 閘, "a water gate." In other parts of its course its usual name is the "Yuin Ho" 運河 or Transit River. Flowing on, it enters the province of Kiangsu, close to P'ei Cheo 邳州; and passing successively by Ts'ingkiang P'u 清江浦, Huaian Fu 淮安府, Paoing Hsien 寶應縣, the Kaoyu Lake 高郵湖 and Yangchow 揚州府, at length empties itself into the river Yangtze at Kuacheo 瓜州, having traversed about ninety miles from the Yellow River to this point.

Its course, south of the Yangtze, begins at Chinkiang 鎮江府, one of the Treaty Ports, where it has two separate entrances. Its flows on through a fertile, populous country past Tanyang Hsien 丹陽縣 in an easterly direction to Ch'angchow 常州, then on to Wusih 無錫 and Suchow Fu 蘇州府, the commercial capital of the province. Thence it proceeds almost due south into the province of Chehkiang, which it enters close to Kiahsing Fu 嘉興府; and finally completes its course at the provincial capital Hangchow 杭州府. The total length is about 650 miles.

The Lakes of China. 湖名國中

The principal lakes of China are found in the central provinces. In addition there are a number of small ones, the chief of these being in the provinces of Hupeh and Kiangsu. There are a few in Yunnan, the principal of which are the T'ien Lake 滇湖 to the south of Yunnanfu, and the Erh Hai 洱海 to the east of Talifu. The former lies at an elevation of 6,300 feet, the latter about 6,500 feet above sea level.

THE GREAT LAKE 太湖, lies to the west of Soochow 蘇州 in Kiangsu. It is about the same size as the Poyang Lake.

THE HONGTSEH LAKE 洪澤湖 lies partly in Kiangsu and partly in Anhwei. The Hwai River runs into it on the W. and channels on the N. E. connect it with the Grand Canal. To the south of it lies the Kaoyu Lake 高郵湖.

THE CH'AO LAKE 巢湖 lies to the S. of Lüchowfu 廬州府 in Anhwei to the N. of the Yangtze. It is fed by a number of small rivers, and empties itself into the Yangtze not far from Wuhu. It is about 125 miles in circumference.

TONGT'ING LAKE 洞庭湖. This lake is the largest in China, being about 66 miles long and 30 broad. It lies in the north-east of the province of Hunan 湖南 on the south-western border of Hupeh 湖北. It receives the waters of the Yuen Kiang 沅江 on the south-west, and of the Siang Kiang 湘江 on the south, and pours them into the river Yangtze at Yohchow Fu 岳州府.

P'OYANG LAKE 鄱陽湖. This beautiful lake is situated in the north of the province of Kiangsi. It is nearly 90 miles long and 20 broad. Several rivers flow into it from the south and south-west; the largest being the Kan River 贛江; and its waters are discharged into the Yangtze a few miles below the city of Kiukiang 九江府, one of the Treaty Ports. Its trades and fisheries are more important than those of the Tongt'ing lake, which is comparatively shallow.

第一課 1 書、紙、筆、是錢先生的、錢是那些先生的。這些東西是他的、不是、不是、那些東西是錢先生的。錢先生你懂不懂、我懂。那不是他的紙、是我的。他要錢不要、不要、他要錢先生的筆、你的紙。他要那些東西麼、他要。他們不懂、我懂。我不要念這些書、你要念甚麼書。他們要甚麼、他們不是要錢麼。這是不是你的、不是。他不

錯、我錯。他要念書麼。他不懂麼。第二課 2 你認識張先生麼、不認識、我認識錢先生。那是誰的椅子、是你的麼、不是我的。這兩件衣裳、那張棹子、不是他們的。這個幾字、出氣不出氣、不出氣。我要寫字、你要寫那一個字。這個人有七十幾個錢、我有十七八個。他們買兩個碗、兩碗茶。我認識買字、不認識甚麼兩個字。那二十四枝筆是我的、那些錢是你們的。他有七十八九張紙、你要買幾張、我要買九張。你要買不要買、不要買。六七個錢買一碗茶。那三枝筆是你的、這三枝是我的。第三課 3 四百五六。四百二十三。四萬五。八萬零八百九。八萬九千六。四千九。四萬零三百六。九萬六千零五十。六萬零八百九。四萬五千零六十一。七千零四個。五十萬。一千六。二千八。六十萬零八千七百零四。三萬五千零二十。一千零一十二。四百七十五萬。三十五萬零六十五。七十六萬零八百一十。

九。四五千。一千三四。九百萬。一千萬。八百四十萬。一二百萬。一百萬幾。中國

話你說得來說不來、我說不來、外國話我說得來。這個飯吃得吃不得、吃不得。這三個字你

寫得來寫不來、寫不來。他寫中國字、我寫外國字。他爲甚麼不說那句話、我不曉得。這是

甚麼聲音、我不曉得、問錢先生。他有幾個兒子在這裏、他有三個在這裏、兩個在那裏。你有

兒子沒有、沒有、張先生有四個。有五件中國衣裳在這裏、有三件外國衣裳在那裏。外國人

吃外國飯、中國人吃中國飯。中國飯你吃得來吃不來、吃得來。他吃了三碗茶、他吃甚麼、他

吃一碗中國茶。第四課 4 我聽見他那個小兒子說中國話、你在那裏聽見他、我在門外

聽見。這件衣裳小我穿不上、你穿上穿不上、穿不上。把這兩個外國碗拿去、把那本書拿來、

那一本、那本大的。他拿甚麼東西去、我沒有看見。他送我到門外。那個東西在上邊、不在

下邊。小的在那口大箱子裏頭、你去看看。我聽不見你說甚麼話、我說話你聽得見聽不見、

聽得見。我要念第一章、請聽、你要念那一章。那個東西買好了、他就拿來。把這個東西拿

到外頭去、我不要。不送。誰在下邊、張先生的大兒子。第五課 5 早三年我在外國、我

現在在中國、過一年我不知道上那裏去。他昨天說、今天把那口大紅箱子挑來、他沒有挑來、

這是爲甚麼、他現在在門外、叫他挑來。那個時候我給他五百零六個錢、現在我給他二萬錢、

這可以不可以。他去不去不要緊。他明天早晨去可以。他天天晚上到我這裏來坐。他現在在下邊。你可以請他上來。早五年零四個月零三天，他送我這件好衣裳。你可以去問他要那個大茶碗。現在他不在那裏。明天早上去可以不可以。過三年半我要去看他的大兒子。他現在在外國麼？不是，他在中國。第六課 6 我昨天對你說的那句中國話，你記得不記得、不記得。在城外有一條長街，把這封外國信送到那裏，後來叫兩個人來，把這口大箱子抬了去，兩個人抬不動，叫四個人抬可以不可以。這是他給我的錢。他小兒子帶來的那雙鞋，我放在棹子上。那個地方是濕的，坐不得，這個地方是乾的，可以坐在這裏。今天晚上九點鐘少一刻，拿一壺熱水來，我要洗腳。打他的那個人是誰，不是禮拜一來的。那個人麼？古時候的人沒有鐘表，我們現在有鐘有表。這個水深，過不得，那個水不深，過得。這不是他上禮拜刻的字麼？現在幾點鐘？三點半過五分。他夜裏不走。過了晌午，快兩點鐘。第七課 7 誰打發那個姓張的來，不是邊先生的哥哥麼？我給他買的那些碗不貴，那個粗的買四十個錢，細的買八十個錢一個，我也給他買一把白茶壺，一口黑箱子。那個姓方的有四十多歲，我問他那條長手巾你送給我麼？他說，那一條，我說，你兄弟早兩天買的那條。我有兩個黑的，我還要三個白的，你有沒有。請你把這方字的意思講給我聽，你講完了，我

就講給你聽、這可以不可以。女的不到三十歲、男的有四十幾歲、女孩子有十二歲。他給我洗一百多件衣裳、現在在這裏有多少件數、沒有多少件數、這幾件不是他洗的麼。他在這裏三個多禮拜、四個禮拜少一天、他說、明年正月初一他還要來。這是張先生的字、這封中國信不是他寫的麼、我請他給我寫、他寫的時候、我對他說、你寫完了、我就給你四百錢、這是多俗的事、這是上月初十的事。第八課 8 叫他明天早晨十點鐘少一刻回來。我現在沒有工夫去、我下禮拜三下半天去。他早兩天買的筆好、我昨天買的筆好些、但是張先生用的筆頂好。這盞燈小、那個姓邊的用的燈更小。這是你的錯。他寫了好些錯字。那四個人抬來的黑箱子作的好、但我這口箱子作的更好。他作事太慢、他早兩天去見方先生還沒回來。那個盒子他做好了、沒有、還沒有、他說、做好了就拿來。買那頂小帽子、用不了幾個錢。這件衣裳好、那件大的太貴。那個女人會不會做衣裳、不會。中國人用熱水洗臉、外國人用冷水洗臉。寫信給先生你要用一張好紙。你少給他兩個錢好。他走不回去。假的多真的少。女孩子吃完了餅子、他就回去。這個盤子太小、沒有個大些的麼。第九課 9 一百零兩塊洋錢。三十塊零二角六分洋錢。七百零六塊零八分洋錢。一角洋錢。一角五分洋錢。八角四分洋錢。一千零六十塊零七分洋錢。二萬零四百零六塊零九分洋錢。二三百

塊洋錢。一塊幾角洋錢。二角五分洋錢。七角五分洋錢。兩塊七角五分洋錢。八十六兩銀子。六十五兩銀子。一百零四兩零六分銀子。一錢銀子。二錢九分銀子。四錢銀子。一百兩零一分銀子。一百五十萬銀子。七錢五分銀子。二錢五分銀子。一兩零二錢五分銀子。二兩零七錢五分銀子。他爲甚麼不還那二百零六兩零二錢四分銀子。上月他問我借三塊錢給他，我說你要多借還我，他說下月初三，我就借三塊錢給他。今天洋錢換一吊二百六，早三天銀子換一吊八。我還找給他二錢銀子。算好了賬，他就上街去買東西。他爲甚麼來找我，誰知道。你找誰，我來找一個姓萬的，要借他的幾百錢，我說，你白找他。多一吊少一吊不要緊。大街上的錢舖今天開門。你有錢票沒有，我有兩張。第十課

10 他不過對你說假話，你不可信他，他早幾天給我買的那十個釘子，都不好，個個都不好用。請他出來，對他說，我有一件小事要告訴他。方先生有兩個男孩子，兩個女孩子，個個都好。他爲甚麼不喝那碗茶呢。我手裏沒有現錢，不過有一張兩吊錢的票子。作饅頭的說，各人走各人的路。那個小孩子起不來。去年夏天來的那些人，個個都會說中國話，但他們說的不好。賣魚的穿的那件黑衣裳，是賣肉的給他的，那個賣菜的也有六件紅衣裳，件件都看不得。他早一點鐘回來，纔出去，他上那裏去呢，他告訴我要上邊先生那邊去，問他借兩塊

錢。我這樣問他、那樣問他、但他還不懂我的意思。路、喝、心、三個字、不是這樣寫的。他在這裏兩個禮拜、他爲甚麼不去呢。他信靠救主。你怎麼樣呢、我也一心信靠他、信靠主的人、都得救。第十一課 11 封先生住的那個房子、沒有張先生住的房子好、張先生的房子好得三倍、是誰蓋的、是個姓馬的蓋的。泡三碗茶、把饅頭餅子擺在棹子上、擺好了就可以點燈、上住城外的那個女人那裏去、叫他明天早晨來做針綫。把這件衣裳掛起來、放在這裏就髒了。那麼大的孩子不會寫字、他不及六歲的女孩子。喝開水不如喝茶好。比方有兩個人、一個富、一個窮、富的有錢、窮的沒有錢、人人說窮的趕不上富的。這個布比那個布好得三倍、他昨天買的布、比你買的布更寬、是和這個一樣。這口空箱子有你做的箱子大、一箱子錢、比這個箱子重。他現在戴的帽子、是誰給他的、買多少錢、沒有你戴的帽子貴。買一口大猪、至少要兩錠多銀子、我至多給他十幾吊錢。他講的理我不信。你要幾乘轎子、我要三乘、叫抬轎的就抬來、不要等半天。我_{和同}你去。他講甚麼道理、他說人人都有罪、但救主死在十字架上了。他也說上帝給我們開了天上的門、現在請外國人中國人都進去、上帝的心就是愛。第十二課 12 把行李裝在車上、昨天颳了大東北風、今天沒有風。兩個外國客坐轎子來、抬轎的不知道路、把他們抬到北邊去、但現在把他們抬回來。他們說行李要慢慢的來。他說、

過江往東南走、沒有多遠有個車站。一個火車早晨六點半鐘開、一個走快些的晌午開。上江口的頭等車票、買多少錢。火輪船沒有火車快。客人少帶東西。他從上海經過、坐半天的火車、兩天的火輪船。各行有各行的買賣。這裏到城門有多遠、沒有多遠、至多有三四里地、趕點燈的時候你就到了。僱四個人把這些東西抬去。這個燈他沒有收拾的好。現在坐火輪船的客多、坐火車的客更多。東西南北的人、都是上帝造的。第十三課 13 這個東西要做多大、要做一尺三寸高、三尺長、二尺六寸寬、有我那口紅箱子大。僱人有論月的、有論天的、論天二百錢一天、論月五塊錢一月。他打電報到他父親家裏去。去買一塊錢的三分信票、一塊錢的一角信票、兩塊錢的五分信票、不要買錯了。那副天平是甚麼東西做的、是銅做的。郵政局在太平街、離這裏有二里多地、這太遠、把這兩封信送到分局、拿收條回來。那個小女孩子從那裏來的、他從家裏纔來的。我們從第二章念起、到第四章爲止。從第二節唱起。外國船是甚麼東西做的、有的是木頭做的、有的是鐵做的。那些銀子的好、這些木頭的趕不上。你帶了尺來沒有、沒有、忘記帶來、一丈零一寸、穀長不穀長、不穀長。把這兩張中國紙貼起來。上帝的恩惠、比海深、比天高。信靠救主的人、要上天去享大福氣。第十四課 14 這些信沒有不掛號的。那位老先生戴一頂舊帽子、穿一雙舊鞋。中國有二十幾

省。早幾年光有十八省、各省有府、州、縣、太平府有八縣、知縣是去年來的、姓黃。肉是論斤買的、布是論尺買的、你去買二斤三兩豬肉、一丈零一寸中國布。在城外有樹有草、真好看。你上那裏有幾回、我去年去一回、今年夏天去兩回。叫他進來、不要站在外頭、外頭冷。他是個壞人、和他辦事、沒有益處。請你在字典上給我查這個敝字、我查不出來。我上月來一輛、他不在家、我又來了、他還是不在家、這氣人不氣人呢。光說人的短處不好。他頭一回從這裏量起、這一回他從北門直量到教堂門口。來教堂聽道理的人不少、他們天天下半天來一回。新蓋的教堂、比舊堂大兩倍、坐滿了三四百個人、坐得下、多麼好呢。第十五課 15 長短怎麼樣、不太長、不太短、正好。他們空空的來、滿滿的回去。這件事我們怎麼辦呢、這個不難、是這樣辦。那個孩子哭甚麼、他說、他父母不在了、他們是本省的人麼、是本省的人、住在本街上。叫他快快的上來、不要等在大門外頭。他常常的罵人、一開口就罵起來、他不是個好人、人人說他不好。把那張圓棹子抬過來、把這張方的抬過去。木匠要錢、他們在下邊等着、叫他們再等一等、我不要他們現在上樓來。可以算四個工。他勸過他們四回、但勸不動、他們還是罵人。這樣行就是惹人生氣。救主上天的時候、就告訴他的門徒、往天下去傳教。後來他的門徒往各國去傳道、信的人多。他到世界上來作窮人、作木匠。後來他出去在本國

傳道、勸人信靠上帝。唱第一百零一首讚美詩。第十六課 16 他被獅子吃了。他病了兩個月、沒有法醫治、我怕他好不了。他養兩口豬、三條狗、又養二十個雞。臘月初三下大雪、初四下大雨。冬天不打雷、夏天打雷。那個學生有大本事、他的先生說、他要做醫大夫。李夫大生醫在城外開了醫院、他天天看病人、城裏和鄉下的人都來見他。他開方子說、一天吃兩劑藥。有不肯吃外國藥的、上本地藥舖去買本地藥。他發的藥很靈。你出城一直走、離城四里地、有張家村、東頭有座廟、西頭有個學堂、一過橋就到了。我想他已經走了。茶碗綢子在內、藥在外。各國的京城、比外省的省城更大。我想不出法子來、你想得出來麼、我也想不出來。那個醫院有三層高、本城沒有那麼高的房子。他買錯了藥、就受了害。菩薩是人手造的、人把他們放在廟裏。有木頭造的、有石頭、金子、銀子造的。他們不能走路、也不能說話、也不能救人、禱告他們沒有用處。救主能救我們的靈魂、我們都可以領他的救恩得救。第十七課 17 你跟誰學官話。隨他的便、他來也好、他不來也好。學英文費事、書又難念、字又難寫、但不管怎麼樣、我要學會。不論是獅子、是老虎、他都不怕。先生打學生一下、把他的一隻眼打壞了。他所說的、和他所行的、不對。那個挑夫挑我的箱子、把他挑壞了。他一來說話無理、二來開口就罵人、不要理他。他跟張先生學算盤。不管他做甚麼事、我都跟不上他。

跟我來。我的脚跟受了害。我拿他當醫大夫，但我看錯了人。那個姓李的很窮，上月初六上當鋪當了一件衣裳，現在天冷，他要贖，贖不出來，他也想不出法子來，你替他想個法子罷。這與我無干，我管不着他的事。我上了他的兩回當。你跟我好不好？他該你二兩七錢五分銀子，你爲甚麼不跟他要？我昨天跟他要，他說現在還不便當，他慢慢的可以再說。我們求上帝，他肯聽我們的禱告。早一千八百多年前，救主替我們死在十字架上，好贖我們的罪，這樣的恩惠比天高，人想不出來。第十八課 18 在樹旁邊是甚麼東西，不是個碗麼？雖然他自己肯去，他的哥哥卻不肯去。連書帶紙買五百錢，筆在外。你必要叫他明天來見我。泡一壺熱茶來，也倒一碗冷水拿來。牆倒了。他若哄你，你來告訴我，他光哄人。若是先生知道，他就要打你。他若不還你，我就還你。雖然他有錢，他卻是個壞人。他既然肯，你爲甚麼不肯？你既然沒有看見，你怎麼知道？我知道，因爲我聽見李先生說。雖然你管不着他的事，你還該對他說幾句話。他既然說我就信。雖然這事與我無干，我必要去看。他出門的時候，遠遠的看見一個獅子，就怕了，跑回店裏去。雖然這是費力的事，我還要去做。現在春天花都開了。不是你做的，就是你哥哥做的。因爲一個禮拜打一回辮子費事，所以他把他割了。若不是上帝打發救主來替我們死，我們就無法得救了。聖靈從天上下來，好感動人。

心、叫他們信靠救主、救主既然來了、我們不可信他麼。第十九課 19 叫做鞋的來、我要他給我定做一雙外國鞋。有許多人在街上、想必他們要看新來的知府下船。吃這兩劑藥、未必叫你的病好了。他明天也許來、也許不來、沒有定准。碑上刻德成靈三個大字。大發字號的貨、又貴又不好、一定賣不出去。大概他今天不來、因為他怕下雨。他的口音不很好。他走遍天下、差不多到過各國。那個學生今天來晚了、所以他不能早回去。想必這是章未成惹的禍。那開醫院的事、我略略的講給你聽。那個木匠來了好幾遍、我已經告訴他、這麼厚薄的板子沒有用處、許他不懂你的意思罷。他拿錯了收條、這是收錢的收條、不是發信掛號的收條、他一定沒有到過郵政局。救主先釘在十字架、後來埋在墳墓裏、第三天復活。現在他的墳墓是空的、因為他已經上了天。後來到了時候、他必要回到世界上來、叫攏總信他的人、都享大福氣。這就是福音大概的意思。第二十課 20 我們隔一道高牆。他們住家隔一條街。我和他商量、他說、你豈不知道我們要請中人麼。早晨起來、要穿穿衣裳、洗臉、梳梳頭、掃掃地。他一切用的東西、都不是自己的、都是旁人借給他的。人人說那個姓李的前天死、是個報應、他真是個惡人。皇上已經赦免那些犯人。雖然他的朋友勸他不要哭、他還是哭、因為他傷心。把其餘的飯給窮人。在本城有信耶穌教的、有信佛教的、有信道

教的、有信天主教的、有信回回教的。佛教差不多早兩千年前、到中國來。張先生常說他家裏富、其實全家沒有甚麼錢。古人以爲地是平的、其實是圓的。那樣的好人、豈肯做那樣的惡事呢。你的官話說的很好、豈敢、我的話很少。天堂是個好地方、在那裏的人、都是歡喜快活。善有善報、惡有惡報。基督捨命、因爲他愛人、若是不愛他們、豈肯爲他們死呢。拜佛的人、想他能赦免他們的罪、其實他不能、光有上帝能赦免人的罪。第二十一課 21 那個人很可憐、給他幾個錢不好麼。那個啞吧的女兒是個瞎子、看不見梳頭。這一課學會了沒有、已經學會了。他定規過湖家去、說、非去看我的父親不行。耕地非用犁不行。人作事不合那孩子的式、那孩子就時時的生氣、非打他不可。除了莊先生以外、別人辦不了那事。若不種地、我們要從那裏得飯吃呢。封姑娘現在十八歲、從四歲起就是啞吧、不能說一句話、他的父親送他到啞吧學堂、不到六年他就懂人的意思、這不是大奇事麼。這一定不是許先生惹的禍。北方人非吃麵不行、南方人非吃大米不行。兵用刀砍他兩下。日裏太陽出來、夜裏月亮出來。我昨天作了夢、夢見一個黑皮人、這是甚麼意思、沒有甚麼意思。上帝有聰明、有慈悲。若不是他想個法子、誰也不能得救。除了他打發來的救主以外、沒有別的可以贖我們的罪。我們若要進天堂、非靠他不行。第二十二課 22 他送我的那個雀鳥、時時的叫、

可惜纔飛了。今年的年成沒有去年的好。那棵大樹一年結一回果子。他上北京去學天文、在這裏沒有會教他的。昨天贖的飯在那裏。若兩國打仗、不定那一國勝、那一國敗。我昨天給你的那三吊錢、還贖下多少、不但沒有贖下、還不穀呢。大街上鞋舖的老板、多請了一個夥計。那個挑夫有大力量、那個大石碑他一個人拿得起來。你們的頭髮都被數過了。莊師娘常說人的是非、惹人生氣。得罪得罪。這本新約交給你、萬不可把他弄髒了。我今天要上街挖幾升米、可以割二斤豬肉、稱一斤魚回來。福音書上說、耶穌降生在西邊的猶太國。他在父親家裏長大、三十年作木匠。到三十歲他就離了父親的家、走遍猶太國、從南到北、從東到西。他又傳道、又醫病。他見了瞎子就叫他能看見、碰見啞吧就叫他能說話、他行了各樣的奇事。第二十三課 23 那個小餅掉在地下、快拾起來。雖然他有錢、他仍舊住在那個破房子。古時候的人用油燈、但現在各國大概都用自來火、與電氣燈。開醫院的那一天、文官武官都在那裏、一共有二十幾個。黃河一直往東流、通到北海。那條河很靠不住、說長就長、一夜長一丈多、真可怕。你看那一樣好、是穿藍的好、是穿紅的好、這要看人、小孩子穿紅的好、大人穿藍的好。萬不可撒謊、撒謊的人又害自己、又害人。我若對你說實話、不要見怪。那個學生的記性很不好、我教他一個字、他就忘了。最可憐的就是那個孩子被他

母親慣壞了。到了過年，他的錢不敷用，他的賬都算不清。他在樓上看報。你去年撒的種子，還沒有發長。我上教堂的時候，看見他們都跪下來。禱告完了，有一個中年人，上講書台子說，請唱讚美詩第一百零二首。合堂的人就打開讚美詩唱起來，一共唱五節，他們就都坐下，聽他講道理，說，上帝的應許，都是靠得住的。第二十四課 24 那個人本來有邪心，行邪道，父母勸他好幾回，他仍舊不聽，然後他犯國法送官，官先打他一百板子，罰他五十兩銀子，又說，若再送來，必聽重重的刑罰他。大概他受壞人的迷惑。一連三個禮拜不下雨，所以本地人着了急，把菩薩抬出來，放在路旁，現在他們望雨，等到如今還沒下。醋是酸的，饅頭是甜的，說兩個人吃醋，是比方的話。木匠十二點鐘停工，兩點鐘動工。天氣熱，道路不好走，歇歇罷。他拿我當孩子待。章師娘叫丫頭放下簾子，鎖大門。你渴不渴，這裏有水，要多少喝多少。鐘停住了。抹棹子，後來把大椅子的腿抹抹灰。我的錢都用盡了，把一兩塊錢借給我。太初上帝造天地。人人都知道犯法怕受刑罰，但他們犯上帝的法，以為不要緊，這是為甚麼，大半是因為他們現在不受刑罰，又想將來受刑罰，不受刑罰，也不一定，他們這樣受迷惑，很可惜，人種甚麼就收甚麼，這是一定的道理。第二十五課 25 印度國是個頂大的國，差不多有中國十八省大。不要忙，他立刻就回來。鎖傘、藍布、洋火、酒、香、米，都可以在雜貨鋪裏買。

洋火是那裏出的，是東洋出的。先前是西邊來的，但後來東洋人做的多，賣的賤，外國人就不再不能做那行生意。蓋房子非用灰不行。他請我吃飯那一天，大米飯、菜，都不穀，叫我吃不飽。打更的天天晚上打鼓。我的書太多，棹子上擺不開，我要叫木匠來給我做個書架子。雖然他的病重，醫生又給他開方子，他到底不肯吃藥。那個賣籃子的老實，又說實話。各人要盡各人的本分。救主在世上的時候，把五個饅頭、幾條小魚，分給五千人，女人孩子在外。他們都吃飽了，要多少有多少。和尚道士，都願意給人家念經，但非錢不行，所以人人都說，有錢得生，無錢得死。第二十六課 26 這與你何干。枕外國枕頭有何妨呢。我特意來見你。古時候的兵用弓箭，如今的兵用槍砲。叫他備馬。有四十個人都帶槍把他圍住了，雖然他騎好馬也逃不了。我餓了還沒有吃飯。這幾天下大雨，但今天天晴了。餓的餓死了，凍的凍死了，要飯的都餓死了。他雖然窮還捐上三塊錢，又願意多捐。兵有練出來的本事。他跌壞了一根腿。這個東西曬兩天，還沒有曬乾。俄羅斯人的相貌，和日本人的相貌大不同，一個身量高，一個身量矮。德文他懂不懂，多少懂一點。凡信基督的都可以受洗。守禮拜是頂要緊的。人拜祖宗拜錯了，該拜的就是上帝。救主揀十二個門徒，叫他們和他在一塊兒，預備他們到處去講道理。第二十七課 27 捆好了鋪蓋，可以叫挑夫來，送到碼

頭去。在街上有四個站岡的，兩個在東頭，兩個在西頭，還有一個站在巡警局的門口。你憂悶甚麼，我纔聽說我的母親不在了。他故意把壺打碎了，這是我親眼看見的。他看他的兒子如掌上的珠子。他瞞着父親上北京去。你光給他五百錢，他自然不肯來，他嫌工錢太少。大哥還可以，但老二、老三都好色、好酒、好財。把這塊紙撕碎了。兩個人打起架來，把衣裳撕碎了。他有人面獸心。獅子是獸中的王。要甚麼顏色，有甚麼顏色，紅的、黃的、白的、都有。救主哭猶太國的京城，因為城裏的人的罪大，他的心也憂悶，因為他知道他們將來要受苦。猶大賣基督的時候，以為是瞞着他，其實瞞不住他，豈能瞞得過無所不知的上帝麼？自然不能。早晚人的罪，都要顯出來，這是人人所知道的。第二十八課 28 葡萄樹上的枝子，光能結果子，沒有旁的用處。他們照他的吩咐去解驢。在山東省有許多葡萄園。衙門是辦公事的地方。我自己的私事，沒有甚麼要緊。這大概是私仇。在朝廷有宰相臣子，都辦國家的事。他提着籃子上街去買東西。不要疑惑他，他說實話，他的話並不是沒有憑據。我昨天夜裏作了一夢，解不開其中的意思。那個姓章的先引誘他行邪道，後來把他的錢都賴了去，真能叫鐵人流淚。他昨天寫了一篇論，今天發給主筆，請他登報。訪事人走遍城裏，打聽各樣的事，後來上報館寫起來。上帝所賜的平安比海深，人免了罪以後，纔有這平安。主

吩咐他的門徒上村子裏去解開驢駒，拉到他那裏去。魔鬼引誘人去犯罪。第二十九課

29 有的蘆葦長在河旁，有的長在湖邊。牲口冬天肥，夏天瘦。今年莊稼很茂盛。東邊纔發亮。人在暗處作惡，在明處受報。這塊饅頭太硬吞不下去。他到外國去以先是個窮人，他現在發財回來。關上驗了貨，纔準上船。他早兩天說的話，果然應驗。留他吃一頓飯。不管他有多大本事，我不要他在這裏服事我。他忽然生氣，轉身走了。雖然他有七十多歲，他還壯實。風吹草動。他們一連三回去，到底沒有遇見差人。基督的門徒，無論是窮的是富的，他們心中都有天堂的指望，早晚都必要到家。人下地獄，永遠不得出來，雖然他的朋友，請天下的和尚道士來，爲他念經，也是無用。人不用花錢得天堂的指望，上帝白白的賜給人。

第三十課 30 我爲他費了許多錢許多事，究竟他還說我的壞話，這豈不是忘恩負義嗎。請你把這封信捎到我家裏去。他是個體面人，他長的也體面。昨天晚上來了一個賊，把一條褲子、一件褂子偷了去，我起來追他，卻沒有追上。人若憑良心行事，就免不了受逼迫。說話不要聲音太低，我聽不到你說甚麼話。兩個人來作見證，他們的見證卻不對。人發驕傲，人人都嫌他，中國外國是一理。那個孩子回答他的父親太沒有禮。這是關係你的一件事。這件事是他的一個親戚安排的。早晚救主要回來，衆人都要在他面前聚會。他捨不

得一個人不得救，所以他勸人悔改信靠他。一個人多會悔改相信，就多會得救。我們豈不都該悔改信靠他麼。上帝愛世人，甚至將他的獨生子賜給他們，叫凡信他的，不至滅亡，必得永生。

SUPPLEMENT.

The Notes below are intended to supplement the information given in the body of the book. They are the outcome of changes that have occurred since the last edition was published, and embody suggestions made by teachers of the Lessons. The numbers refer to pages.

3. The following sentences illustrate the use of 不要:—

Before a verb:

Do not do it; 不要做

Do not read; 不要念書

So in Lesson II:

Do not buy it; 不要買.

Do not write; 不要寫字, and so on with the other verbs in the Lessons.

7. Emphasis counts for a good deal in Mandarin. As most beginners put emphasis in the wrong place, it will be as well to point out where it is not required.
- (1) Not on the N.A.; e.g., 一個錢, not 一個錢, and so with other N.A.
- (2) Not on 子 when it forms part of the noun; e.g., 椅子 not 椅子.
- (3) Not on 的 when it forms part of such words as Coarse 粗的; Fine 細的, page 42: the emphasis is on the first word in these and similar combinations. It may be generally stated that the emphasis is usually on the first word; e.g., 朋友, not 朋友; 意思, not 意思.
14. 得 in the North is often joined to 了 (read la) and forms an expression denoting satisfaction; e.g., This will do 這就得了.
25. The subjoined examples may help the student to see how 過 is used with 沒有:—
- Have you been abroad? 你到過外國沒有;
No, I have not; 我沒有到過.
- Have you been here before? 你來過沒有;
No; 沒有來過.
- Have you read this book? 這本書你念過沒有;
Yes; 念過了.
27. In addition to the terms given on this page to denote the days of the month, the word 號 hao a number, page 225, is used. It takes neither 第 nor 初 and may be applied to any day of the month; e.g.,

The 4th of the 8th month; 八月四號.

The 23rd of the 2nd month; 二月二十三號.

37. One drawback in the expression 一點鐘 is that it may refer either to the order or amount of time, and this is true of all similar expressions.

To avoid this, the combination 鐘頭 is used to indicate the amount of time without reference to order; e.g., One hour, 一個鐘頭; Three hours, 三個鐘頭; and so on.

46. The Revolution of 1911 spelt the removal of the queue—a badge of servitude to the Manchus. At present it is still worn by many in the North, but its entire departure is certain. In its place are cropped heads, varying in appearance from a turnip to a cocoanut. This shearing of the locks is known as 剪髮 chien³-fah⁴ clip hair; and the old name of 剃頭鋪 t'í⁴ t'eo² p'u⁴ is changed to 剪髮所 chien³ fah⁴ so³, (or 館 kuan³; or 處 ch'u⁴.)

57. The fact that a dollar is heavier than its natural equivalent of ten 10 cent pieces, or five 20 cent pieces has given rise to the use of the expressions ta iang 大洋, and hsiao iang 小洋, in stating prices involving any fraction of a dollar. According to the local rate of exchange, eleven 10 cent pieces plus a few copper coins should be given in change for a dollar.

In purchasing an article stated to cost $1.10, ta iang 大洋, a dollar and one 10 cent piece plus the copper cents needed to make up the full tenth of a dollar should be paid. If the price is $1.10, hsiao iang 小洋, only $1 and one 10 cent piece (毛 or 角) need be paid. The same rule applies to any fraction of a dollar. This is spoken of as 按大洋算 or 按小洋算.

58. It will be found that in ordinary conversation there is a tendency to shorten the names of many things in common use. This is in line with the foreign method of abbreviation as seen in 'bike' for 'bicycle'; 'bus' for 'omnibus,' etc. Hence it is quite common to hear 字兒 for 銅字兒; 火車 for 火輪車, page 92; and so on. In the Yangtse Valley copper coins are often called 銅板, page 71.

106. Since the Revolution, many schemes have been mooted for changing the names of the Provinces and Cities of China. It is difficult to say what will be decided ultimately, but the latest scheme has been to call all cities 縣, and the name of the official who rules over them 知事; e.g., The Shanghai Magistrate, 上海知事.

SUPPLEMENT.

The old names have been retained in this Lesson for convenience of reference.

153. In Peking, 成 is used to denote satisfaction, and is the equivalent of, "Well and good;" "That will do;" etc.
156. It is not easy in the early stages of study to distinguish the difference in use between 後來 and 以後 since both mean 'afterward.' While perhaps it is difficult to lay down a rule that will always apply, we may say that, speaking generally, 後來 comes before the verb, and 以後 after it; e.g.,
 After he went; 他去了以後.
 He went afterwards; 他後來去了.
 After 這事 and 那事, as well as after a definite-time, 以後 is used; e.g.,
 After this; 這事以後.
 After ten days; 十天以後.
187. Used idiomatically 來 is the equivalent of 'from' in certain connections; e.g.,
 He has come from the street; 他街上來.
 I have come from making purchases; 我買東西來.

Additional Notes on Reading Lessons IV to XX a.

Words in every language take on different shades of meaning according to their context. This is emphatically so in Chinese. Hence in translating, it is important to give the idiomatic equivalent as far as possible, rather than a literal translation. To enable the learner to do this is the object of these Notes.

The small figures indicate the number of the column.

SUPPLEMENT.

Use and Force of 就.

The word 就, defined in Lesson IV by Then, etc., is a word which takes on various meanings in different connections. As it is impossible to indicate these in a brief definition, an analysis of its use in Reading Lessons IV to VIII inclusive is given below, as a contribution to a better understanding of its force and usage. This will facilitate translation of later Lessons, and help to clear up many difficult points, since the passages quoted give most of its more common meanings.

The large numerals refer to the page, the small ones to the number of the column.
